Sunny Smiles

PRESCHOOL NOW OPEN

Play is one of the most important needs of children.

At the heart of play is learning.

Sunny Smiles Preschool offers opportunities for growth in emotional, social, physical and intellectual development. Most importantly, Sunny Smile's Preschool encourages playing and enjoying childhood.

Research shows that it is important to instill good learning habits early in children. A common and excellent way to do this is through a quality preschool.

Sunny Smiles Preschool is committed to playing a positive role at a very pivotal time for young children before they're off towards many fulfilling years of learning in a school setting.

Their daily schedule is flexible enough to be able to take advantage of spontaneous learning opportunities, as well as blocks of time designated for free choice and exploration.

Cindi Ann Baird, owner and teacher of Sunny Smiles Preschool, is a graduate of North Central Michigan College, and obtained her associate's degree in early childhood education. She has experience teaching preschoolers and kindergartners and has owned and operated "Sunny Smiles Daycare" in Charlevoix for more than 16 years. She is dedicated to meeting the children where they are developmentally, and helping each child reach challenging and achievable goals that contribute to their ongoing development and learning.

Sunny Smiles Preschool is located at 08080 Susan Shores Drive in Charlevoix. For more information call 547-0967 or visit www.upnorthdaycare.com.

New director named at American Red Cross chapter

BY KIRSTEN FREDRICKSON NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

KIRSTEN FREDRICKSON/ NEWS-REVIEW

Lori O'Neill (right) was recently selected to replace Betsy Hanson as executive director of the Northern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross.

There's a new face at the helm of the Northern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross, but it may be a familiar face to some.

Lori O'Neill, who's been working for Planned Parenthood of Northern Michigan for the past decade, has taken over as executive director at the area Red Cross. She replaces three-year director Betsy Hanson.

"I'm excited to be here," O'Neill said. "I'm looking forward to doing some good work for the Red Cross."

O'Neill said once she met with board members and other staff members in the Petoskey office, "it immediately felt like a good fit."

As for Hanson, she said she's leaving the position of executive director but has no intention of leaving the Red Cross.

"Having worked at the Red Cross I can continue to work; I can continue to be involved in the Red Cross. Whether it's paid or volunteer, there's always work for someone who wants to work."

She said the decision to resign was made in order for her family to be closer to aging family members. And with her son, Wil, heading off to Adrian College this fall, she said it was perfect timing.

"It's a new chapter. It's just not clear right now what that new chapter will be," she said. But one thing's for sure, Hanson intends to continue her work with the Red Cross. "I can't really see myself as leaving the Red Cross."

The process to replace Hanson began last November when the Red Cross formed a search committee. Some 65 applications were received, but it was O'Neill's that stood out.

"Lori was the top candidate," Hanson said. "It was very clear her experience, her presence, her demeanor was going to be a good fit. It was clear she was primed for this."

O'Neill, 47, has a bachelor's degree in health education from Northern Michigan University and a master's in family life education from Western Michigan University.

While having been at Planned Parenthood for the past 10 years, O'Neill was most recently working as director of education. She has worked with volunteers and budget issues, and feels strongly that her background in health and safety will translate to working with the Red Cross.

"Being where the decisions stop will be new to me," O'Neill admitted. "At the same time I'm really excited about that."

O'Neill lives with her husband, Scot, in Petoskey. They have seven children and five grandchildren.

Propane safety

COURTESY PHOTO

Charlevoix County has one of the highest concentrations of farmers in the state and in recent years the number of farming incidents involving propane accidents has increased. Michigan is one of the biggest users of propane in the country and farmers are a major part of that customer base. Tampering with propane tanks is unsafe as well as illegal. (Above) Firemen battle a blaze caused by a tank failure.

Volunteers needed to help protect streams in region

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council notes the tip of the northern Lower Peninsula contains more than 2,500 miles of streams, including a number of "blue ribbon" trout streams such as the Pigeon and Boyne rivers.

The organization needs volunteers to help monitor stream water quality. No experience is required, simply a love of the great outdoors and an appreciation for our amazing streams.

Volunteer stream monitors collect aquatic insects, snails, crustaceans and other small invertebrates, which are used as bio-indicators to gauge the health of a stream. The council focuses on life in the stream, collecting aquatic "critters," such as mayflies and dragonflies, to evaluate water quality. Volunteers enjoy the experience, returning time after time to experience the streams first-hand and join in the quest to protect these treasures.

To volunteer or learn more, contact Kevin Cronk at 347-1181, ext. 109 or via e-mail at kevin@watershedcouncil.org.w

County board pulls open spaces, farmland ordinance

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners conducted the following business during the regular commission of their Wednesday, May 23 meeting.

ITEM: RESCIND THE CHARLEVOIX COUNTY FARMLAND AND OPEN SPACE PRESERVATION ORDINANCE.

In brief: This ordinance was designed to allow landowners in Charlevoix County, who own large acreage plots of farmland and fallow land, to sell the development rights of those parcels of land to the county to help ensure what some call the scenic beauty of the area. Some citizens feel the ordinance is unnecessary.

Board action: Passed by a vote of 4—1 with chairman of the board, Shirley Roloff voting no and District Three Commissioner Ron Reinhardt absent.

ITEM: RULES OF PROCEDURE

In brief: The Board of Commissioners have updated their rules and procedures, under Robert's Rules of Order, for the first time since 1983. Procedures updated include designating who runs each meeting and how the meetings are conducted.

Board action: Passed, with District Five Commissioner Robert Drebenstedt voting no and Reinhardt absent.

Register now for Junior Golf

Official registration for this summer's Junior Golf instructional program is Monday, June 11, at the Charlevoix Municipal Course. Area youngsters must be at least 8 years of age and no older than 17.

Registration requires a parent or guardian be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form and to learn of the family commitment necessary for youngsters to successfully benefit from the program. Youngsters 11-17 years of age are to register at 1 p.m. and those 8 to 10 are must sign up at 1:45 p.m. There is a per-lesson fee of $5 or a $50 season plan option that pays for all scheduled lessons and play days.

This is the 12th year that the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's program has offered the program to area youths. Sessions that teach golf fundamentals meet twice weekly and run through July 25.

The program has drawn acclaim from the National Junior Golf Association when they selected the local program as one of the top 15 such programs in the country and the program continues to grow and flourish.

Pros from local courses that will make up the teaching staff include: Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere Club, Joan Waha from Ye Nyne Olde Holes, Mark Styles and Harold Bertrand from the Charlevoix Country Club, and Scott Blechel from the Municipal. The emphases will again be on learning golf rules and procedures, proper fundamentals and techniques and course etiquette. Lessons rotate and will be held at each of the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, Municipal and Antrim Dells courses. In addition, there will be a Sunday evening "fun" league for selected advanced players, with a variety of events, scheduled for the Belvedere Course.

Director Dean Davenport also reminded parents, "We will again have scholarships available based on need. We also will again have loaner clubs available."

Those interested should attend registration or call 547-6433 or the City Recreation Department at 547-3253.

Charlevoix squad wins Kiwanis Relays

BY STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

Veteran Charlevoix track and field coaches Mary and Ken Plude like going to Petoskey every year around the middle of May — despite the typically bad weather.

The weather, however, didn't seem to affect their teams.

Charlevoix used some strong team depth in the relay events, the same depth it has had the past two seasons, en route to winning their third straight White Division title at the 51st Petoskey-Kiwanis Relays Tuesday on a rainy and cold day at Curtis Field.

"It would've been nice to have some nicer weather, but to win it three years in a row is a pretty neat thing," Ken Plude, the Rayder boys' coach, said. "Depth, that's what it's all about.

"You have to have a good boys team and a good girls team to do well. It's a little bit of a different meet, but I think the kids like it because they can relax, keep it light, but they still want to run fast. Both teams are using it to relax a little before regionals."

The Rayders, who also won four straight Kiwanis titles from 1991-94, collected six relay victories in their division and placed second in four others en route to 78 points. Roscommon was second with 46 points, followed by Kalkaska, 42; and Elk Rapids, 25.

"I think our girls liked the race because they couldn't wait to run those co-ed relays," Charlevoix girls coach Mary Plude said. "It's a very relaxed race, but they still ran very well. They were very prepared both mentally and physically."

The Rayders got the meet started strongly by winning the mixed 3200-meter relay as Alina Dhaseleer, Jacob Hunt, Nick Wimmer and Brittney Lamb crossed the line in 9 minutes, 23 seconds.

Charlevoix then picked up another win shortly thereafter in the girls' 800 relay as Alyssa Smith, Taylor Storm, Chantel Novotny and Emily Heffling finished in 1:56.40.

In the mixed 1600 relay, the Charlevoix foursome of Nate LeBlanc, Drew Whitley, Lindi Edger and Lamh finished first in 4:01.1; while in the 400 relay, Smith, Storm, Jessica Bills and Emily Heffling finished first in 55.25.

The Rayders also won the mixed long jump relay (Darron Munson, LeBlanc, Storm, Smith) with a total distance of 65 feet, 3 1/2 inches, and the mixed discus relay (Ray Jones, Trevor Cole, Ashley Pett, Candace Way) in 426-2.

"We put it all together on Friday at our last meet and our girls really want to go for a regional title," Mary Plude said as her team prepares for the Division III regional Saturday in East Jordan. "They're trusting my judgment, some girls are stepping up, they're focused and the enthusiasm is there.

"We're ready and waiting."

The event's two premier events, the Buckmaster 1600 run for boys and the Niedhamer 1600 for girls proved once again to be highly contested as Petoskey senior Patrick Liederbach edged rival Paul Grieve of Kalkaska on the final lap to win the Buckmaster, while Amanda Hammer of Elk Rapids won her second straight Niedhamer title in convincing fashion.

Petoskey claimed its first victory since 2004, winning the Blue Division with 64 points. Sault Ste. Marie was second with 54, while defending-champion Cheboygan was third with 46, and Cadillac was fourth with 35.

St. Ignace won the Columbia Division with 56 points. Engadine was second with 39, followed by Brimley, 29; and Pellston, 16.

Tobacco Free Michigan: Deaths going up

Tobacco-Free Michigan has just released updated documents that graphically show the rising costs of tobacco use deaths and financial burdens in legislative districts across the state.

"I don't think that people are fully aware that 361 people die every year in Senator Jason Allen's district because of disease caused by tobacco or exposure to secondhand smoke," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "Tobacco and secondhand smoke are the top two leading causes of preventable death in Michigan. It's shocking to realize how much each person is also paying for this death toll — more than $71.5 million in Allen's district alone."

Tobacco use and exposure to secondhand smoke takes an enormous toll, killing more Michiganders than six other causes of death combined, including murders, traffic accidents, drug overdoses, alcohol, suicide, and AIDS. Every year, more than 17,000 Michigan people die from these causes; these are deaths that could have been prevented.

Michigan Department of Community Health leads the state's tobacco prevention efforts with support from statewide and local partners, such as Health Department of Northwest Michigan. Tobacco initiatives are effective. Adult smoking rates are down 21.9 percent and youth smoking rates are down 17 percent, but there is much work to be done to reduce the staggering toll of tobacco use.

"The problem is that Michigan spends less than $4 million, which is equivalent to a mere 36 cents per person, trying to prevent and reduce tobacco's impact on human life," said Kenyon Stebbins, chairman of the Tobacco Reduction Coalition of Northwest Michigan. "At the same time, health care costs to treat tobacco-related illness topped $3.6 billion in 2005.

"Tobacco prevention and reduction funding must be increased statewide in order to reduce the impact on rising health care costs. If raising revenues, including tobacco and alcohol taxes, is the price we pay, I think it's worth it for the health of our families, friends and neighbors," Stebbins said. "It makes sense that a portion of these revenues be dedicated to tobacco reduction and prevention programs."

Kalkaska-Wexford Tobacco Coalition, Tobacco Reduction Coalition of Northwest Michigan, and Traverse Bay Area Tobacco Coalition are joining with Tobacco-Free Michigan to raise awareness on the health and economic costs of tobacco. Tobacco-Free Michigan is the only non-profit organization solely dedicated to the public education and awareness of tobacco use and secondhand smoke and their human and economic toll. Lincoln invoked at ceremony else," said American Legion Commander and march unit commander in charge of the parade, Joe Seidel.

Following the parade, people of all ages stood in silent contemplation as Lincoln's address and a list of killed-in-action Charlevoix soldiers were read.

"We are met on a great battlefield of that (Civil) war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that this nation might live," said Charlevoix High School student, Matt Mason, quoting from Lincoln's November 1863 speech. "But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate; we cannot consecrate; we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract."

Prior to the parade, a similar ceremony occurred at the Brookside Cemetery and wreaths were placed in Round Lake to honor those lost at sea.

Charlevoix's seniors are outt'a here

Who: Charlevoix High School
What: Graduation Ceremony
When: June, 3rd at 2:00 p.m.
Where: Charlevoix High School

BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

If children are truly mankind's future, then Charlevoix has a lot to look forward to considering the larger than average number of valedictorians and salutatorians in the Charlevoix area.

The best of the best recently sat down with the Charlevoix Courier to discuss the major transition period that is high school graduation.

Charlevoix High School: Graduation ceremonies are scheduled for 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 3 in the Rayder gymnaisum. There will be nearly 105 students graduating this year.

The 4.0 GPA valedictorians:

• Caitlin Taylor, daughter of Laura and David Taylor, has been a member of the National Honor Society, art and Spanish club, the cross country, track and field, volley ball and tennis teams and plans to attend Michigan State University.

"I want to study landscape architecture," she said. "I did get to take some technical classes that helped me discover the field of landscape architecture."

Taylor said, while she will miss the relationships she's made, she won't miss the homework and what she called, "The lack of freedom."

She added, "I'll miss my friends. It's not everyday that you get to hang out with your friends all day long."

Taylor plans to live somewhere other than Charlevoix after college.

"I'm definitely excited for a change," she said of going to college and told her underclassmen to, "Work hard while you're here because it will pay off."

• Lauren Dupuis, daughter of Mark and Molly Dupuis, was on the National Honor Society, Spanish and Sunnybank club and volleyball, tennis and cross country teams throughout her high school career.

"I'm going to Georgetown (University in Washington, D.C.) to study international finance," she said. "I won't miss the (lack) of freedom. You have to get your planner signed to go to the bathroom."

But, she said, I will miss seeing my friends everyday."

Dupuis said she does not plan to come back to Charlevoix to live following her college career.

"I'm excited to go to different and new places," she said. "There's really not much to do around here."

Dupuis said underclassmen should work hard but still try to have fun.

• Zita Anderson, daughter of Zita Winn and Steve Anderson, has been on the National Honor Society, the Spanish club and sports teams including basketball, volleyball, soccer as well as being on the youth advisory committee of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

"I'm going to Notre Dame (University in Indiana) and majoring in mathematics education," she said. "If I can get a job here when I'm done that would be fantastic. I would definitely come back here."

Anderson won't miss living by the school bell, but she said she will miss high school sports.

As for the future, she said, "I'm excited and ready to try something new."

Anderson told her underclassmen to get involved in as many sports and clubs as possible.

• Lauren Bradley, daughter of Buck and Linda Bradley, has been a member of the art and Spanish clubs, tennis and volleyball teams and plans to attend University of Michigan to study international relations.

"I feel like it was a nice variety of classes," she said. "I figured out what I like and don't like."

Bradley said she won't miss being controlled, but will miss the small school and knowing many people.

"I'm excited for the future. I can't wait to see what happens," she said. "I'll probably vacation here, but I hope to move overseas for awhile."

Bradley told underclassmen to, "Do everything you can while you're here because opportunities don't come up all the time."

The 3.99 GPA Rayder salutatorians

• Jacob Wimmer, son of Chris and Rebecca Wimmer, has been on the soccer, cross country and track and field teams as well as student council and the National Honor Society.

"The most helpful things here have been the tech classes I've taken and the art classes," he said. "I'm either going into industrial design or engineering. I'm going to (The University of Michigan) to their college of art and design. I'm going to be studying industrial design, and if that doesn't work out I'll do architecture or engineering."

Wimmer said he will not miss depressing English stories like Hamlet, but he will miss the time he spent on the track and field and cross country teams.

Whether he will follow his career path back to Charlevoix is still undecided.

"It's a possibility. My dad has a business here and if I decide I want to work for him I might," he said. "That is an option, but I'm keeping my options open."

He added, "I'm excited and kind of questioning what's in store. I'm just excited to be moving on."

Wimmer told his fellow classmates to, "Keep your morals and beliefs above all else."

• Logan Priess, son of Diane and Dennis Priess, has been on the ski and quiz bowl teams, the French club, the National Honor Society and has been a student representative.

"I'm going to Grand Valley (State University). I'm going to go into film and video," he said.

Priess looks forward to the freedom of college but will miss the close-knit family of a smaller school and community.

I'm excited about the future, getting away from the family and getting out on my own," he said. "Even if I don't do so well it will be nice to do something different."

His words of wisdom: "Hard work isn't everything. Have some fun—half the time that's more important that just getting the grades." •

Northwest Academy graduates six seniors

Who: Northwest Academy
What: Graduation Ceremony
When: May, 25th at 7:00 p.m.
Where: 1st Congregational Church

BENJAMIN GOHS

NWA: Graduation ceremonies were Friday, May 25 at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. The graduating class consisted of six students.

The top graduate of Northwest Academy of Charlevoix, Alanna Leslie-Meadows, daughter of Peggy Leslie-Meadows, is a salutatorian with a 3.39 GPA.

"I plan to attend Saginaw Valley (State University)," she said. "I'm not sure what my major will be, but it will be something in the performing arts or education."

Leslie-Meadows has played soccer and been involved with concert and jazz band where she played the tenor saxophone.

"I was in choir while it was here, I've been dancing since I was two and I've been on the honor roll for the last two years," she said. "I'm also on student council and I was on the prom committee."

Leslie-Meadows said she will miss the students and teachers the most.

"I won't miss the drama," she said. "Whenever I see people being upset it makes me upset."

She added, "I don't like to see people upset. I want to see people happy. I'm always the happy, hyper person."

As far as the future is concerned, Leslie-Meadows said she is a little anxious.

"I'm nervous and excited at the same time and scared to death of the future," she said. "But, I'm looking forward to new challenges and the future."

Leslie-Meadows hopes to follow her career to the San Francisco, Calif. area after college.

"I visited there (San Francisco) this past spring break and the city is great and the people are nice, but I'm still undecided," she said. "Part of me wants to stay back here with my friends."

Leslie-Meadows had the following advice to her classmates and underclassmen:

"I just want them to find their passion, what they're really good at and follow their dreams to achieve their passion," she said.

She added, "I would just like to thank the NWA family for putting up with me for the past six years. I would like to thank every student and every teacher for the memories."

The banquet has been a tradition on the Island since the 1920's. The junior class raises money to sponsor the formal dinner at which the seniors and their families are the guests of honor. Seventh graders are the servers and all 8-12 graders along with teachers and board members are seated for the meal, which this year was expertly prepared by chef Dusty Cushman. Beaver Island Community School graduate and recent CMU grad, Abigail Adams, was the guest speaker after which the underclassmen bid the seniors farewell. A senior video was also viewed. After the banquet, all students in grades 8-12 went on a sunset cruise on the Emerald Isle, then returned to the banquet hall for dancing and team games followed by a stint in an inflatable laser tag game. At the end of the evening prizes were awarded to all students attending the event thanks to the many donations from Island residents and businesses and mainland businesses.

Janik the pick for super's job

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

A 6-0 vote to offer the Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent position to Chet Janik was made by the board of education on Tuesday, May 29.

Board member, Diane Kilkenny, was absent.

According to interim superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Jim Cooper, the personnel committee, which consists of board president Bill Trubilowicz and board members Dean Spencley and John McLean, will now devise a contract complete with salary, benefit package and desired timeline of service before entering contract negotiations with Janik.

"Once they (members of the personnel committee) have that contract signed I assume they're looking at a July 1 start date or at least the first week in July," Cooper said. "I think they did a very thorough review of the candidates and I think it came down to who they thought was a better fit for Charlevoix at this time."

Janik

Cooper added, "I think he'll (Janik) do a fine job. He brings a lot of experience and skill to this job. He'll be very visible and people will get to know him quickly."

Janik, who has 27 years experience in education, a bachelor's and master's degree from Central Michigan University and has taken advanced classes through the University of Nebraska, chose Charlevoix after careful deliberation.

"I did a lot of research and this school district has a great image and reputation and the test scores are, of course, very good," Janik said. "The facilities are very nice and I talked to a lot of parents and community members."

He added, "Everyone I talked to was very positive. Charlevoix is the right fit with my background."

Bond sought for island school

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

At the Aug. 7 election Beaver Island School officials will ask voters to approve 2.3 mills over 25 years to raise nearly $4 million beginning this December to renovate the school house built in the 1950s.

With their 15-year 1.46 mill debt millage and the five-year (originally 1-mill) .89 sinking fund millage having expired December 2006, the Beaver Island Community Schools Board of Education unanimously adopted the $3,950,000 proposal on Tuesday, May 22.

"I believe that it's needed because our finances are such that we don't have enough operating money to do anything other than operate the school," said outgoing school board member and former board president, John Fiegen. "We don't have enough money for construction, renovation (or) anything that keeps the building in good shape."

Tax would replace millage that ended

MILLAGE

only enough funds for what Fiegen called, "Band-Aids."

"It seemed to us an opportune time, rather than just keep going with the sinking fund and just doing patchwork just to keep the school from falling down, to get the bond issue passed to do renovations and tear down the oldest, most inefficient part of the school," he said.

In a May 23 press release from Beaver Island Community Schools superintendent, Kitty McNamara, Bret Kronlein, vice president of education for BETA Design, an architectural and engineering firm from Grand Rapids spearheading the school facility improvement project, pointed out that there will be no increase in taxes currently levied on Beaver Island citizens if the millage passes.

"The school board was adamant about minimizing the impact on taxpayers. Their direction was to keep the total tax levy equal to or less than the current amount," Kronlein stated. "Obtaining insight from the building's users and from the voters in the community is critical in designing a facility that will truly meet the district's needs."

The previous 1.46 and .89 millages equal 2.35 mills, a .05 savings from previous years if the proposed 2.3 millage is passed.

Beaver Island resident, former teacher with Beaver Island Schools and publisher of the Northern Islander newspaper, Elaine West, said she is still on the proverbial fence on the bond issue.

"I'm still a little torn," she said. "Given our tough economic times and the millage that we pay now, I think it's going to be a tough sell."

There were 71 students registered for the 2006-2007 Beaver Island school year, a decrease from 77 and 79 students for the 2004-2005 and 2005-2006 school years respectively.

Fiegen said he understands why some may ask why the school must be enlarged despite an apparent decline in enrollment.

"Our enrollment statistics projections show we are in a dip, but over the last 60 years enrollment has been staying constant and going up constantly," he said. "If our projections show to be true then this is just a blip and we will continue to go in a positive direction."

He added, "That is if we have something appealing to offer. We have had some success in adding new programs in the last few years, but we don't have a place to do them. No matter how romantic a one-room schoolhouse is, it is very difficult to offer the things students need in those kinds of facilities."

West said she has heard people discussing the possibility of utilizing the resources already available on the island.

"The (Beaver Island) Community Center will have a youth center which may be a good spot for art students and when it's completed there will be an (auditorium) that could be used for music students," she said. "I think everybody's tightening their belts and there are schools all over the state that are really suffering — this is what I'm hearing from various people."

According to McNamara, Beaver Island Community School officials have been working with BETA Design since January to create a vision and program for this project with several meetings of community and school staff to determine the school's needs and priorities.

If approved by voters, millage money would be used to make room for art, music and science classes and fix air circulation issues, wasted energy and safety issues.

If the measure fails to pass, McNamara said via phone interview, "We'll have to take a look at what the vote is and make a determination whether it's worth going back to the voters again or whether to go back for a sinking fund for upkeep on the older part of the building."

She added, "Voters will see the cost for the new facility equal to, or less than, what they were paying last year and it will provide a modern living space for Beaver Island kids and they deserve it as much as anybody else."

Epiphanies on summer

Do not adjust your reading glasses, for this is not a misprint, Gohs is writing the editorial.

And, while I have gone mad with power since Courier editor Julie Witthoeft began maternity leave, I have also learned a few things in the two weeks since I took over my editor's desk.

Before I get to my life lessons, let me say, "Hooray summer!" I know, summer doesn't officially begin until June 21, but everyone this side of Grayling knows Memorial Day weekend is the real kickoff for BBQs, sparklers and RVs the size of ocean liners.

I'd also like to welcome the fudgies, snowbirds, transplants and anyone stranded here after running out of gas on the way to Mackinaw City — on the bright side, our fudge tastes better, our bridge is faster to cross and we are a safe distance from the ghosts of Fort Michilimackinac.

But seriously, you and the family can spend your hard-earned money to relax anywhere in the world and you choose to do it here, and for that we thank you.

Now to the epiphanies:

1. I learned I am in no condition to try and keep up with people in a parade. After nearly having a coronary in an attempt to beat the Memorial Day marchers to the library on Monday, I have decided to limit my intake of sausage gravy to a pint a day.

2. I learned the Regional Business After Hours, brought to us by chambers of commerce from Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Elk Rapids, Harbor Springs and Petoskey and sponsored in part by the Petoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier, was a blast. Several hundred people turned out for the evening of fine food, door prizes and rubbing elbows with business people from all over Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties. I got the chance to meet and chat with Greg Marshall of 1270 WMKT and 1340 WMBN of Petoskey who is one of my media heroes and I even made a business contact with Jim Cook of Bee A Winner Advertising Specialties of East Jordan. I encourage all business owners to attend this fun and relaxing chance to network and market your business.

Benjamin Gohs

3. I learned that, while listening to a pregnant woman bounce back and forth from maniacal laughter to uncontrolled sobbing was a little unsettling, I miss my boss and wish her a speedy return to the office, because her job is more difficult than I could ever have imagined.

I have to go now, I think the crew may be planning a mutiny.

Benjamin Gohs is staff writer for the Charlevoix Courier and temporarily keeping the editor's seat warm. He can be contacted by calling 547-6558 or e-mail him at bgohs@charlevoixcourier.com.

Rolling along in life on the back of a motorcycle

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Hope rides a motorcycle

Hope is widely accepted as an emotion believing that a positive outcome is possible even when evidence suggests otherwise. A good dose of hope goes hand in hand with faith. They both are actually one of the three values adhered to in the Catholic Church, the other being charity.

I pondered those values the other day while witnessing the large number of participants in the recent Tri 4 Fun event and the Sue De Young/Judy Edger Memorial Walk.

Both of these fundraisers had their sites on collecting money to assist local cancer patients and each sponsored activity met or surpassed their goal.

I witnessed hope with each face that met mine with their desire to complete their portion of the event.

Faith was shown by the organizers of the events that all would go well. The charity of others brought donations that will continue to serve our community family.

A day doesn't go by without someone educating us about another's diagnosis.

I used to believe that there was something in our environment that brought about a higher incidence of illness in our area. As time passed I realized that a close-knit town brings about awareness of someone else's personal business.

The bittersweet thing about living in a community our size is we are aware of others setbacks, illnesses, good fortunes and life changes.

Unfortunately it keeps everyone aware of your daily life, but on the upside it also brings with it support that is ongoing. There is always someone to talk to with a similar situation which brings with it support and hope.

It was discussed in our household that sometimes life just seems to be getting away from us. We decided to tackle our feelings head on with new and fun experiences and cherish each moment.

Our idea to appreciate each new day and help conserve fuel solidified with the purchase of a shiny new motorcycle. She (its feminine when I'm driving her) puts a positive spin on life by taking it in up close and personal.

Those three values taught by the nuns in elementary school came back to mind. We "hope" to arrive to each destination in one piece, I have to have lots of "faith" as the passenger sitting behind my husband, and the "charity" of our wallets keeps fueling our fun.

Hope may not make us or a loved one completely well, but it definitely puts a positive spin on what we choose to do and say on a daily basis.

It takes little effort for us to say something to give someone hope. To give it away daily will improve the mental attitude of someone experiencing a bump in the road.

Hope does spring eternal and it's a good thing to give away daily in large doses and remember to keep some for yourself.

MANY HELPED WITH TRI 4

Thanks to all our participants, volunteers, sponsors and donors who made the 3rd annual Tri 4 Fun Women's Non Competitive Triathlon a wonderful success on May 20.

We had more than 40 great volunteers and 92 energetic swimmers, bikers and runners.

Thanks to everyone who supported these women, many of them TRI-ing for the first time.

We raised more than $7,000 for two important local cancer support groups: Circle of Strength and Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders.

Our top solo triathlete, who raised the most money, was Geralyn Doskoch.

Jay Johnson, Christine Johnson and Sue Wiberg of team #301 raised the most money. Great job everyone.

PUT THE RINK INSIDE

Editor:

Do you want a way to get rid of cabin fever then an ice skating and hockey rink might be for you. The closest ice rink to us is in Petoskey which is much too far. Hockey is a fun sport but it is not offered here in Charlevoix. If it were here it would draw many more people from other cities.

Kids that don't play any of the sports Charlevoix has to offer might be interested in hockey. It also might keep kids off the street. Another good reason is that you wouldn't just have an outside rink.

It's not very good ice and sometimes it's not even there. So, what I'm trying to say is an ice rink wouldn't be a bad idea. Thank you for reading my letter.

WEB SITE IS GREAT

Editor:

I am a snowbird living in the Chicagoland area. However, I feel like a native since my mother and her 12 siblings were raised there and went to Charlevoix schools. I still have cousins living there and I have been coming up for all of my 68 years. My children and grandchildren now consider Charlevoix their second home just as I do.

I really appreciate the new Web site and I congratulate you on getting it done. Every week I look forward to getting my Courier. I also love the new graphics and layout. One suggestion you might consider if possible is more pictures of the new East Park and marina renovation project going on. It would be great to see the weekly progress in pictures. We fudgies are very interested in the project. Keep up the good work and keep watering the petunias when needed. Thanks,

CASKS ARE SAFE

Editor:

I read with great interest the article by Stephanie Carano regarding the storage of spent nuclear waste at the old Big Rock property. It seems some anti-nuclear groups have glommed onto the resignation of one disgruntled employee and are attempting to turn it into a potential nuclear holocaust in an effort to engender fear among the locals. For what end, I don't know and I suppose it does not matter.

I have worked in the civilian nuclear industry for 22 years, and before that I was in the nuclear Navy for eight. Currently I am a senior reactor operator at a plant in Illinois, licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, trained and tested to the highest of standards. I am very familiar with the fuel storage casks used at Big Rock; these same casks are in use at my plant.

The bottom line is this: the fuel stored in the casks at Big Rock is as safe from terrorists as if it was still in the ground as ore. Those casks are built and tested to withstand the most amazing impacts. A group of terrorists who wished to breach one had better bring lunch, because it will take more than just a couple of bombs to get through one and a lot of time.

An environmental group truly interested in improving the safety of the stored fuel would best serve that interest by pressuring the Federal Government to get off the stick and open the repository at Yucca Mountain, thus honoring the commitment it made to the nuclear industry so many years ago. Otherwise, they should take their fear mongering elsewhere.

INFORMATION NEEDED

Editor:

Charlevoix is a beautiful place, but I feel that it lacks area information for visitors. Our town can be a puzzling place to find your way around. Maps of Charlevoix around our town would make life easier.

Safety is a big concern, that's why the safety areas should be noticed. For instance, new people in town need to know where the hospital is. Similarly, the police station and fire station should also be noticed.

Everyone knows in the summer downtown is packed with tourists; the maps would give them more options to spread out. For example, the maps would lead them to museums, exhibits and libraries The tourists can also go to Charlevoix's numerous parks and beaches.

Finally, the maps would make a difference in promoting Charlevoix. In fact they would be very convenient for many people. The maps would also make our town look more inviting and friendly.

From my point of view, the maps would help in making Charlevoix a better place. I'm sure numerous people would appreciate the maps, since parents have a hard time pulling over while driving to ask for directions. Once again, Charlevoix is a beautiful place, but I feel that it lacks area information for visitors. Thank you for taking the time to read this.

Two teachers retire from Char-Em ISD

This is the second part of a two-part series on Charlevoix's retiring teachers

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Alison Mellon's fascination with literacy began when she was student teaching at Wayne State University.

At that time, she was observing a sixth-grade classroom and a first-grade classroom with the intent of becoming a science teacher. But she became captivated by the learning process of reading and writing that was taking place in the first grade.

Mellon

"You'll never see as much growth in a student as you do in first grade, it's like watching a baby grow from a newborn to age 1," Mellon said. "They come in basically as a blank slate and come out being able to read and write."

This was the beginning of her development as a literacy consultant for Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, a position she will be retiring from at the end of the school year.

As a literacy consultant for Char-Em ISD, she has been able to influence the development of all students that attend Charlevoix Public Schools by working with their teachers, and not just those of English or language arts.

"The idea is that everybody becomes a reading teacher," said Mellon. "Experts in biology and government also have to help kids learn how to read the material."

Her strategy for developing literacy skills is the same whether the student is age 5 or 18.

"Always keep questions in your mind, making a prediction, getting a visual image in your mind," Mellon said. "Ask questions of the author, what is he or she trying to tell me?"

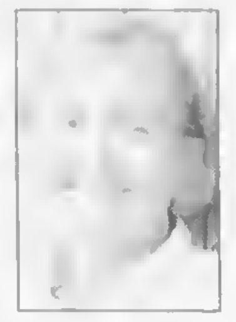
In her experience, she has also observed the connection between behavior and literacy.

"Behavior and literacy are closely related," she said. "If you can improve the behavior, you can improve literacy and if you improve literacy, you can improve behavior."

Mellon's career began in 1970 as a first- and second-grade teacher at the Detroit Public Schools. She remained in the district from 1970 until 1982 when she moved to Boyne City and began substituting in the Boyne City Public Schools, then became a first-grade teacher at Charlevoix Elementary School in 1984.

In 2001, she accepted a position as literacy specialist for Charlevoix Elementary School. From there, she became a literacy consultant at Char-Em ISD, where she's been for the last five years.

Though she enjoys her work, she said there are things she misses about teaching first-grade.



Gorkiewicz

"You become part of people's families," she said. "Kids bring all the joys and sorrows of the family to school. I've been to students' weddings and baby showers and I'm grateful to Charlevoix for that."

After retiring, Mellon and her husband, Gary, plan to travel and visit her daughters, Kirstin and Erika, stepson Gary and grandchildren Quinten, Riley and Keegan.

The last but not least teacher retiring from the ISD this year is Jeanne Gorkiewicz, whose encounter with her students begins in their infancy.

As an occupational therapist for Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, she is responsible for ensuring a student is developmentally ready for school. This involves working with parents of physically and neurological impaired infants, toddlers and children to make sure that happens.

"We're trying to help the child be a member of the family and help the family deal with their behavior," Gorkiewicz said.

Her job requires her to reach every child she is assigned to despite any challenges in reaching their home.

"There have been homes I cross-country skied into, where they didn't plow," she said.

Gorkiewicz has also been working with school-aged children on modifications in the classroom, such as special seating and ramps for students who use wheelchairs. She also ensures that autistic children have the modifications they need, making adjustments of light and texture to make their environment more comfortable.

Over the years, Gorkiewicz has seen changes in her occupation and in the children she's cared for.

"The children we see now are more able to participate

Elaine Smith winds up 50 years at Central Drug

In five decades, Elaine Smith has had three generations of bosses, thousands of customers and seen both a soda fountain and old-time typewriter go by the wayside.

Smith recently wrapped up 50 years of employment at Central Drug of Charlevoix where she did everything from fill prescriptions to scoop ice-cream

"My English teacher called me after class one day and told me to see Harley Ochs (then owner of Central Drug). I was kind of shy, but I asked why and he said, 'Do you want to work or don't ya?' so I went down and saw him and got the job and here I am."

Smith, who was born and raised in Charlevoix, began working for Harley Ochs in 1952, then worked for Frank Ochs, John Ochs' father, the current Central Drug owner.

Smith said the numerous pharmacy chains have had a significant effect on family owned drugstores over the years, but that there are many other changes.

"It's quite different with computers. Everything used to be done by hand, you just didn't have the technology — I've learned not to like it," she said. "I had this little typewriter and it was my job for awhile to type all the insurance forms. Now all you do is push a button."

Smith will miss her customers and coworkers the most.

"That was my life. I enjoyed my customers and had a lot

Elzinga runs for council

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix City Council candidate, John Elzinga, was out of town when the race was initially covered in the Charlevoix Courier, but he's since shared his background and expectations.

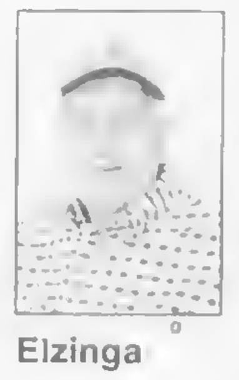
Elzinga, 75, said he is excited about the future of Charlevoix.

"With the new marina and the new park area, plus all the ideas in the 'Cool Cities' program, this should be a great period of time to see big things happening in Charlevoix," he said.

This November, Elzinga is running against Jill Picha and possibly any as-of-yet unregistered independent candidates to represent the 3rd Ward on Charlevoix's city council, a seat that will be vacated by Shirley Gibson.

Elzinga retired to Charlevoix after spending 40 years as a farmer and fruit grower in Antrim County's Banks Township, on the property that is now owned by Friske Orchards. Friske's fruit trees, store, cafe and country crafts house were once owned and operated by Elzinga and his wife, Phyllis.

"Being a farmer, I know how to economize and save every way you can," he said. "I know you do have to spend sometimes too."



Elzinga

He said spending is necessary when it benefits the community.

"When it helps the whole community and everyone can get a benefit out of it, you should spend," said Elzinga.

Though he enjoyed farming tremendously, he now enjoys his life within the city limits.

"I'm in downtown everyday," he said.

For 20 years, Elzinga served as treasurer on the Banks Township Board but his recent experience on the Charlevoix Citizens Committee was what convinced him he was qualified for the job of councilman.

"I learned a lot about the work and expenses of all the different city departments," said Elzinga. "I hope, if elected, to serve as a very reliable and dependable member of the council."

He is also anxiously anticipating working with the new city manager.

"I want to see someone that will push Charlevoix forward," Elzinga said.

In addition to his property in Charlevoix, Elzinga and his wife occasionally visit their four-acre residential property in Atwood. Their house in Charlevoix was inherited from his mother-in-law.

Elzinga has been a member of many area boards and committees such as the Ellsworth Co-Op Exchange, the Michigan Farm Bureau and the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Elzinga and his wife also continue to be active at the Atwood Christian Reform Church and they have two grown daughters and a granddaughter. His daughter Susan lives in Florida. His daughter Cheryl and granddaughter Emma live in Grand Rapids.

over the years and lost a lot over the years," she said. "I enjoyed my job, meeting everybody, chitchatting a little bit."

Smith even worked at a pharmacy in Reed City where she had moved for four years, shortly after marrying.

"She is just a great person. She is great with people and loved the customers. We're going to miss her," said John Ochs. "She started 50 or 51 years ago and took a couple years off to have kids before coming back. She actually started working for my granddad — shoot, she was babysitting me."

Smith said she isn't sure what she'll do with all her extra time.

"I was kind of laid up this winter with a bad foot and you start to get tired after awhile when you get a little older," she said. "I guess I just thought it was time."

It is time to let the young people do the work, Smith joked.

"I'm just taking it one day at a time. It's all new for me. I've always worked so I guess I'll just try to keep busy," she said. "I won't miss getting up early in the morning. I've had to do that for all these years."

She added, "I've always said I wanted to spend a Charlevoix summer without working. I think I'm going to enjoy it. I have some friends and we get together and eat out once in awhile and play cards, though I don't knit or crochet or anything like that."

According to Smith, this wasn't an easy decision.

"I debated and debated and everybody told me I would know when it was time. It was a big decision," she said. "I'm sure some days I'm going to say, 'I don't know why I did this.'"

She added, "I thoroughly enjoyed it. I had very good bosses. I guess I wouldn't have been there all that time if I didn't. I'm going to miss it so I'll have to go down and bug them once in awhile to make sure they're doing OK."

Red Cross reports need for more donations

Just days into summer, the two Red Cross blood regions serving Michigan report a 5 to 10 percent lag in donations, as well as emergency levels of critical blood types such as O-negative and B-negative.

"For most people, summer means rest and relaxation," says Sharon Jaksa, CEO of the Great Lakes Region of the American Red Cross. "But for the Red Cross, it signals the start of our biggest battle: The fight against summer blood shortages."

Current supplies of Type O-negative — "the universal donor" — are at emergency levels, with just a half day on the shelves. Shortages of Type O-negative can be serious since hospitals may use Type O-negative blood in most emergency trauma cases when there is not enough time to determine a patient's blood type. Shortages of Type B-negative compound the situation since people with Type B-negative can only receive blood from Type O-negative or Type B-negative donors.

The shortage of these two blood types, according to Red Cross officials, has been the norm for the past year or more.

"While we value all blood donors, we simply need more donors with Type O- and Type B- blood," says Jaksa. "What makes it hard is that people with these blood types make up just nine percent of the general population."

The Red Cross is encouraging new and previous blood donors to join the battle against summer blood shortages by making a date to give blood once, or even twice, between May and September.

Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good general health. For information on a blood drive near you, call 1-800-GIVE LIFE.

Friends of the Library meet

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will host Robert Tagatz at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 7, in the library's Community Room.

Tagatz, Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel resident historian, concierge and author, will give an informative and entertaining review of the Grand Hotel's history.

The Grand Hotel, the world's largest summer hotel, has been one of America's premier summer vacation spots since it opened on July 10, 1887, to receive summer vacationers who arrived by lake steamer or rail.

Tagatz's love of historic wood structure hotels attracted him to the Grand Hotel in 1996.

Tagatz

He started as a dock porter, and it was soon apparent to the hotel owners, Musser family, that his extensive knowledge and outgoing personality could be put to better use.

He became the first concierge in recent Grand Hotel history in 1997 and was named Resort Historian in 1999.

His wealth of information pertaining to the hotel and Mackinac Island has made him a popular lecturer. Tagatz has authored the book, "Grand Hotel, Mackinac Island."

Preceding the lecture, Richard and Linda Mueller will be honored as the 2007 recipients of the Margaret Duerr Book Award.

Each year an individual or individuals who have demonstrated an interest in the preservation of the history of Northern Michigan is selected for this award.

The Mueller's, owners of Castle Farms, were recognized for their restoration of an important Charlevoix landmark.

For additional information, call the library at 547-9754.

Geneology group meeting

The Charlevoix County Genealogical Society will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 7, in the lower level community room of the Boyne District Library, 201 East Main St. in Boyne City.

The meeting will feature a panel discussion on family history research. Experienced researchers will answer your genealogical questions, assist you with your research brick-walls and help you find other sources and options for your genealogical searches. Our panel has decades of experience in family history research.

Why not let them help you with your research.

are more able to participate in the academic setting," she said. "Babies that used to be critically ill are now not so ill."

She said demands on children in kindergarten are also higher than in years past.

"Now in kindergarten you have to be able to formulate a sentence and use punctuation," Gorkiewicz said. "Developmentally, that's an enormous task."

She said this is especially true for boys. "Boys have difficulty," she said. "Developmentally, they are not ready. Boys are slower to develop those skills."

After completing her education, Gorkiewicz worked for Macomb Intermediate School District for two years before transferring to Char-Em ISD in 1977. She started at Char-EM ISD as the district's only occupational therapist. Today the there are six occupational therapists as well as three certified occupational therapy assistants.

Gorkiewicz said she will especially miss her colleagues.

"They are the people that make the day-to-day part of your job," she said.

Upon retirement Gorkiewicz plans on traveling with her husband, Denny Phelps. She has four children, Chelsea and Liza Gorkiewicz and Chelsea Ann Phelps and a son Peter Gorkiewicz.

Enjoy Charlevoix County's many campgrounds

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Warmer days allow for families to spend more time outdoors, and a camping excursion can provide the experience of living completely outdoors, safely and comfortably.

Charlevoix County's camping facilities offer families a variety of positive camping experiences.

"Campfires are the highlight of any camping trip," said Jean Kokx, supervisor of Fisherman's Island State Park. "Leave the radio at home and tell stories."

She recommends bringing books on shipwrecks or Native American folklore to read aloud in front of the fire as family entertainment.

Also in regards to campfires, Kokx said meal preparation can be very fun for children. She suggests making foil dinners that allow the children to choose the meat and vegetables that will go into their packet.

"That way, kids get ownership in their meal and they enjoy that a lot," she said.

Kokx also said families should secure their goods to keep hungry creatures from robbing the camp.

"Keep all foods in a latching cooler," she said. "Raccoons are very industrious and can open coolers and rip open bags."

An empty tent with food inside is a prime target for a hungry raccoon, so Kokx said not to leave any food inside a tent.

She recommends pitching tents away from low-lying areas where water could settle and sleeping campers could get wet.

"Water can soak through the bottom of a waterproof tent," Kokx said.

Even in warmer temperatures, Kokx said, bring long pants and long-sleeved shirts to prevent insect bites.

An abundance of lakes and streams helps make Charlevoix County an attractive place to camp.

Sue Rose, supervisor of Young State Park, said kayakers with kids should take care when on the lake.

"Parents should stay along the shoreline so kids don't fall on their head," said Rose.

She also said when kayaking or swimming, always remember to bring a personal flotation device.

Neil Daniel and his father John, both of Holland, fish for the big one at Young State Park.

Public relations manager for Beaver Island, Steve West, has some water tips as well.

"Anytime kids are swimming in Lake Michigan, be conscious they don't get chilled," he said, "because children are more sensitive to heat and cold."

The following are rustic and modern camping offerings in Charlevoix County:

OBITUARIES

Marjory Jackson Levin:
1926- 2007

Marjory Jackson Levin 1926 - 2007

Marjory Jackson Levin had style and an interest in journalism. Throughout the 1970s, she used both talents to write a style column for the Free Press.

"She was able to combine her professional journalism and active social life," said her son, Jon Levin of Bloomfield Hills. "She always wanted to be a journalist."

Mrs. Levin, 81, died Friday at her Birmingham home after a short battle with lung cancer.

A Massachusetts native, Mrs. Levin grew up in Huntington Woods and graduated from the University of Michigan. She married Dr. Herbert G. Levin and had three children.

While she wrote for the Free Press for 13 years, Mrs. Levin also took up women's and anti-war causes. She started a group called Michigan Citizens for Handgun Control and helped found the Michigan chapter of the National Organization for Women. She also attended a march on Washington in 1968 that protested the Vietnam War.

Even though she had an active life with her career, family and social activism, Mrs. Levin still made time to be a socialite and have fun. She was a regular at local hot spots, including the London Chop House in Detroit.

Mrs. Levin also took pride in always remembering loved ones. In fact, she had a nearly encyclopedic knowledge of her friends and their families. "When we talked about a certain person, she could go back six generations," Jon Levin said. "She had an amazing ability to map the genealogy."

Mrs. Levin's popularity carried over into her later years. She always had visitors after her cancer diagnosis. "Every day at her house for the past five months, she had visitors," Jon Levin said. "She never was without visitors a single day."

In addition to her son, Mrs. Levin is survived by another son, a daughter, one sister and seven grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the Ira Kaufman Chapel on May 28, in Southfield. Interment was at Beth El Memorial Park in Livonia.

Edith Gilbert recalls, "Marje Levin's summer home was at 405 Park Ave. and visited Charlevoix for as long as I can remember! She came up for skiing every winter for many years. She often wrote about Charlevoix."

Be careful this summer with fireworks, campfires

A Charlevoix firefighter puts out a small brush fire just off Bridge Street. Citizens are reminded they can now access burn permits online for rakings and vegetation burning while doing spring or fall cleanup work on their property at www.michigan.gov/burnpermit.

The Charlevoix Fire Department asks Charlevoixans to be careful with fire.

Every year we look forward to summer vacations, camping, family reunions, picnics, and the Fourth of July. Summertime, however, also brings fires and injuries due to fireworks and outdoor grills. Annually more than 8,000 Americans are injured by fireworks and grill fires. More than half these injuries occur during the first week of July.

FIREWORKS SAFETY

The best way to enjoy fireworks is to visit public fireworks displays put on by professionals who know how to safely handle fireworks.

If you plan to use fireworks, make sure they are legal in your area.

Never light fireworks indoors or near dry grass.

Always have a bucket of water and/or a fire extinguisher nearby. Know how to operate the fire extinguisher properly.

Do not wear loose clothing while using fireworks.

Stand several feet away from lit fireworks. If a device does not go off, do not stand over it to investigate it. Put it out with water and dispose of it.

Always read the directions and warning labels on fireworks. If a device is not marked with the contents, direction and a warning label, do not light it.

Supervise children around fireworks at all times.

BARBECUE SAFETY

Before using a grill, check the connection between the propane tank and the fuel line. Make sure the venturi tubes — where the air and gas mix — are not blocked.

Do not overfill the propane tank.

Do not wear loose clothing while cooking at a barbecue.

Be careful when using lighter fluid. Do not add fluid to an already lit fire because the flames can flashback up into the container and explode.

Keep all matches and lighters away from children. Teach your children to report any loose matches or lighters to an adult immediately. Supervise children around outdoor grills.

Dispose of hot coals properly — douse them with plenty of water, and stir them to ensure that the fire is out. Never place them in plastic, paper or wooden containers.

Never grill/barbecue in enclosed areas — carbon monoxide could be produced.

Make sure everyone knows to Stop, Drop and Roll in case a piece of clothing does catch fire. Call 9-1-1 or your local emergency number if a burn warrants serious medical attention.

CAMPFIRE SAFETY

Build campfires where they will not spread, away from dry grass and leaves.

Keep campfires small, and don't let them get out of hand.

Never leave campfires unattended.

Always be sure your debris fire and/or campfire is completely extinguished before leaving it unattended. Improperly extinguished fires are one of the leading causes of wildfires. They also are a major cause of burns among children. Hundreds of children are burned each year when they fall into or walk over an improperly extinguished fire.

Drown your fire with plenty of water. Wet everything thoroughly, especially the undersides of unburned pieces. Stir the ashes to find any hot spots - you will see and hear steam escape when you find one. Wet everything again with more water.

Do not simply bury your fire with soil. In most cases, this will not extinguish the fire.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

KENT CITY — Emily Heffling and Taylor Storm won the girls' 300-meter hurdles and the long jump, respectively, Saturday in leading the Charlevoix High School girls' track and field team to a sixth-place finish in the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association Division III state meet.

The Charlevoix boys claimed seven top-three finishes in placing third for the second straight year. Williamston won both titles as its boys finished with 1,078.5 points, and its girls' team finished with 1,178.

The meet was comprised of team champions from each of the 10 Division III regional meets. The Michigan High School Athletic Association state meets are Saturday, June 2.

Heffling won the 300 hurdles in 47.94 seconds, while Storm took the long jump with a leap of 14 feet, 11 1/2 inches. It was the second straight year that Heffling has won the 300 hurdles at the MITCA championship meet.

Also for the Rayders, Ashley Pett placed second in the discus. Heffling was also third in the 100 hurdles, Alina Dhaseleer was fifth in the 3200, and Madeline Jeakle placed fifth in the high jump.

The Rayders also had two relay teams, the 3200 and the 1600, place in the top five. Dhaseleer, Lindi Edger, Brittney Lamb and Katie Withrow combined to place fourth in the 3200 relay, while Edger, Lamb, Ellise Smolenyak and Withrow teamed up to place fifth in the 1600 relay.

Darron Munson led the Charlevoix boys with a third-place finish in the long jump and fourths in the 200 and 400. Munson also ran a leg on Charlevoix's 1600 relay team, which placed third. Nate LaBlance, Scott Plude and Billy Roloff joined Munson in the relay.

Plude also placed third in the 300 hurdles, Mitch Crandall was fourth in the high jump, and teammate Jacob Wimmer was fifth in the 1600.

The Rayders' 3200 relay team — Dustin Arp, Jacob Hunt, Roloff and Wimmer — placed third.

COURIER BOOK REVIEWS

Max's Words
by Kate Banks (pre-K – 2) (JE Bank)

Max's brothers love their hobbies collecting things. Benjamin collects stamps and Karl collect coins. So Max decides to collect words. First he cuts out words from the newspaper. Then he finds words that make him feel good and discovers new words in the dictionary. Soon he has enough words to tell a story. Max's brothers join in and the story takes and interesting turn. A fun story that shows the magic of words.

Black? White! Day? Night!
by Laura Vaccaro Seeger (pre-K up) (JE 428.1 Seeg)

Here is a wonderful lift-the-flap discovery book. A black bat on a white background turns into the smile on a silly (white) ghost; a few raindrops turn into a summer shower (many). This book offers a fun introduction to the concept of opposites; but it's the illustrations and surprise discovery that make this interesting to a wide range of readers.

The Secret Science Project That Almost Ate the School
by Judy Sierra (K-4) (JE Sier)

It's science fair project time and in desperation a 3rd grader sends away for "Professor Swami's Super Slime" – guaranteed to win 1st prize. She couldn't resist peeking in the box and the super secret slime gets loose. First it eats her kitty cat and then it ate her sister! Wonderful fun with ooey gooey slime pictures and the explosive "ee-uww!" ending. This is great, rhyming read-aloud.

Michigan Officeways expands

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Michigan Officeways has been helping Charlevoix businesses succeed for 23 years.

Now, as a result of new ownership and great customer service, the company has moved to a bigger location.

"At this location there's a certain amount of exposure, but we really needed the space," said co-owner Dave Kurchinski.

Its location is at the Glen's Plaza on the corner of U.S. 31 and M-66 between Dollar General and Barb's Hallmark.

In the last three years, Michigan Officeways has experienced 700 percent growth, which Kurchinski attributes to being the only locally owned and operated office supplier in the area servicing both Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Its location is at the Glen's Plaza on the corner of U.S. 31 and M-66 between Dollar General and Barb's Hallmark.

They also handle all domestic accounts for East Jordan Iron Works, which has locations all over the United States.

Joanne Hawkins, director of materials management for Charlevoix Area Hospital, said that the company has alleviated ergonomic issues for both staff and patients.

"With their help, we've been addressing how to adapt built-in desks for what is best for the employee," she said.

She said Michigan Officeways has also helped make modifications to clinic chairs so that a chair is not too difficult for a patient to get out of by being too low.

East Jordan Iron Works purchaser Wendy Burneel said the relationship with Michigan Officeways started with co-owner Pat Price, when he purchased the company five years ago.

"Pat has always served us very well, it's been a good partnership," Burneel said. "He also has a good staff backing him up."

The company also has locations in Charlevoix, Petoskey, Gaylord, Alpena and Cheboygan. Their address is 135 Captains Corner M-66 Highway in Charlevoix.

Soccer team advances

The Rayders girls' soccer team advanced to the district semifinal with a win over the Upper Peninsula Red Devils from Ironwood.

"Although Charlevoix controlled play and outshot the Devils 9-4 in the first half, it wasn't until midway through the period that KC McCary put the Rayders on the board with a sharp volley from a corner kick sent by Meridith Rich," said assistant coach Tom Conlan.

He added, "A few moments later, Rich sent another corner across which rebounded from Lori Zimmerman and was sent home by Becca Madison. The Rich to McCary combination struck again on a corner when KC sent the first touch on the net, an Ironwood defender blocked it back to McCary and she buried the rebound into the net."

Charlevoix went up 4-0 just before the half when Madison connected on a direct kick opportunity 20 yards out from the right side.

Play slowed down in the second half as both teams were affected by the humidity. The Rayders scored the final goal of the night when freshman Madison Way sent a cross in front of the net where Marnie Greene sent it home on the one touch.

Tammy Potter played well in goal, stopping nine opportunities to earn the shutout. Older sister Teresa Potter combined with Emily Foster to provide defensive support to the keeper throughout the match.

Charlevoix advanced to play Burt Lake at Charlevoix followed by the second semi-final, a match between Boyne City and Harbor Springs.

On May 25, the Rayders beat Suttons Bay 3-1 after Madison put Charlevoix on the board with a corner kick by Rich.

"Suttons Bay tied it up shortly thereafter on a nice shot by Alyssa Korson who got free on the left flank," Conlan said. "After the intermission, the Rayders took the lead for good when Olivia Catt sent a cross from the right wing to the far post where freshman Caroline Dupuis sent the ball home on a volley off her body. Charlevoix iced the match on a corner opportunity when Rich scored directly through a defensive miss."

He added, "Charlevoix played well under difficult field conditions. Suttons Bay provided a testing opponent in the regular season final going into the district matches. Freshman Madison Way earned the Rayders' Player of the Game award for strong play at midfield."

The Rayders ended the regular season at 16-1 overall.

Prior to play against Suttons Bay, the girls made it a three-peat.

Madison's goal with 12 minutes left in regulation broke a 1-1 tie and Charlevoix went on to post a 3-1 victory over the Traverse City Liberty and wrap up the Lake Michigan Conference girls' soccer championship.

"It is the third straight league title for Charlevoix, which was a perfect 13-0 in the conference, 14-1 overall, and ranked eighth in the Division IV state coaches poll," Conlan said.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Baseball team ending season on high note

Despite some proverbial bumps in the road, the Charlevoix varsity baseball team presses on.

"It was a good week for us, with the exception of a tough loss in the second game at Grayling," said coach Alan Telgenhof. "We have some good momentum headed into the districts next weekend. Chris Waha continues to dominate on the mound and at the plate. Clayton Mitchell has been a great addition to the team since coming up from the junior varsity team. Cliff Jones is closing in on a school record for most runs scored in a season and has probably been our most consistent player in the field and at the plate this season."

Charlevoix beat Grayling 12-0 with a five-inning mercy rule in play.

Cliff Jones had three hits, two stolen bases and one RBI. Clayton Mitchell had two hits and two runs. Chris Waha had two hits, two runs and two RBI. Michael Heckendorn had two hits, two runs and two RBI. Zach Scharenbroch had two hits and two RBI. J.D. Speigl and a solo home run and Jon Putman had the other hit.

Waha had a five-inning complete game with zero runs, three hits, one walk and eight strikeouts.

In game two, Grayling bested Charlevoix 9-7.

"We trailed 5-1, scored six in the fourth to take a 7-5 lead, but Grayling scored one in the bottom of the fourth and three in the fifth to win it," Telgenhof said. "They scored their last three runs on two Charlevoix errors."

Jon Putman had two hits, Clayton Mitchell had a two-run single and Heckendorn, Speigl and Scharenbroch each had other hits.

In action against Leland, Charlevoix won 10-5.

Cliff Jones singled and hit an inside the park homer while Chris Waha doubled, Zach Scharenbroch had a two-run single and Clayton Mitchell had a three-run double.

Other hits were made by Nic Williams, Mike Kras and J.D. Speigl.

Putman was the winning pitcher with six innings pitched for three hits, five runs, one earned run, one walk and seven strikeouts.

Charlevoix also lambasted Leland in game two with a score of 14-2 with the five-inning mercy rule in play.

Travis Jakeway had two hits and three RBI with Mitchell having each a single and double and two runs, Waha with a two-run single, Speigl had a RBI single, Andrew Largent and Ty Telgenhof each had a two-run double.

Cliff Jones was the winning pitcher after five innings with four hits, two runs, two walks and seven strikeouts.

In competition with Bellaire, Charlevoix once again won the day with a score of 10-1.

"We scored four in the fifth (and) three in the sixth to break open a 3-1 game," Telgenhof said.

Waha had two hits, two runs and two RBI while Heckendorn had two hits including a double and two runs. Jakeway had a single and two RBI.

Other hits were made by Mitchell, Putman, Speigl, Scharenbroch, and Williams.

Waha, the winning pitcher, had six innings for three hits, one run, zero walks and 12 strikeouts.

Charlevoix beat Bellaire in game two with a score of 11-4.

"(We) jumped out to a 7-0 lead after batting in fourth and held on," Telgenhof said.

Putman had two hits including a double and four RBI. Heckendorn had two hits and a run. Speigl had two hits and two runs. R.J. Moore and Mitchell each had two hits.

Other hits were made by Waha and Kras.

Ty Telgenhof was the winning pitcher with six innings for six hits, three runs, one walk and nine strikeouts.

"We are 20-12-1 overall," coach Telgenhof said. "(We) finished 8-5-1 in the conference and tied for second."

The winner from district play on Saturday, June 2, at Mancelona against Boyne City will play the winner of the Mancelona-East Jordan game which follows the Rayders play.

"Chris Waha set a new school record for most strikeouts by a pitcher with 100. We set a new team record for strikeouts by our pitchers with 228," Telgenhof said. "Our team set a new school record for runs scored in a season with 238. We have won 20 games which is the most wins since 1982. The school record is 23."

As a longtime Northern Michigan resident, Janik said, "I know the area, the region and I know most of the local superintendents. I feel I can come in and start working from day one. There will not be a steep learning curve."

If all goes well with contract negotiations, Janik said his first move will be to meet with parents, community leaders and educators to develop a long-term vision plan.

"I think it is critical, especially with the tough economic times and new curriculum requirements, that everyone is united," he said. "When everyone is on the same path, that is when success is had."

Janik has been the superintendent of Buckley Community Schools since 2004 and was previously coordinator of special projects with the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District. Before that he was director of college outreach with Northwestern Michigan College for 21 years.

Janik is married with three children.

While he has been a successful educator, even spending 10 years as a fund-raiser, Janik is no stranger to adversity.

"I was born in Poland and I moved when I was almost 5. I did not speak a word of English," he said. "I think it has helped me relate to people in their struggles, because I remember as a kid coming to kindergarten (in America) and not speaking a word of English and feeling left out."

He added, "My parents never went beyond elementary school because of World War II, so education has always been a high priority for my family, because my parents never had that opportunity."

Aside from experience in long-term planning for the schools, Janik has also been employed as an outside consultant and worked to set up endowment funds to help schools pay for programs which increasingly tightening budgets may not allow.

"I hope to expand those type of opportunities into Charlevoix," he said. "I'm really looking forward to working with the community, parents and getting to know Charlevoix."

He added, "I am looking forward to the challenge."

While Spencley could not go into specifics on Janik's contract offer, he said Janik sees himself as superintendent of Charlevoix Schools for the next five to 10 years.

"This is the only job he applied for. He did not apply to any other schools," he said. "This is the one he wanted."

Of contract negotiations, Trubilowicz said. "It's not a done deal, but a significant step forward," and the salary and benefits package offered to Janik will likely be, "comparable to what the other districts around here offered to their superintendents."

Spencley said if Janik accepts the offer, Charlevoix citizens can look forward to a man dedicated to openness and honesty.

"He comes across as very approachable. He will be out in the community and he lays everything on the table on what needs to be done," he said. "I think he's very forthright and will make some hard decisions understandable to the community."

While the board members are anxious to secure a long-term superintendent, the selection process, Spencley said, was in no way a rushed job.

"We went through and did our homework on this search. We had a lot of good candidates brought in front of us and I think we picked a great superintendent," he said. "We had three forums: One for the community, one for teachers and one for support staff and (representatives of the Char-Em ISD) made up a list what these people wanted in a superintendent, and I think we took that list and stuck with that list and remained as close to those (wishes) as we could get."

LETTERS to the editor

WHO'S AUTHORIZING ATTORNEY'S EFFORTS?

Editor:

At the Norwood Township Board meeting on May 21, 2007, I asked the following questions under public comment:

Is the Norwood Township Board aware of the fact that its attorney, John R. Turner, missed the date to file objections on behalf of Norwood Township, its supervisor Wayne Wynkoop, its board of trustees, its zoning board of appeals, and zoning administrator Jonathan Scheel to orders NTCHS presented to Judge Thomas Power for signature. The county clerk rejected Turner's objections because he missed the March 20, 2007, deadline for filing.

Who authorized Mr. Turner to object? If he was authorized to object, at what meeting was this discussed and acted upon? How much was the township charged for his work on this delinquent pleading? Did the township pay Mr. Turner for this work?

On May 2, 2007, Norwood Township attorney, John R. Turner, on behalf of Norwood Township, its supervisor Wayne Wynkoop, its board of Trustees, its zoning board of appeals, and zoning administrator Jonathan Scheel, filed an appearance with the Michigan Court of Appeals, on appeal of Judge Power's decision.

I would like answers to the following questions:

Who authorized Mr. Turner to file an appearance in the appeal? If he was authorized to file it, at what meeting was this discussed and acted upon?

How much was the township billed in legal fees for preparing and filing the appearance in the appeal? When was each member of the board advised of the filing? Was Mr. Turner authorized to prepare and file a brief and attend the hearings? What was the estimate of legal fees for this?

These questions were not answered on May 21, 2007. I was advised that public comment was only for the expression of public comments. Questions must be written and will be addressed under correspondence on the agenda. I am now sending these questions to be addressed at the June 18, 2007, meeting.

New mortgage lenders for Charlevoix's homeowners

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix residents Brian May and Jason Murray are two of the city's new mortgage financial consultants, ready to help with Charlevoix's mortgage needs.

"We're the go-to guys," Murray said.

May added, "Either come to us or go to a bank who has a guy like us and is going to charge you a point more."

Murray said what distinguishes them and their employer, Rockford Mortgage Funding, from other mortgage consultants is that they personalize the loan for every customer.

"We make it a point to cater the loan to the customer rather than trying to change the customer to fit the loan we have," Murray said.

Both men network in the community to find out which loans would best suit the citizens of Charlevoix and to increase their customer pool.

"Networking is key," Murray said. "We're trying to get the company's name out there."

May and Murray started working with Eric Arlt who was interested in starting a mortgage company in Charlevoix. From there, Greg White and Fred Ludwig, previously of the Rockford branch in Bay Harbor, joined forces with Arlt, May and Murray to develop a Charlevoix mortgage consulting team for the company. White and Ludwig, who have been in the business for 30 years, are mentors to May and Murray.

"Our goal is to succeed," May said.

Both May and Murray said they want to stay with the company for the long term and stay in Charlevoix.

"We very much like Charlevoix, we were born and bred here," said Murray.

Both May and Murray graduated from Charlevoix High School.

After graduation, May received stock brokerage training before becoming a consultant.

Murray also worked as a stock brokerage trainee for six months, then worked for timeshare company Blue Green Vacation Club for two years before becoming a consultant.

May and Murray said what they like best about their positions is that they can help people afford a place to live.

"You're helping people accomplish their dream and it's rewarding to have people say 'thank-you,'" Murray said.

May said Rockford offers a free consultation for anyone interested in obtaining or refinancing their current mortgage.

The company's new location is at 206 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix just south of the bridge and above the Woolly Bugger coffee shop.

Ragamuffins hosting benefit

Ragamuffin Theatre & Company invites you to a special benefit production for Kimberly Isaac and family on Saturday, June 9. Audience members will be treated to "Prince of Egypt," a colorful and full-scale musical drama featuring exciting and original dance pieces, inspiring music and rich dialogue. The 35-member cast, representing various communities, will perform both Saturday and Sunday evenings at the First Baptist sports complex in Charlevoix before taking the show on the road for a second performance at the Big Ticket Festival in Gaylord on June 22 and 23.

"We wanted to do something big to help Kimberly Isaac, who many of you know has cancer," said director Kathleen Whittaker. "Our theater company is all about making a difference in this world, and here was a need right in our own backyard, a chance for us to reach out to our neighbor and offer encouragement and support."

An opportunity will be given for those wanting to help the Isaac family with much needed financial reprieve during both nights of the production. People can write checks directly to the Isaacs or, if needing a tax-deductible receipt, can funnel their contributions through the First Baptist Church earmarked for the Isaacs. Ragamuffin Theatre is not charging an admission fee for this production and the First Baptist church has graciously donated their facility free of charge so that Kim and her family can receive a much needed financial blessing. "Wouldn't we all want that kind of help in a time of crisis?" said Whittaker. Freedom House Ministries has volunteered to host Saturday evening's performance by providing coffee, punch and cookies. The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday and 7 p.m. on Sunday.

'Green' college idea promoted

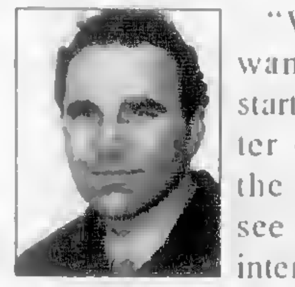
BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Can you imagine a college focused on environmental science studies with a campus in downtown Charlevoix? Larry Smith of Green Starts Small can.

According to Smith, an IBM software engineer and former and recent resident of Charlevoix, the idea of an environmental sciences or "green" college is still just that.

"We do want to get feedback from people and most people think it is a good idea to have a college in the old (Charlevoix Public Library), for example. That would be one place to do it," Smith said. "There would be some work to be done to do that and we would be talking about more or less an extension and some Web-based curriculum."

While Smith emphasized his idea is still in the exploratory phase, Green Starts Small's wish list includes piquing the interest of an esteemed college such as a Stanford, Harvard or Yale and enough benefactors to finance the proposal.



Smith

"We really want to try to start at the better colleges in the world and see if they are interested in expanding in this area," he said. "A few people I have talked to have had doubts and questions on how it could come about, but I think good ideas come about when enough people put enough energy into the idea."

He added, "Right now we're working to put in place the infrastructure to let people collaborate to make this happen. We will see what kind of interest we can generate and work our way from there."

Classes could include applied engineering courses such as learning how to solve engineering problems routine with farming, studying climate

Taste of Charlevoix is Saturday

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

The 4th annual Taste of Charlevoix will be held 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, June 16, in downtown.

This year the event will be in conjunction with the Run Charlevoix, a 5K walk/run and 10K run that starts at 7 a.m. on Bridge Street, just north of the bridge.

Instead of the usual East Park location, the Taste of Charlevoix will take place just west of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason Street.

Chamber of commerce president Jacqueline Merta said the event increases the restaurant exposure to Charlevoix's newcomers and helps increase June business.

"June is the shoulder season in Charlevoix," said Merta. The shoulder season is one of two seasons in Charlevoix when some children are still in school but "empty-nesters" are visiting. Business is neither very high or very low.

County sued over jail air complaints

BY FRED GRAY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County jail administrator Babette Meggison has filed a whistleblower suit against the county and five of its officials, alleging that she had been the subject of discrimination and/or retaliation, in violation of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, for complaining about the quality of air in the jail for years.

Meggison, an employee of the county for more than 18 years, the last 10 as jail administrator, claimed that she, jail staff and inmates had "begun to develop" respiratory and other illnesses following renovations to the jail in 2001.

Three different aspects to green college

change on the Great Lakes and studies on cultural changes which would need to be made in order to get people thinking about creating environmentally sustainable products locally as opposed to importing them.

Green Starts Small is a group of people working to create environmental solutions.

"We create solutions which improve every facet of our lives, including transit reduction, food chain transformation and carbon signature optimization. We deploy solutions which are designed to provide meaningful employment while revitalizing communities by converting underutilized industrial capacity to new uses," as stated on www.greenstartssmall.org. "We empower industries by maintaining a value network creating sustainable environmental solutions. We build profitable value networks which emphasize agile planning, service-oriented organizations, and open collaboration that return equitable benefit to all contributors."

There are three different aspects to the concept of a Green Starts Small project.

"One is bringing in an educational institution. Two is an aspect that is more of a nonprofit where the college facility would be used to provide local children with education and destinations for field trips," Smith said. "Three is an aspect that is more an industrial collaboration community where we try to build a value chain of local companies in the region that are interested in providing services for environmental solutions and building an infrastructure to more easily help them find those resources."

Another example of utilizing Charlevoix's assets for environmental and economical reasons, Smith said, would be to turn an unused industrial facility into a commercial fish farm where tilapia, cod or other consumable fishes could be raised and sold both locally and across the country.

Smith would not speculate on a price tag for this business plan, but said, "every normal cost: staffing, facilities, marketing, development of a curriculum" would come into play.

Some other financial advantages to the community, Smith said, could include an increase in spending on the shoulder and winter months resulting from an influx of college students and the potential for environmentally-friendly or green companies attracted to an area with a college focusing on environmental science.

"People have talked about different things going on in the area (like) windmills, people have talked about making the bridge energy neutral by putting generators in the channel," he said. "And instead of just doing that, build a generator factory locally to have a local industry to build micro generators for sale to other areas."

"If (people) have a good idea, send it our way and we'll try to incorporate it in the grand plan," he said.

If a college was located in Charlevoix, Smith said classes would likely begin with a partial curriculum depending on what the institution would want.

"There are a lot of questions to answer," he said.

Originally from California, Smith has been an environmentalist since he was a child.

"I have always talked about ways of preserving the environment and when I saw underutilized potential in Charlevoix, I thought maybe I could fill that with a college type of solution," he said.

Smith will attend the 10 a.m.-4 p.m., June 30 Conservation and Renewable Energy (CARE) fair and looks forward to discussing any ideas people have on the green college idea.

Roughing it? Not this boy

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

If my wife and kids could spend the entire summer 'round a campfire or biking through the wilderness, they'd do it. Not to say I loathe flies in the food, sand in every crevice and giving blood to nature's littlest vampire, but a couple days in god's country and I'm an itchy, chafed, nervous wreck.

So when the wife spotted an RV for sale on the roadside, I had to investigate. After all, it's not as if I have a choice not to take the family camping, and the wife is certainly sick of pulling up stakes at 2 a.m. because my sobbing is keeping her awake.

The 18-foot 1983 Transmaster by Georgie-Boy had it all: Bathroom, kitchen and beds for four, not to mention a bargain price by anyone's standard.

You outdoor purists may scold my lack of frontier spirit, but if you knew of my days "roughin' it," you might not be so quick to condemn the purchase.

Believe it or not, there was a time when I wasn't a full-blown pansy. And while I'd like to regale you with tales of father and son hikes through Yellowstone or family excursions to Tahquamenon Falls, the only camping we ever did as a family was the summer of 1986 after we were booted from our trailer home in Linwood.

The six of us took up residence at the Bay City State Park in a World War II era tent the size of a walk-in closet which smelled vaguely of old mushrooms and wet dog.

The highlight of eating Hamburger Helper by firelight was tempered by being forced to stay in the sweltering canvas coffin while the parents worked, a move done in hopes of staving suspicion from park rangers that four young children were unattended 40-plus hours a week — camping because you have to is roughing it.

I wouldn't camp again until I was 16 years old when my friends found "Beer Fest," a small chunk of state land a stone's throw from the Rifle River in Rose City.

Several times a year, for the next decade or so, we would scrape together enough money for booze and cigarettes and pilfer whatever food we could from our homes — I remember once taking only the clothes on my back, a five-pound bag of potatoes and a bread bag full of well-past-the-expiration-date sausage.

There were no sleeping bags, no pillows, no toilet paper, and after a night of hard drinking, fighting and consuming too much undercooked and possibly rancid pork, my compatriots and I would pass out in the dirt next to the fire at sunrise.

When you can wake up covered in blood, mud and vomit only to do it all over again, you're roughing it.

Then Otis, a man twice our tender age, drove up to our campsite, parked and proceeded to fall out of his car. He bought us whiskey and shared his contraband in return for some company.

Poor Otis was roughing it when he fell in the fire — I can still hear the howling and smell the burning hair, but that didn't stop him from partying on.

He was really roughing it when he dove nose-first onto our chopping block. Until then, I had never seen that much blood come from anything that wasn't going to die. We wrapped Otis' face in my best friend's new Guess sweatshirt and rushed the dazed drunkard to his residence in his in-law's basement.

Otis' wife just shook her head and helped her man to bed. Being married to Otis, now that's roughing it.

Roughing it nowadays is running low on s'more fixings or trying to use Georgie-Boy's bathroom, an operation akin to performing deep-knee bends in a pantry.

Between avoiding the sting-happy bees and man-eating Michigan grizzlies, I feel I've paid my dues.

So the next time you see a guy in a modern-day prairie schooner hauling a canoe, an SUV and a half-dozen mountain bikes, do not judge him a tenderfoot too quickly, for he too may know the perils of camping.

Pollen is more complicated than allergies

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knulson

We are about to be deluged with the pollen of pines and other cone-bearing trees. Maybe it is time for a brief essay on pollen and what it is about. It we listen to television commercials from pharmaceutical companies, it is likely we will conclude that pollen is a bad thing. We all know it produces allergy symptoms in allergic people. And of course there are medications that we can take that will protect us from pollen. As is almost always true about any part of the natural world, the real story is a lot more complicated than our television might suggest.

If you have access to a microscope, each grain of pine pollen looks remarkably like a tiny head of Mickey Mouse, with two balloon-like ears and a smiley face. Pollen grains from different plants are almost as unique as fingerprints, and it is possible to determine what sort of forest was in an area 10,000 years ago by examining preserved pollen in the bottom of old lakes.

Pollen is an important part of how plants manage to have sex without moving much. Pollen carries what might best be described as the male essence. It must somehow get to the more female parts of the plants before seeds can be produced. In the earliest history of land plants, all pollen was carried from where it was produced to where it was effective by agency of wind. Our more primitive plants, like the cone-bearing pines, spruces and firs, still get pollinated by the agency of wind. What that means is that in order to be effectively pollinated, they must produce prodigious amounts of pollen. Which explains the thick film of yellowish dust on your car, deck and swimming pool. The amount of pollen from a single large pine tree amounts to quarts, if not gallons of volume. You need not be near a pine tree to notice its pollen. Pollen can easily travel up to 30 miles on a gentle breeze.

Should we be concerned about all that pollen? The short answer is no. Any allergy associated with the pollen of pines and their relatives is so rare as to be of no concern. Other trees that utilize wind-blown pollen can be difficult for the allergy prone person. Elm pollen causes me about a week of stuffy nose in early spring, and other common trees have a similar capacity. It may not be what we think of as a spring cold. It may be the pollen of oaks, maples, beeches or birch trees. They all bloom and pollinate in just a few days in spring.

A small number of pollen producing plants can blanket a large area with enough pollen to assure reproduction for the plant, and gather our attention. Pollen has been found in the air at 50,000 feet altitude. That means it can travel at least 10 miles in any direction.

Fortunately for our comfort and ease of mind, most of the world's half million kinds of plants do not just allow pollen to blow around. Plants have managed to get bees, birds, bats, moths, butterflies and even marsupials and mosquitoes to carry pollen from one plant to another. None of those creatures seem to suffer any allergic effects from their exposure and we benefit greatly by not having thousands of kinds of pollen blowing around.

LETTERS to the editor

TV IS TOO OUTRAGEOUS

Editor:

In my opinion television is full of deplorable, shocking and outrageous images that children shouldn't see. To support my statement I will first talk briefly about how violence can affect children.

Violence is a huge issue in our world today. When children see or hear violent words or actions, they usually put that into their own lives ... whether you know it or not. For example, I have a 2-year-old brother, Trevor, who acts out what he sees now. So what will he do if he's exposed to violence in his future years? Here's a quick fact, by age 18 the average American witnesses 200,000 violent acts from TV.

Another reason to support my opinion is that there are more useful things to do. A fact that is interesting is that in a year a typical kid spends 900 hours in school and 1,023 hours in front of the television. Here's something else to think about, since TV is entertaining it normally attracts snacking which can lead to young age obesity. As a Christian I believe that, as it says in Philippians 4:8, you should do what it true, noble, pure, right, admirable and lovely. In my opinion I don't think that watching inappropriate television meets any of those expectations.

My last reason for thinking that most television is bad is because of the inducement it has on us children. If, for example, you allow your children to watch PG-13 movies at a too young of age, soon they'll look for something more "cool" because the other rated movies are too "boring."

I also know from past experience that the influence of television doesn't affect just your children, but others, too. If kids watch images of kidnapping or murdering, they normally become more fearful of the outside world and less sensitive towards others.

I know, from being a sixth-grade student myself, that every day children face temptation from friends, television and even the public. I hope that this encourages you to consider what your children really see on television.

CLEANUP EARLY THIS YEAR IN TOWNSHIP?

Editor:

Perhaps someone thought it was an unwanted item since Charlevoix Township's south side annual trash pickup was scheduled for May 22.

On the Saturday just prior to the planned pickup day, our steel trash receptacle was taken. For the past 12 years this heavy canister has set at roadside next to the post with our house numbers. With its attached lid, it was an ideal container for our Wednesday morning service. More importantly, it was an item of my grandfather's.

Because of this item's sentimental value, I would greatly appreciate its return with no questions asked. Also, because it was my granddad's, I am offering a reward to anyone who can bring this about.

Thank you,
Ken Balch

WE NEED YARN SHOP...

Editor,

I love to make afghans and buy a lot of yarn, but I cannot get it here in Charlevoix. I do wish I could also buy material in a store here, too.

Maybe someone will open a store here, I hope so.

... AND QUILT MATERIALS

Editor,

I am a quilter and use a lot of material and batting in making quilts. I heard Wal-Mart is not going to have material next year. I know I am not alone in Charlevoix wanting to have a JoAnn's or any other material store here. Maybe someone will. I need yarn also.

PLEASE, USE SEAT BELTS

Editor:

About 600,000 Michigan citizens put their lives at risk each year by not taking a few seconds to simply buckle up when they get into a vehicle. The advantage of using a safety belt is clear, it's a life-saving device that increases a motorist's chance of surviving a crash by 50 percent.

After last May's Buckle Up or Pay Up, Click It or Ticket mobilization, the state's safety belt use rate reached its highest number yet, 94.3 percent. It has propelled Michigan to a ranking a second in the nation in safety belt use and decreased fatalities to levels last seen in 1945.

Our goal is to increase safety belt use rather than write citations, because every time the state's use rate goes up lives are saved and injuries are prevented. Last year, Michigan's 94.3 percent safety belt use rate contributed to a 4 percent decrease in traffic fatalities and a 9 percent decline in injuries.

So buckle up, every trip, every time. It's the best way to avoid a safety belt citation, as well as serious injuries or even death.

POLLEN

How important are those animal pollinators? So important that the current mysterious disappearance of bees from their hives is producing a near panic in some agricultural quarters. Wheat, corn, rice and other vital crops are pollinated by the faithful wind. But a few crops like alfalfa, almonds and some others depend completely on bees. Knowing something about plants and pollination could even be important for our legislators. I sometimes wonder how many of them ever studied botany? Maybe it should be a requirement.

Local teacher named a 'Who's Who' in education

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Gary Stutzman (right), co-administrator of Northwest Academy school of Charlevoix, poses with teacher Gerry Sciacca, one of 155,000 educators recently named a Who's Who Among America's teachers.

A local Charlevoix educator recently received the Who's Who Among America's Teachers Award and will be featured among 155,000 teachers in the Who's Who Among America's Teachers publication.

For Northwest Academy's sixth- and seventh-grade teacher Gerry Sciacca, her job is about enhancing individual ability and recognizing each student's level of skill, not winning awards.

"To be a good educator, you need to help the students grow while realizing that not everyone is in the same place," Sciacca said.

She said standardized testing makes this all the more difficult.

"The emphasis on MEAP is very harmful to education," Sciacca said. "MEAP pigeonholes kids. I do not believe in it."

Recipients are nominated for the award by one or more of their current or former students that have been listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Sciacca teaches her students reading, writing, mathematics and social studies at the charter school in downtown Charlevoix which serves grades kindergarten through 12.

She said her biggest challenge in teaching is getting her students to realize their self-worth.

"I want the kids to think they're awesome," Sciacca said. "I want them to have more confidence when they leave the class and that's just as important as reading, and math, it's everything."

Sciacca was nominated by a former student, a young man, who wished to remain anonymous.

"It's very exciting and humbling," she said of the award.

After spending 10 years as a public school teacher in Saginaw, Sciacca moved to northern Michigan and began teaching at Concord Academy in Petoskey.

She enjoyed the charter school environment offered at Concord and stayed there for seven years. But when her classes started reaching 25 students, she left Petoskey to teach at Northwest Academy, preferring the small classroom setting.

Her current experience she compares to the one-room schools of the 19th century in that there is more personal interaction between younger and older students.

"Older kids rise to the occasion and help the younger ones," Sciacca said. "It's wonderful to see that."

This summer Sciacca will continue to tutor children with attention deficit disorder and dyslexia and waitress at Terry's Place restaurant.

New store 'Ga Ga' for kids

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

When Jodi Bingham decided to return to her hometown, she wanted to own the only clothing store in Charlevoix just for children.

So she opened Ga Ga for Kids on 323 Bridge St. downtown between The Rocking Horse Toy Company and Celeste Murdick's Fudge.

"It was needed," said Bingham. "This was the market. Everyone was asking for it."

Ga Ga for Kids features clothes and accessories for infants to children age 7 in a variety of bright colors and patterns.

"It's a little bit fashion forward without going too far traditional," Bingham said.

Displayed throughout the store are oversized piggy banks in pastels and white polka dots for $42 made by Elegant Baby. The banks are large but not heavy and Bingham said they are a good seller.

She said her Zutano mix-and-match clothing line is very popular and reasonably priced. Prices range from $14-24 per clothing item. Another popular clothing line is 'Baby's Own," made of 100 percent cotton. The line offers pajamas for $12 and sets of four onesies for $19.

Clothing made for boys includes Skye Hoppus' "Childish" line, featuring a set of lined surf shorts and matching T-shirts for $72.

Bingham said she is enthusiastic to serve those who are looking for gifts or baby shower items.

"If you come in and need a gift, tell us how much you want to spend and we'll find something nice for you," she said.

She provides small cards and gift-wrapping as well.

Some of her specialty items are meant for those with visiting grandchildren, such as her "Baby on the Go" kits. Baby on the Go, also made by Elegant Baby, is a bag with a sippy cup, Tupperware container and plastic spoons in matching colors for grandparents to keep at their house when a baby comes to visit.

A fun item made for older grandchildren is "My Grandpa's Briefcase," a kit that contains games, crossword puzzles and books.

Not only has Bingham spent a lot of time considering the items in her store, she has also spent a lot of time making it a welcoming space.

She brightened the interior by painting the walls and woodwork white and transforming the alcoves built in the walls into display cases for the accessories.

Pastel butterflies dot the walls and ceiling throughout the store, advertising the removable wall art she sells.

"The bones were here, the structure just needed TLC," she said.

Her background in photography, she said, lends ideas to the look and colors in the store.

"I was looking at the color wheel to figure out colors for the clothes," Bingham said.

She said she's also really excited to be involved in Charlevoix's business community, serving on the city's retail committee.

"I'm excited to see where Charlevoix is going," she said.

Bingham received a degree in photography from Northern Michigan University.

Her retail background includes work at J. Phillips of Charlevoix during her high school and college years and operating a J. Phillips store in Vail, Colo., for four years before returning to Charlevoix.

"It's been a lot of fun. I really enjoy kids clothing," Bingham said. "I feel I could do this forever."

Ga Ga is currently open 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Store hours will be 9:30 a.m.-8 p.m. on weekdays and 9:30 a.m.-10 p.m. on weekends beginning June 17.

OBITUARIES

Irene Mae Supernaw: Dec. 6, 1910-June 3, 2007

Irene Mae Supernaw was born Irene Mae Martin at home on the family farm on December 6, 1910. Martin Road, on the north side of town, runs through where the original Martin farmhouse sat. Irene said, "When my Dad built the house, he bought the property from his mother for 50 cents an acre."

Irene was the second oldest of 11 Martin children; her sister, Fran Martin, was the oldest.

Irene attended St. Mary's Catholic School in her elementary years and the North Side School, which was across from the existing Don's IGA, for junior high and the original Charlevoix High School, which was downtown.

In high school, Irene worked in the newsstand at The Inn Hotel, which was on the north side of town at the end of Dixon Avenue. In 1936, Irene married Rex Supernaw at St. Mary's Catholic Church. Shortly after that, Rex took a job as a metallurgist with National Twist Drill & Tool Company which was located in Detroit on Grand Boulevard.

Rex and Irene lived in Highland Park until 1944, when they moved to Franklin, Mass. It was there that their first child was born. When Marie was 14 months old, they moved to Rochester. In 1950, their second daughter, Martha, was born.

Irene was very active in St. Andrews Catholic Church in Rochester. She was in the Altar Society, headed up the Confraternity of Christian Mothers, volunteered numerous hours at St. Andrews Catholic School and orchestrated numerous roast beef dinners as fundraisers for the church.

When Rex retired in 1975, Irene and Rex moved back to Charlevoix, where she and Rex lived, until he passed away on June 25, 2001. Recently, Irene had been living with her daughter, Martha, in Royal Oak.

"See, I finally got it on paper, before I passed away!" (Written January 14, 2007 by Irene Supernaw).

Irene passed away Sunday, June 3, at her daughter's home in Royal Oak.

She is survived by her daughters, Marie (Rich) Johnston, and Martha Meyer; grandchildren, Mike (Wendy) Voccia, Jimmy Meyer, Kara Meyer, Ann Johnston; great-grandchildren, Carrissa Michael, Michelle Voccia, Christian Meyer, Angelica Meyer; sister, Sara (Lloyd) Cummings; brother, Phil Martin.

Her funeral was on June 9 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix with the Reverend James K. Gardiner officiating. Interment took place in Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Keep summer fun on the water with boating safety

To maximize the enjoyment of boats, Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land and boating industry representatives are encouraging watercraft owners to think safety first when on the water.

"One of the simplest things boaters can do to ensure their safety is to wear a life jacket," said Land, who oversees the state's nearly 953,000 watercraft registrations. "Drowning accounts for about 70 percent of all boating fatalities. Wearing a life jacket can be the difference between life and death."

Van Snider, Michigan Boating Industries Association president, added that there are several resources available to watercraft owners to help them better prepare for a safe boating season.

"Enrolling in a boating safety course is probably the most important step you can take to protect yourself and your boat," Snider said. "You'll learn the skills necessary to be a safe and knowledgeable boater. Courses are available through the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, some county sheriff's offices, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadron. Boat dealerships, marinas, community schools and colleges also offer instruction."

Residents interested in taking a boating safety course should check with the following sources for more information: U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary at http://nws.cgaux.org/, (800) 336-BOAT for the BoatU.S. boating safety course hot line), U.S. Power Squadron at www.usps.org/, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources at www.michigan.gov/dnr and county sheriff's office.

With the popularity of personal watercraft on Michigan waters, Land added that operators must carry their boating safety certificate and display it if asked by a peace officer. To operate a personal watercraft in Michigan the following requirements apply: Anyone born after Dec. 31, 1978, cannot operate a personal watercraft unless they obtain a boating safety certificate. You must be at least 14 years to operate a personal watercraft. Children ages 12 and 13 may operate a personal watercraft if they are accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. The child and adult both must have a boating safety certificate. The personal watercraft must also be equipped with a lanyard-type engine cutoff switch that is attached to the adult.

The Department of State provides a safe boating booklet through its branch offices. The guide is free and has information about boating basics, laws and safety.

Be careful with trampolines

Nationally, upwards of 200,000 children are treated in emergency departments as a result of trampoline injuries.

Following are some facts about trampoline injuries:

— Most kids injured on trampolines are between the ages of 6-15.

— Most trampoline injuries and deaths are caused by: Colliding with another person while jumping; landing improperly while jumping or doing stunts; falling or jumping off.

— Almost 75 percent of injuries result when more than one person is on the trampoline.

— When two people are using the trampoline, the person weighing less is five times more likely to be injured than the heavier person.

— More than 50 percent of trampoline injuries happen under direct adult supervision.

John McNabb of Charlevoix nabbed the piece of art for $200. Proceeds from the auction went to help defray trout tournament costs. THANK YOU FROM KIDS CORNER

Editor:

Twenty-five plus years ago Phyllis Hess and Mary Lou Norton started up Kid's Corner Preschool, offering a unique program in which parents could learn along with their children while they participated in a co-op.

Now with the changing needs of the Charlevoix community, it has become apparent that we must close our doors at this time.

With a co-op situation and being non-profit, parents are required to spend many hours to make the school function involving board meetings, fundraisers, being parent helpers, as well as maintaining their own work schedules and families.

Many families have been involved over the years.

I have had the opportunity to work with the following persons and would like to say thank you to them for their special talents and efforts:

Levi Carson, Kenzi Cunningham, Brandon Fels, Tabin Filizetti, Elizabeth Gower, Nathan Herriman, Lauren House, Brandon Mason, Kaitlin Schwenke, Joseph Simkovic, Tristan Simpson, Drew Baten, Halah Boss, Kayla Kaczmar, Isaac Hull, Madison O'Leary, Adrianna Nachazel, Ana Smith, Emma Buday, Braeden Clark, Joao Pedro and Gabriella dos Santos, Hailey and Raymond Greimel, Abby Johnson, Kyle Anne O'Leary, Micayle Vrondran and Grant Winnell.

It is our desire that they have had the opportunity to develop their self confidence, curiosity, self expression and conflict resolution skills, while learning about God's love and giving back to the community.

Thank you to First Congregational United Church of Christ for your encouragement and support throughout our adventures.

PLANT CONTAINERS NOT RECYCLABLE

Editor:

Hello all you enthusiastic beautifiers of the earth.

The spring planting season is upon us.

You can hardly wait to get your fingers on the blooming plants and sprouting vegetables available in nurseries, garden shops and every street corner in your neighborhood.

There is only one downside to all of this passion to introduce these sprouts and seedlings to your garden plots, their containers.

Unfortunately, plant plastic containers are NOT recyclable. Sorry.

They need to be collected and placed with your household waste and not in the recycling containers.

They contaminate the recyclable plastic and then none of the load is recyclable. That wastes all of our efforts to recycle.

Please help us by properly disposing of your plant plastic.

Happy gardening.

MORE CROSSWALKS

Editor:

In my opinion I think that our community should have more crosswalks because I feel more and more people are getting hit every year.

It is not just me who thinks it, it is other people, too.

If you want you or your kids crossing the street in a better action then I know that we should have crosswalks. I have seen people cross in places that you are more likely to get hit by a car.

With more crosswalks you will be able to cross where it is way safer.

If our community has more crosswalks then it will give a pedestrian a more safe way to cross the highway.

Plenty of my relatives and friends have come to me and said that we really need a crosswalk at Shell the gas station. They have almost got hit or almost hit somebody before.

I think that crosswalks would help control traffic and it would also make it better.

I have told you all the reasons why we should have crosswalks and I hope you think it to. We need crosswalks for you the community and everybody else.

THANK YOU

Editor:

We would like to thank the Charlevoix Community Pool Auction Committee for their generous contribution to Camp McSauba.

Their donation of $960 will allow less fortunate families to send their child or children to a week of fun at Camp McSauba.

The children participate in several activities during the course of the week including arts and crafts, playing different sports, swimming and building sand castles at the beach, and many, many more.

The older campers also get to participate in swimming at the community pool and because of their donation they will be able to swim free of charge.

Because of this wonderful opportunity for children to be outdoors and involved with their peers, both new and old friendships grow.

The counselors are able to see the campers' happy faces when they are at Mount McSauba, and we just wanted to share how much this gift means to everyone.

Thanks again.

CCMS to reimburse Charlevoix

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

After taking $222,978.36 from the city of Charlevoix, William Montgomery has agreed to pay the city back in exchange for the city dropping its lawsuit against him.

At the June 4 city council meeting, mayor Norman Carlson signed an agreement to end the suit if Montgomery pays $133,000 by June 10 and $90,000 by Nov. 1.

"If he violates the agreement, nothing can stop us from requesting that he be prosecuted," said city attorney James Young in his letter to the council. "A judgment can be entered against him for the unpaid balance plus other damages."

The agreement originally required that Montgomery pay $123,000 by June 1 and $100,000 by Nov. 1. Though Young's letter to the city council states that Montgomery needs until June 10 to make the first payment, he said the repayment agreement was required to go before city council before it could be acted on, which is why Montgomery was given an extension. However, he must pay an additional $10,000 five months early.

Young said Mackinac County prosecutor Fred Feleppa will continue to work with the state police and make his own judgment on any criminal charges which may or may not be levied against Montgomery.

Back in 2004, a check was written for Montgomery's company, CCMS and Associates, which was supposed to be written to CCMS' insurer, United Fire and Casualty.

Montgomery proceeded to deposit the check into a personal bank account, and by the time city treasurer Rick Brandi discovered the mistake, it was too late to process a stop payment, leaving United Fire and,Casualty without payment for street work performed in 2001.

This began the insurer's lawsuit against the city, costing an additional $220,000.

It was later determined that then city manager Mike Wiesner was responsible for the incorrectly written check.

After Wiesner resigned his position earlier this year, the city began their lawsuit against Montgomery.

Do you have an emergency plan for the road?

When families embark on day trips and vacations this summer, they'll have more to worry about than high gas prices. Thousands of people will break down or crash their vehicle at night — and if they do, will they have the emergency light they need to stay safe?

Roadside emergency tips:

— Keep your roadside emergency kit inside your vehicle; if the kit is in your trunk and your vehicle is struck in the rear, your trunk may be damaged and not open.

— Do not use flares; they are dangerous and can cause fires, explosions and burns.

— Conserve your vehicle's battery power; do not use dome lights to read maps or other critical information.

— Do not run your vehicle for light; you'll drain gas and generate toxic fumes.

— Use a light source that does not require outside power or battery sources.

— Flashlights may not be reliable for signaling; when stored, batteries can drain and corrode, making the flashlight useless.

— Put your hood up to signal an emergency.

Test comes back low, cancer in remission

Ken Doty:
Living with Cancer

In part three of the series "Ken Doty: Living with cancer," Doty discusses the short-term results of his treatment.

What is the prognosis?

"The doctors did the blood tests and normal PSA (Prostate Specific Antigen) levels are between 0 and 3.5," Doty said. "My levels for PSAs came back less than 0.1 which means nothing's showing up, so technically I'm in remission right now."

Doty received the results in the mail on the Thursday before Memorial Day.

What did you do when you found out?

"I opened my letter at 8 p.m. on May 24, which was a very nice early 49th birthday present for me. It was some relief (and) joy and also a time of getting down on my knees and telling the good Lord thank-you, that's been an ongoing thing everyday," he said. "The first three phone calls were to my fiancée, mom and son and number four was to my co-worker. I tried to, over the last week, contact those people I know have kept me in their thoughts and prayers and made sure they knew I had gotten some good news."

Doty's birthday was May 26.

How are you feeling?

"We did a follow-up on Friday, June 1, just to review all the charts and all the tests. They do have some concerns with my red blood cell count because I'm very tired and severely anemic," he said. "My doctor talked about placing me on a drug but I don't know whether I want to go on it or not — six prescriptions is enough I think."

Doty's fatigue comes from the extensive treatment he has undergone for the last several months.

"I'm more tired now than I was right after the treatments ended," he said. "And as the doctor put it, 'We kicked your butt while we killed everything.'"

He added, "They take you to the point of almost killing you but they don't."

Doty's take on the process of being radiated seems to be on the lighter side.

"I joked with my doctor and said, 'So, if I don't grow a third appendage or third eye or hump on my back I don't need to come see you?'" he said. "The humor does really help get through things."

Did you make any contingencies pending a positive outcome?

"I learned a long time ago, you don't deal with God. He tells you what he wants and you don't make deals," he said. "But, a couple of my friends and I decided that on my 50th birthday we're going to jump out of a perfectly good airplane. I've always been involved in outdoor activities — backpacking, white water canoeing and this is just something I've always wanted to do."

Energy level takes months to come back

CANCER

So what is next?

"It's a nice relief for the next four months that I'm not going to have to go in for treatments, doctor appointments or tests," Doty said.

Doty's next test will be a CT scan toward the end of September.

"I'm going to live life. Of course, you always have it in the back of your mind, but I will continue to recover and live life and try to gain my strength back, continue to eat healthy, take my medications," he said. "I'm very hopeful, you have to have hope and always look ahead. You can't live in the past — good, bad, you still have to go forward because life goes on."

When are you expected to feel better?

"Nine months to a year to regain the energy levels, but it's still not over. I've got to keep the PSAs down and they don't say that you're cancer-free until five years" he said. "If it comes back, radiation which I already have gone through, is not an option. Then I have to go with chemotherapy or possibly surgery. Once the area has been radiated they can't go back and radiate it again."

What kind of support did you receive through this ordeal?

"I know a lot of people just from my job, from coaching and refereeing, from being born and raised right here in the county and for those people that have been keeping me in their prayers and on prayer lists and warm wishes and cards, thank-you very much," he said. "I'm just someone like everyone else trying to survive and hopefully people will have this much help if they have to go through it."

He added, "You can beat it by putting your trust in the man upstairs and the support of family and friends and you've got to have a positive outlook."

According to the American Cancer Society, "Both the PSA blood test and digital rectal examination should be offered annually, beginning at age 50, to men who have at least a 10-year life expectancy. Men at high risk ... should begin testing at age 45. Men at even higher risk, due to multiple first-degree relatives affected at an early age, could begin testing at age 40."

Doty urges men to get checked for prostate cancer at an earlier age.

"Do it for yourself, but most of all do it for your family," he added.

Look for the fourth installment of "Ken Doty: Living with cancer" in early October when Doty will reveal the results of his bone and CT scans.

Red Cross donors could win trips

American Red Cross blood donors across the state of Michigan will have a chance to win either a six-day, five-night cruise trip to the Grand Bahamas or a three-day, two-night trip to Las Vegas simply by presenting to donate blood or platelets during the month of June.

Starting on Friday, June 1, and continuing through Saturday, June 30, all presenting donors at drives across the state can throw their name into a drawing for a chance to win one of the trips, which are provided by Unlimited Travel, located in Muskegon. In all, two lucky donors in the Red Cross' Great Lakes Region Blood Services will have their names selected as winners of the trip packages. Winning donors will be selected the week of July 9-13.

The Grand Bahamas cruise trip is for one presenting donor and a guest. The six-day, five-night trip includes round-trip airfare and port charges, with meals and activities included on board. The Las Vegas trip is also for one presenting donor and a guest. The three-day, two-night trip includes round-trip airfare from Michigan to Las Vegas. The winning donor will also receive a $500 Las Vegas gift card good for chips, meals, drinks, tokens and show tickets to be used in Las Vegas casinos.

Every two seconds, someone in the United States needs blood. Sick and injured adults and children need red cells, platelets or plasma for scheduled and emergency surgeries, for cancer and leukemia treatments, trauma and burn care, and for the treatment of serious health conditions like anemia, sickle cell and heart disease. Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in general good health.

For more information on a blood drive near you, please call (800) GIVE-LIFE or visit www.givelife.org.

Hospice relieves the grief

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

On June 1, Hospice of Northwest Michigan held a benefit fundraiser at Castle Farms to enhance the services they offer to the community.

Over 2,000 items were donated by artisans and merchants throughout the area. Hospice of Northwest Michigan provides assistance to households where a member is facing the end of their life, like Rita and Louie Orlowski of Charlevoix.

When someone is dying in the family, both caregiver and patient can become highly stressed, as did the Orlowskis.

Louie was being treated for lung cancer. About two years after his initial diagnosis, his oncologist, Dr. Ervin Hire, said nothing more could be done for him and told Rita she'd be getting in touch with hospice.

Knowing that strangers were coming made the Orlowskis a little apprehensive, but their concerns were immediately diminished with the first visit.

"I've heard people say 'well if anything happened to me, I wouldn't want strangers in my house,' but they just set themselves at ease," said Orlowski. At the first visit, two representatives from Hospice of Northwest Michigan came to the house, told Rita and Louie about the program and what services they would provide.

Hospice nurse Patsy Walkulat, who the Orlowskis knew from church, was assigned to handle Louie's care until he passed away on March 28, 2003.

She attended to his medical needs, provided emotional support and gave Rita time to do necessary errands that had been neglected, like grocery shopping.

"She just started to take right over, gently," Rita said, " She knew all the answers."

Rita was very impressed by the sensitivity shown by Hospice.

She said Walkulat also made sure the couple understood Louie's treatment and was prepared for the end.

"She didn't avoid any questions that Lou had," Orlowski said.

As Louie's illness progressed, Walkulat's visits to the Orlowskis increased.

"She came every two weeks and as time went by, she came every week," said Orlowski. "Sometimes she'd just dropped by to talk. It was piece of mind for me that somebody was available."

Nurse Walkulat enjoyed her time with the Orlowskis as much as they enjoyed their time with her.

"Lou was a very bright person, we kept him very informed," Walkulat said. "He was so happy we were there to help Rita."

Walkulat became acquainted with other family members who arrived to help Louie.

"There was a daughter, a granddaughter and a son-in-law, we all became one family," Walkulat said.

The Hospice concept began in the United Kingdom with the establishment of St. Christopher's Hospice near London in the 1960s.

Its services usually consist of a team that focuses on pain management for the dying and support for those caring for the dying.

It is a service benefit for most Medicare plans and insurance plans.

Since the first Hospice was established in the United States 33 years ago, there are now over 3,200 hospice programs throughout the country.

The Charlevoix area is served by two hospice programs: Hospice of Little Traverse Bay and Hospice of Northwest Michigan, which served the Orlowskis.'

Rita will always remember Louie's strength and his trusting nature.

"One day we were sitting at the table and his appetite was dwindling and he just asked me 'Am I going to die?' I couldn't lie to him so I said yes," Orlowski said. "He took it in his stride and he had great faith."

For more information on Hospice of Northwest Michigan, call Pat Johnson at 582-8800.

Summer Safety TIPS

UNDER THE SUN SAFETY: Is your little turkey cooked yet?

Keeping your child out of the sun between the hours of 10 a.m.. and 2 p.m.. is recommended but next to impossible on a beautiful sunny day.

Mr. No-No's, "Is your little turkey cooked yet?" technique could save you and your little turkey from having to go through a night of sunburn suffering. Place a little round Band-Aid on your child's shoulder. Apply sunscreen from head to toe following all the sunscreens' directions.

Take a peek under the Band-Aid after 10 minutes. If there is no burning, check under the Band-Aid in 15 minutes, then every 30 minutes afterwards. If or when you notice a burn or tan, do not apply more sunscreen on your child; take them out of the sun. That means inside a house, or structure.

SWIMMING/ WATER SAFETY: Grandma's not a Baywatch lifeguard

Growing up with a swimming pool I can remember, every summer my friends and I would go swimming. My grandmother would watch over us to make sure that we were all safe. I later found out that she couldn't even swim! Grandmas are the best people in the world, but when it comes to Grandma posing as a Baywatch lifeguard, she may not be the best choice for your little ones. Always have an adult over the age of 18 that can swim very well watching over the children. The best scenario would be if the adult were certified in infant and child CPR.

SHOPPING SAFETY: Child Escalator Etiquette

OK shoppers, I know when you are in the zone, the "Shopping Zone" that is, and there is no stopping you. However, when you are racing across the mall to get that next sale of the century, keep this in the back of your head. The average escalator can move over 50,000 pounds at approximately one-half-foot per second. As you could imagine, a child doesn't have a chance against the metal jaws of an escalator. Following Mr. No-No's Child Escalator Etiquette could save your child's life. When on an escalator, always stand in front of your child when you're going down. When you are going up always stand behind your child. Sorry I have to even mention this, but always take your child out of the stroller before you get on the escalator and do not let your children sit on the steps.

The following City of Charlevoix Council business was conducted Monday June 4.

Item: Report from Compensation Commission

In brief: The Compensation Commission made determinations regarding elected officials' compensation. Their determinations included a raise and administrative help for city clerk Carol Ochs. Ochs, who currently receives a salary of $34,000 for a 30-hour work week said she wants to be treated like the other administrative heads who work for the City.

Ochs received a 2.75 percent increase, prorated from April 1, on her yearly salary plus three-fourths of benefits such as vacation, sick, holiday and personal day pay for which she had not earlier qualified. Her deferred compensation account, similar to a 401K retirement plan, was increased from 1 percent of her pay to 2.25 percent.

Ochs' yet to be named administrative assistant will make no more than $15 per hour and has been allotted up to 1,040 hours per year of work.

Board action: The motion to reject the clerk's salary recommendation failed 3—3, the commission determinations will stand.

Item: Purchase of 35,000 Gross Vehicle Weight truck

In brief: In the current approved budget, $85,000 was allocated to the purchase of a plow truck that will replace the 1994 model the city currently has. The base bid for the truck and trailer was $93,604. With the additions and deductions the street department plans to make, the cost of the truck is $93,691.

Board action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Request from Charlevoix City Band for funding

In brief: The Charlevoix City Band is requesting funding of $4,700 for the Charlevoix City Band. The band plans to use the money to help defray the costs of providing its musical programs to Charlevoix residents and visitors.

Board action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Request from Beaver Island Boat Company to use additional dock

In brief: The Beaver Island Boat Company would like to acquire an additional dock area, mooring area space and a number of the parking spaces left vacant by the decommissioned Coast Guard Cutter Acacia. If approved this contract is nonexclusive, meaning the city can allocate the space for other vessels

Board action: Contract pending approval

Item: Request for support to create a department of peace

In brief: The Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom requested the council's support of U.S. House bill 808 to establish a Department of Peace.

Board action: Approved 4—2

Aquatic Sherlock Holmes comes to Charlevoix

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Human error, act of god or murder? Find out at 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 16, at the Charlevoix Public Library's community room.

Maritime law specialist and practicing attorney, Jack Coté, will talk about the death of at least one and disappearance of another attorney who were both last seen alive on the ship "Sea's Life" found empty between Lake Huron and Mackinac Island in the summer of 2005.

"My expertise is in being able to reconstruct the cause of vessels going missing when I have no boat, no bodies and no witnesses to the event," Coté said.

Coté's experience includes a wrongful death action brought against a boat manufacturer after a boat disappeared on Lake Michigan in 1980 and, though little of the boat was ever found, Coté won the 10-year-long case against the boat manufacturer for having built a vessel with a fault which may have caused it to sink during a storm.

Another high profile case involved the 1993 disappearance of the 40-foot sailboat "Charley's Crab" and four passengers while en route from the Bahamas to Florida.

"Both cases presented extremely difficult factual and legal issues because, in each case, the boat was never found, no bodies were ever recovered, there were no witnesses and a bad storm was involved," Coté stated in his resumé.

With more than 25 years experience in admiralty law and more than 60 years as a boater, Coté has a nautical knowledge base matched by few.

"I determine what happened, where and why and I have been successful in doing that with 90 or 95 percent accuracy on the cases I have worked on," he said.

The focus of Coté's upcoming presentation will include what happened to the couple, 35-year-old Lana Stempien and 34-year-old Chuck Rutherford before their boat was found empty with the engine running in August 2005.

While Stempien's body was found two weeks later, Rutherford's body has not.

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library and the Charlevoix Yacht Club have partnered to bring Coté to Charlevoix.

"Anyone who has any interest in water, boating, mysteries or the law would have an interest," said Charlevoix Yacht Club commodore Lynn Smolenyak. "It's free and open to the public. I think it's going to be a great presentation."

She added, "These are all pretty high profile cases that you always hear about when it happens, but you don't always hear about the outcome and (Coté) has been really instrumental in solving what happened."

To learn more about the mystery surrounding the "Sea's Life," attend the June 16 presentation at the library and 6 p.m. reception at the Charlevoix Yacht Club located at 209 Ferry Ave. in Charlevoix.

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

For the 77th consecutive year, the time honored tradition of "Venetian" will soon embrace Charlevoix in our annual celebration of life, family and community. The "Venetian" mission of elevating our spirit of community is more timely than ever, as we struggle with the temporary loss of our downtown jewel, East Park, during her well deserved construction make over. "Venetian" will forge ahead with alternative downtown venues in 2007, which may prompt greater appreciation of such community blessings as Lake Michigan Beach and the new Charlevoix Public Library. The wonderful Charlevoix tradition of "Venetian" would not be possible without the support of the Venetian Burgee Club, those individuals, organizations and businesses who have generously contributed funds, goods and services to the Festival. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2006 Venetian Burgee Club who are reflected below.

Opportunities abound for volunteer service in the Venetian Corps and financial support through the Venetian Burgee Club. Burgee Club members are entitled to commemorative burgee pennants emblazoned with the Venetian Logo, the current year and their sponsorship level, so that they may display their annual tradition of Venetian support. Call 547-3872 for information. Such financial support is especially critical to maintain the recent Venetian tradition of nationally renowned, two-night fireworks displays, which will again be launched in 2007 on Friday, July 27th and Saturday, July 28th. While the Venetian Board anticipates a Friday night fireworks display in 2008, sufficient financial support must be realized within the 2007 Festival in order to do so.

'The Case of the Missing Books' summer reading program begins

Following the "Get a Clue" summer reading theme at the Charlevoix Public Library, Acting Up Theatre Company will be presenting "The Case of the missing books," a mystery that takes place in Charlevoix's own Bridge Park. This summer reading club kick-off event will begin with registration at 6:30 p.m. and the performance at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 19, at the library, 220 W Clinton St.

The Acting Up Theatre Company has been touring libraries for the past six years with their wonderful messages about reading. Last summer they were voted number one amongst 15 performers in the Capital Area District Libraries. "The Case of the Missing Books" will be filled with the Acting Up Theatre Company staples of audience participation with prizes for volunteers, character changes, comedy and wonderful lessons about friendship, solving problems and the importance of reading.

"The Case of the Missing Books," begins innocently enough with a person visiting the library and emerging with a bounty of books. Slowly, one-by-one, the books begin to disappear in a mysterious fashion. The victim is flabbergasted and doesn't know what to do or who to call, until the helpful paperboy steers him to the world famous detective, Sherlock Poems. Sherlock, assisted by Gus Gruesome, CSI: Library Division eventually solves "The Case of the Missing Books" with fun and antics in between.

For more information about this event or the summer reading club, call 237-7350.

Safety tips for diabetics

Spring and summer fun means getting out in the great outdoors. Being active outside is great for people with diabetes. There are, however, some precautions that people with diabetes should consider to insure a great and safe vacation.

— Protect your skin from sunburn. Use a sun screen and/or protective clothing and hat. There's nothing worse than a bad sunburn to ruin your vacation.

— Use sunglasses to protect your eyes against UV rays.

— Drink plenty of water. Drink more than you usually do if you are more active and the weather is hot.

— Keep your medication and blood sugar monitoring equipment at a safe temperature. Follow manufacturer's recommendations.

— Test your blood sugar more frequently if you are more active than usual.

— If you take medication that puts you at risk for low blood sugar reactions, remember to carry treatments for low blood sugars with you. Also, tell the people you are with how to help you treat low blood sugar reactions.

— Before leaving for a trip, talk to your doctor about possible medication changes that may be needed.

— Since people with diabetes should never go barefoot, always use water shoes at the pool or on the beach, and proper shoes for your planned activities. Make sure to protect your feet from injury and inspect them daily.

— Think about using a fanny pack to carry supplies that need to be with you. A little planning can help guarantee that you have a safe and great time in the out-of-doors.

Help prevent spread of lethal virus in fish

The Michigan Senate recently approved a resolution urging that Michigan's congressional delegation secure supplemental funding to control the spread of viral hemorrhagic septicemia in fish populations, said Sen. Jason Allen, R-Traverse City, sponsor of the resolution.

"The fish disease has recently been discovered in Lake Michigan as well as Budd Lake in Clare County," Allen said. "The introduction of this virus into our lakes may drastically change the way we enjoy fishing and boating in Michigan."

VHS, a lethal virus that causes internal and external hemorrhaging in fish, threatens Michigan's $4.5 billion fishing industry. Each year, nearly 1.4 million individuals go fishing in Michigan, including nearly 400,000 non-residents, contributing more than $800 million directly to the state's economy.

"An outbreak of VHS in our lakes may reduce the amount of fish available to sports anglers and our commercial fishing industry," said Allen, who chairs the Senate Committee on Commerce and Tourism. "It could also be quite devastating for Michigan's tourism and recreation industry."

Allen said immediate funding is needed to help federal and state officials take appropriate actions to slow the spread and limit the impact of VHS on the Great Lakes.

"Funding to support surveillance, enforcement, outreach and research is vital to help contain the virus and provide time to develop effective management strategies," Allen said.

First detected in Great Lakes fish in 2005, VHS is thought to have entered Michigan waters from the Maritime Region of Canada through the discharge of infected ballast water from cargo ships that took up water from infected areas. The disease could affect at least 37 fish species living in the Great Lakes region.

Boaters and anglers can help prevent the spread of VHS by not transferring fish or bait between bodies of water and by thoroughly cleaning boats, trailers and equipment when traveling between lakes and streams. Residents are asked to report sick fish or fish kills to their local Department of Natural Resources office or use the DNR Web site at www.michigan.gov/dnr.

A&E Collision opens for business in former Russell's Auto Body site

From deer and trees to cars and trucks, Tony Reynolds has seen just about every kind of ding, dent and destruction a car can incur.

The former owners of Judy's Restaurant of Charlevoix, Edward R. and Judie G. Johnson, who recently founded A & E Collision at the former site of Russell's Auto Body at 06395 U.S. 31, are counting on Reynolds' 22-plus years of auto body experience.

"We are a full-service shop. We work on all makes and models, foreign and domestic," Edward Johnson said.

"We offer loaner cars, someone will always be here when you come and people will be getting their car back in a timely fashion."

A & E Collision is open 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"We're also open Saturday and Sunday by appointment if (customers) need an estimate on the weekend," Johnson said.

Reynolds, a state and ATEG certified auto body technician who graduated from Alpena Community College in 1988, is A & E Collision's manager/auto body technician.

For more information, call 547-2650.

Waha invited to all-star game

Waha

Charlevoix senior Chris Waha has been selected to play in the 26th annual Michigan High School Baseball East-West All-Star Classic Monday, June 18, at Comerica Park in Detroit.

Waha, a pitcher/catcher who will play next season at Grand Rapids Community College, is one of just 36 players statewide selected for the game. He will play on the West squad.

Waha set a Charlevoix single-season school record with 108 strikeouts this season. He compiled a 1.55 earned run average in 65 innings.

He also led the Rayders with a .379 batting average and 36 RBI, one shy of the school record. Waha helped the Rayders to a 22-15-1 record, their first 20-plus win season since 1982. Charlevoix's season came to an end Saturday with a 5-4 loss to Boyne City in a Division III district semifinal.

"Chris is a tremendous baseball player and a great leader for our team," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "This is a great and richly deserved honor for him. He has worked very hard on his game, and it's nice to see it pay off like this."

For more information, contact Allen Telgenhof 547-7388 or Chris Waha 547-0371.

Rayder soccer squad falls in finals

CHARLEVOIX — For the second year in a row, Harbor Springs entered a district girls' soccer final as the underdog. For the second year in a row, the Rams left with the trophy.

Harbor Springs beat No. 8-ranked Charlevoix 2-1 Friday for the Division IV district championship. It is Harbor's sixth district title in the last seven years.

"I've got about 20 medals," Harbor Springs coach Hagen Manker said. "But this one will be one of the three on my key chain."

Harbor Springs, 14-4, will play North Muskegon, 15-3, in a regional semifinal 6 p.m. Tuesday at Holton High School.

Charlevoix, which hasn't lost a regular season Lake Michigan Conference game in two years, finishes 18-2.

"We want to win in the regular season, but this is what we practice for," Manker said. "Through our first, second game of the season, we're still running three miles before practice. Then we taper and are fresh for the tournament."

Harbor's backline had a fresh feel, as Kristen Koehler, one of its leading scorers, was moved to right marking back against the Rayders. That bolstered a defense that was under a lot of pressure from Charlevoix's passing game — Harbor was outshot 22-12 — but held tough and provided Harbor Springs with enough long balls, enough chances to win.

"We didn't need scoring," Manker said. "Anna (Causley) can get goals."

Too fast for Charlevoix's defense, she did get one. With just under 4 minutes to play in the first half, Causley broke free of two Charlevoix defenders and then beat goalie Tammy Potter one-on-one for the 1-0 lead.

Ten minutes into the second half, Cooper Dendel, who scored twice in the Rams' semifinal win against Boyne City, kept the hot foot, giving Harbor Springs a 2-0 lead.

"Our defense had some difficulty controlling the ball at midfield, and they got behind us," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said.

Charlevoix kept up the pressure despite its deficit, but Harbor continued rising to the moment. Morgan Lindsay made a deft recovery to cut off a run by the Rayders' Ariel Ramsey; Brita Olson saved the ball when goalie Becky Boeckman was pulled out of the box. But Charlevoix eventually got a break, with Ramsey putting a left-footed shot into the net, assisted by Olivia Catt.

With 4 minutes to play, Charlevoix's Kaleigh Blanchard got off a strong shot, but Boeckman tipped it over the crossbar.

"Their keeper came up with some big saves," Madison said. "In the end, we just couldn't score."

TRACK

Charlevoix senior Emily Heffling placed sixth in the girls' 300-meter hurdles, and the Rayders' 3200 relay team was seventh in the boys' meet Saturday at the Division III state championship at Comstock Park High School.

Heffling finished in a school-record 46.63 seconds in placing sixth. The boys' relay team — Jacob Winmer, Darron Munson, Billy Roloff and Nate LeBlance — finished in 8:13.99.

Eric Mason won the 3200 relay in 8:03.77, while Amy Myler of Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard won the girls' 300 hurdles in a Division III state record 44.82.

Charlevoix's Alina Dhaselcer placed 10th in the 3200 in a school record 11:34. She took some 13 seconds off her previous school mark.

BASEBALL

MANCELONA — Boyne City defeated Charlevoix, 5-4, in a Division III baseball district semifinal Saturday at Mancelona High School.

Robby Jensen was the winning pitcher, while Ty Telgenhof took the loss. Telgenhof struck out five, walked five and gave up one earned.

"Boyne just outplayed us," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "I felt bad for our guys as we didn't play our best game. We made too many errors, most of them unforced."

For the Rayders, Ty Telgenhof singled, doubled and drove in two runs, J.D. Speigl also singled and doubled, Cliff Jones had two hits, and Michael Heckendorn singled.

Charlevoix finished 22-15-1, its first 20-plus win season since 1982.

East Jordan won the district, defeating Boyne City, 15-0, in the title game.

SOFTBALL

MANCELONA — Holly Staneck's bottom-of-the-seventh triple lifted Boyne City to a 4-3 walk-off victory Saturday over Charlevoix in a Division III softball district semifinal game.

Desi Faust struck out six in taking the loss. Erica Faust had the lone hit for the Rayders.

East Jordan defeated Boyne, 1-0, to win the district title.

Event allows restaurants to showcase menu portions that range in price between $1 and $5. Tickets will be sold at $1 each and may be used to purchase soft drinks, beer or wine, as well as food.

Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix plans on serving Great Lakes chowder and lamb chop lollipops.

"It's simple, easy, fun finger food," said Weathervane manager and chamber vice chair Jeff Sprecksell.

He said business increases at his restaurant on the day of the event.

Villager owner Terry Left said the event is an opportunity to introduce tasty menu items that visitors are not usually associating with his restaurant.

"People in the pub assume we'd be serving our fish," said Left. "We're trying to sell a product we don't normally sell."

This year the Villager booth will be serving barbecue ribs and smoked ham soup.

Left's other restaurant, Terry's Place, will have a booth serving shrimp Provencal, a pasta dish with shrimp in a tomato-basil sauce.

Participants in the Taste of Charlevoix have a variety of events to choose from in addition to eating, depending upon their situation.

For those who are active, the Red Rock Marathon will take place preceding the Taste of Charlevoix, offering a calorie burn before hitting the food and spirit booths. More food will be offered at a pre-event dinner for the run on June 15 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church in exchange for a church donation.

Those with kids can come to the children's area. For $2, children have unlimited access to the Rayder jump house, an inflatable slide, face painting, cookie decorating and entertainment from "Kookie the Clown."

Guests who like music with their meal can listen to acts like the Charlevoix Marine Band, performing 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m., followed by Horton Creek Live performing 1:30 p.m.-4 p.m.

Also, the U.S. Coast Guard and the Coast Guard Auxiliary will host Boating Safety Day 2007 at the event. Activities include tours of rescue assets, courtesy inspections of your vessel by the auxiliary, an obstacle course for kids and flare and fire extinguisher demonstrations.

Kelly named to Ferris fame hall

A local man is one of seven athletes and a veteran coach included in the Ferris State University Bulldog Athletics Hall of Fame class of 2007, which will be inducted this fall.

Scott Kelly of Charlevoix will be inducted for his performance in baseball from 1982 to 1986.

A 15-member selection committee of faculty, staff, alumni and community members chose the inductees from among 34 nominees.

The eight new inductees will join 74 honorees already enshrined during the eighth annual Induction Banquet 7-8 p.m. on Sept. 28 at the Holiday Inn Hotel and Conference Center in Big Rapids.

The Ballroom opens at 6 p.m. with a reception in honor of this year's inductees. The induction program follows until approximately 10 p.m.

"The Athletics Hall of Fame Selection Committee has done another outstanding job in assembling this year's class," said FSU associate athletics director Brian Kegler. "They take their role very seriously considering how many of our former student-athletes in all the various sports are deserving of this highest honor."

He added, "It is very gratifying to see nine different sports represented this year as it is an indication of the quality of the athletic programs that have spanned many decades at Ferris State University."

For ticket information, call the FSU athletics department at (231) 591-2860.

Lawuit claims discrimination, retaliation

SUIT

"Based on investigations and air quality testing performed by experts in the field, plaintiff came to the conclusion that the jail was a 'sick building' and that measures had to be taken to rectify the problem immediately," the 10-page suit says.

It stated that the health department recommended that the facility be inspected by a company specializing in indoor air quality, and upon testing in June of 2005, Meggison learned that the air quality in the facility could negatively affect the health of those exposed.

"Various measures were recommended. However, the defendants failed to actually remedy the unhealthy nature of the air in the facility and staff and inmates continued to be ill as a result of their exposure," the suit said.

"Finally, in June of 2006, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissions (sic) passed a resolution for the purpose of remedying the air quality problem in the jail but then failed to comply with their own resolution.

"Plaintiff stated her belief and the belief of others that the conditions at the jail were hazardous to the health not only of the employees, but the inmates as well, and the commission's refusal to take effective action to rectify this long-standing health hazard appear to constitute a cover-up."

> 'Based on investigations and air quality testing performed by experts in the field, plaintiff came to the conclusion that the jail was a 'sick building' and that measures had to be taken to rectify the problem immediately,' the 10-page suit says.

The suit was filed in Charlevoix Circuit Court on May 25 and demands a jury trial. It names county commissioners Shirley Roloff, Chris Christensen and Joel Evans, county sheriff George Lasater and county civil counsel John Jarema.

The first four named were named individually and "under the cover of law" in their official capacities. Jarema was named individually but only in his capacity as counsel, but not as county prosecutor.

Although Roloff, Christensen and Evans are members of the county board's personnel/internal government committee, it was not clear why the suit named Christensen and Evans, who are newcomers to the county board of commissioners as of Jan. 1, 2007, and took no decisions regarding air quality at the jail during the previous six years.

Roloff, now chair of the board, has been a county commissioner for 11 1/2 years but was a member of the personnel/internal government committee only from the first of the year. She said she had been a committee member years ago but not during the period in dispute.

It was also not clear why none of the previous commissioners were named. And it does not specify the conditions and/or diseases allegedly suffered by the plaintiff, staff or inmates, or the dates or circumstances of their afflictions.

The suit alleges that defendants took a series of adverse employment actions against the plaintiff following her report to the Charlevoix County board on Feb. 28, 2007.

Meggison claims she was engaged in protected activity under the First Amendment when she raised matters of "public concern" about the air quality in the jail, and alleged there was a causal connection between the plaintiff's public speech and the retaliation, punishment and/or discrimination she suffered.

Meggison, who has been on medical leave since March 12, is being represented by Debra Freid, of the law firm Freid, Gallagher, Taylor & Associates of Saginaw. Meggison is claiming damages in excess of $25,000.

None of the defendants would respond to requests for comment on the suit.

Jail air ...

The quality of air in the Charlevoix County jail has been the subject of employee complaints since the jail was renovated in 2001.

In January of this year, after more than a dozen sheriff department employees protested what they said were long delays in resolving health-related issues at the jail, the county board of commissioners approved spending $17,627 to have the air circulation systems and wall and carpet surfaces at the county jail cleaned.

Derek Gaylord, a corrections officer at the jail, said a report by an independent contractor indicated there was cement dust in the system that probably had come from the jail renovation.

In 2001 Thomas Meggison, former maintenance supervisor of the jail and brother-in-law of jail administrator Babette Meggison, sent a letter to the firm that designed the renovation, in which he said a number of people were experiencing health problems while working inside the jail.

The firm claimed it never received the letter.

This year Tom Meggison accused county civil counsel and prosecuting attorney John Jarema of foot-dragging on the issue.

Jarema said he had pursued his investigation vigorously, and reported that all tests of the air and systems showed that particulants circulating in the air or substances found in the ducts or on the walls and carpets of the jail to be non-hazardous.

Tom Meggison was later transferred to a janitor's position at the county building. He retires at the end of this month.

Injuries, damages ...

In her lawsuit against Charlevoix County and five county officials, Meggison claims she suffered the following injuries and damages:

— Emotional distress and mental anguish, past and future, causing ill effects to her physical health;

— Loss of professional esteem and reputation;

— Injury to her feelings;

— Humiliation and embarrassment, past and future;

— Whatever attorney fees are recoverable by law: and — Loss of income.

She also claims she is entitled to recover punitive damages from the defendants.

Secretary of State unveils Children's Trust Fund plates

Every five minutes a child is reported as the victim of abuse or neglect in Michigan.

To combat that grim statistic, Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land and Children's Trust Fund officials today introduced the newly redesigned CTF fundraising license plate.

"Our children are our most precious resource," Land said. "It is difficult to think that anyone would harm a child. When you purchase a CTF fundraising plate, you support services and programs dedicated to protecting Michigan children and help one of the state's most vulnerable populations."

The plate's brightly colored logo portrays the Upper and Lower Peninsulas as green imprints of a child's hands. The hands are framed against a background of blue water and a yellow sun that are stylized as if a child had drawn them. The Children's Trust Fund name appears at the bottom in green, red and blue lettering.

Richard Bearup, Children's Trust Fund executive director, explained that targeted educational outreach and support is crucial in helping to protect the thousands of Michigan children at risk.

"Training and prevention are the keys to ending the cycle of child abuse and neglect," Bearup said. "Studies show that abused children frequently grow up to be abusers themselves. Furthermore, the societal costs of abuse including damaged families, higher crime rates and increased burdens on the health care system, can be avoided by providing parents with the skills necessary to succeed at parenting. So, when you elect to purchase a CTF fundraising plate, you are making an investment in the success of Michigan children."

Plates may be ordered at a branch office or through the mail. Order forms are available on the Department of State Web site at www.Michigan.gov/sos. Plates are mailed within 14 days.

The CTF plate is one of seven special cause fundraising plates that were introduced in April 2001. Motorists purchasing a fundraising plate pay $35, with $25 of that earmarked for the special cause. The plates may be personalized for an additional $30 and are available in a disability version. When they are renewed, $10 is sent to the special cause.

Sales and renewals of CTF plates have generated nearly $6 million for the Trust Fund. The money provides funding to local CTF councils to help prevent child abuse and neglect.

It also supports community-based, direct service programs that meet a diversity of needs including childhood development, home visits, parenting education and support as well as referrals.

CTF was established in 1982 by the Legislature and is the only independent, statewide, nonprofit organization dedicated to the prevention of child abuse and neglect. For more information about CTF and its mission, visit www.michigan.gov/ctf.

Visit the Department of State Web site at www.Michigan.gov/sos for more information about fundraising plates and vehicle registrations.

Hiring decision prompts recall of board members

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL HIRING CRITICIZED

During two of the most contentious Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education meetings in recent times, the board approved an $11,948,468 budget on Monday, June 11, and then held a special meeting on Wednesday to decide on and appoint people to several administrative positions — prompting the threat of a recall.

Educators, angered that an administrative position would be retained in the face of several pink slips handed to teachers, spoke out on Monday, but Wednesday's special meeting crowd was stifled by outgoing school board president Bill Trubilowicz, with board member Jeff Stevens absent and board member John McLean present by phone.

"I think we fairly much understand what public sentiment is after holding public comment (Monday) night ... so we're not going to take any public comment tonight," he said.

Several people attempted to speak anyway and were told by Trubilowicz, "It's our meeting held in public and as a result it's not a meeting of the public."

According to the Michigan Open Meetings Act, "A person shall be permitted to address a meeting of a public body under rules established and recorded by the public body."

And according to the Charlevoix Public Schools policy on public participation, "The board president shall, at the appropriate time, ask those members of the public attending the board meeting if any of them have something to bring to the at-

After five hours of public comment and deliberation over township supervisor Wayne Wynkoop's request for a special use permit to operate a limestone mine on Monday, June 11, the Norwood Township Planning Commission adjourned citing the late hour and the inevitability of several more hours of deliberation.

Of the more than 50 people in attendance, nine spoke against and one spoke in favor of the proposed mining operation.

"In the past, and also within the recent years, a great deal of work has been done by Norwood Township citizens and friends to preserve the historic buildings in the village of Norwood," said Norwood resident Marion Shea-Light. "We do these projects because we want to maintain the rural, historical character of this township

Charlevoix helping entrepreneurs

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Sustaining a healthy economy in Charlevoix may come down to the strength and success of its small, independently-owned businesses.

On June 12 at the Charlevoix Public Library members of Charlevoix's business community were invited to discuss the benefits of promoting entrepreneurship throughout the city and surrounding townships.

The meeting was hosted by the Entrepreneurial Support Initiative (ESI), an organization dedicated to growing business in Charlevoix County. Its members include the city of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority executive director Keith Carey, Charlevoix State Bank's Mike Hinkle and Chris Cuffaro of Citizen's Bank in Charlevoix.

"It's about the control of our destiny," said Carey. "It's a pursuit of a strategy I think is due."

The strategy presented by ESI involved generous encouragement and support to small, independent businesses and those interested in starting one.

The strategy included ideas for a "one-stop shop" business resource center, building a peer network of entrepreneurs, creating a resource network, developing educational strategies and securing sustainable funding.

ESI also recommended including youth orientation and retention.

"We want the youth to come back to our area and increase hometown pride," Cuffaro said.

He also said a peer network for Charlevoix could include business retirees from around the area that would serve as mentors to current entrepreneurs.

"We've got a lot of brilliant people in our community and great retired people," he said. "Those people would love to volunteer to mentor and guide these new business start-ups."

Carey said entrepreneurship is not just important to those who want to own a business but also those who could work for an entrepreneur.

"Bigger employers tend to see their employees as another $8-an-hour job," said Carey. "Small businesses look to take care of them and retain them. The family business can't be successful without a very stable staff."

He said the closing of the Georgia Pacific plant in Gaylord is an example of the instability often encountered when being employed with a larger corporate business.

Carey

The Northern Lakes Economic Alliance is joining in ESI's efforts to create year-round entrepreneur-friendly communities.

"We're going to have a study for the whole region to find out what types of business might compliment what's already here," said Jan Kellog, economic development specialist for the alliance.

The discussion that continued after ESI's presentation included talk of obstacles to sustaining a year-round entrepreneur economy in Charlevoix and its current business climate.

"We'll always be a resort town in the summer," said Carey. "But, with the steps we're taking, the DDA is looking for ways to supplement the shoulder season."

The shoulder season is the less active business season in Charlevoix.

Carey said bringing community activity downtown during the shoulder season will significantly help the entrepreneurial community, bringing more potential customers to area businesses.

Cuffaro said there needs to be recognition of successful entrepreneurs in the community.

"When people make it, you need to create that excitement," Cuffaro said. "It would be great to have a celebration with the chamber, an award from the mayor."

Sleep Inn being converted

Charlevoix's newest hotel conversion is under way on Petoskey Avenue north of Charlevoix, across from the Public Golf Course. The new hotel/condominium has been redesigned by Charlevoix architect, H. Jack Begrow, a member of the American Institute of Architects.

The original Sleep Inn was built approximately 9 years ago. The newly converted Charlevoix Inn will feature both studio and bedroom suites. Many of the suites will have glass rail balconies and great views of Lake Charlevoix.

The bedroom suites feature king sized beds and spacious new baths. The studio suites have sofa sleepers, a kitchen/bar area with full sized refrigerators and some encompass a glassed-in sun room. There are private gardens adjacent to some of the suites on the first floor.

Units are anticipated to be priced from $89,000. Denny Heck, from Prudential Preferred Property in Charlevoix, is handling showings. For your reservation, call Heck at 547-9905.

Youth gathering set for June 28-30

A UNITED Youth Conference will begin at 5:30 p.m. on June 28 and last through June 30. This is a Northern Michigan community wide outreach for junior high through 2007 graduates, sponsored by Light of the North Church in Traverse City and Living Word Church in Bellaire, along with Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. Cost is $20 (pre-register) or $30 at the door.

UNITED is adult chaperoned with two overnight lock-ins. Area teens are invited to attend this powerful three-day conference featuring services, rockin' praise, worship, activities, competitions, games and food.

Attendees should bring a Bible, pillow, sleeping bag, toiletries, spending money, modest swim suit and towel. Don't bring: Personal electronic gadgets or valuables. UNITED wear will be sold at the conference.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Politicians, journalists can help society

While it is well known that journalists and politicians are not natural friends, my interviews with the candidates for the Charlevoix City Council verified the striking similarities between what I was doing and what the person across from me wanted to do.

Both political and journalism professions require the courage to be exposed to public scrutiny. Wherever a politician or a journalist goes in public, whatever thoughts they write on paper, he or she is open to criticism.

In both professions, mistakes are unavoidable. Some handle themselves well when they err, some do not. Former President Clinton insisted he didn't sleep with "that woman." Journalist Stephen Glass claimed he never fabricated any of his news stories. Both men lied about their mistake and their lie has affected their reputations dramatically.

Most journalists and politicians actually do have good intentions. The exception, though, tends to stand out in the minds of the public. This is because both a corrupt politician and a corrupt journalist can cause considerable damage to the people they are supposed to serve. They exchange what is best for the public in return for what is best for them and the effect can last for years.

Stefanie Carano

And a good journalist, like a good politician, can be pivotal in influencing beneficial social change. They have the insight and wisdom to be open to change. Despite opposition, they move forward with what they know is right.

The alienation, rejection and criticism from their peers do not sway them.

They risk it all, even when they are threatened, harassed, attacked or incarcerated for their courage. All for the common goal of moving the human race to a better tomorrow.

East Jordan glass blowers make their mark

Blown glass is a wonderful addition to any collection of art and accessories for the home. Glass designs range from functional pieces such as vases, bowls, lighting and chandeliers, to fanciful items such as jewelry, sculptures, and wall decorations. No matter what the size or shape of the piece, the play of color and light can make blown glass pieces exquisite. Plus, the range of styling is so extensive as to fit into almost any type of decor.

The first evidence of glass blowing was found in Syria around the 1st Century B.C. but it wasn't until the Venetians mastered the craft that glass started drawing a lot of attention. Fires in Venetian glass furnaces forced glass blowers to move to the nearby Island of Murano by the 1300s, where highly skilled craftspeople still blow glass today.

Fine blown glass is made all over the world now. American artist Dale Chihuly is a well-known name in the field these days, receiving acclaim for his massive, playful and eccentric sculptural pieces. With artists like Chihuly sparking a new interest in the craft there has been a resurgence in the popularity of handmade blown art glass

While perusing the December issue of Detroit Home Magazine's Design Awards, I noticed a colorful eye-catching wall installation created by Jordan Valley Glassworks in East Jordan, the first place winners in the "Decorative Glass and Mirror Installation" category.

Their winning installation consisted of about 15 multi-colored individual "rondels," which are amorphous shaped bowls. Set inside of the bowls are "points of interest," which vary in shape, from smaller rondels to tiny bowls. Connected to the larger rondels were "wall arms." These are spiral-like shapes curled and bent over, creating a flower-like installation.

I stopped by Jordan Valley Glassworks on my way up north to our vacation home in Charlevoix. Besides the custom work they do, their store is full of reasonably priced hand blown glass pieces in every possible category, including Christmas ornaments, vases, jewelry and multi-armed chandeliers.

DR. DECOR

Barbara Kopitz

The studio has four award winning glassblowers. Glenna Haney, Jay Bavers, his son Bill and daughter Beth. Each has their own specialty and area of expertise. However, Jay says "the most fun we have is when we all work together on the bigger projects."

It's fascinating to see them blow the glass and create the shapes. They do their work out in the open and it's like watching a well-choreographed dance.

Jay's grandfather was a glassblower who came to the United States as an immigrant around 1925. He thought of his work as low class and therefore he wanted his children to live the "American dream" and become professionals, not glass blowers. So even though Jay's father knew how to blow glass, he became an engineer. "Now," says Jay, "it's OK to be an artist."

Jay's 23-year-old son Bill, a fourth generation glass blower, has worked with his dad for 10 years. He also is working on a bachelor of fine arts degree with a studio specialty in glass blowing from Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

I liked the fact that everything in the store could be custom made. I brought in samples of my color scheme and I ordered three large "rondels," two "points of interest" and two "wall arms." They will cascade down the high wall over my fireplace mantel. The price including installation was $945.

Their work will be part of a show at the Saginaw Art Museum that runs from June 21 to Sept. 2 entitled "Taming of the Flame, Decorative Artworks in Iron and Glass."

Jordan Valley Glassworks is located at 209 State St. in East Jordan, at 536-0539 or www.jordanvalleyglassworks.com.

HOSPICE SAYS THANKS

Editor:

On June 1 Hospice of Northwest Michigan sponsored another successful Benefit Auction using the theme "An Evening With Hospice of Northwest Michigan." A sincere thank-you to all the artists, crafters and businesses in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties who donated to the auction.

The music was provided by Margaret Thomson. She gave a special sound to the evening. I want to thank all of the volunteers, especially those of Hospice of Northwest Michigan and its Board of Director's.

This is our major fundraising event for the year and many others should be thanked personally for their generosity. Thank-you to all who attended and made generous bids! Your support allows us to continue to provide volunteer, grief and bereavement services to those in our communities. Hospice of Northwest Michigan, in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, provides a comprehensive hospice program to those with a life limiting illness. We are very grateful to all of the people who supported us, in any way, that evening!

BIKE TRACK NEEDED

Editor:

Are you aware that there is nowhere around Charlevoix to ride your dirt bike? I would like to see some land available to ride dirt bikes and other ATVs. My friends and I would like to ride dirt bikes somewhere close to town.

Land close to town would be a good idea for a place to ride because it would be fun. You could go camping and dirt biking, like my dad did when he was a kid. That would be awesome. You could also meet with friends and see who can get muddy.

Currently the closest place to dirt bike near Charlevoix is a track in a nearby town that is open only on Thursdays. Local property to ride on would bring in kids from surrounding towns and maybe even convince them to live here.

Dirt biking would bring in money for the town. The gas stations would get more customers. The parts stores would get more business because more people would be buying dirt bike parts.

Clearly there should be somewhere to ride dirt bikes closer to town. Dirt hiking would keep kids out of trouble, too. Overall, land close to Charlevoix for dirt biking would be good for the community.

THANKS FOR GROOMING

Editor:

I want to thank all of the people that mark, clear and groom the snowmobile trails in the Charlevoix area. The dedication of these people makes it possible for snowmobile riders to enjoy the surrounding area.

Possibly in the future the snowmobile club could get permission from more landowners to obtain usage of more land for trails. This would be nice so snowmobile riders wouldn't have to ride on plowed roads and shoulders. It would prevent damage to the skis to not have to ride on the roads.

I would also like to see hills marked more clearly. This would let riders know that there may be someone coming from the other direction. This would prevent accidents in the future.

I think it would be nice to see barbed wire fences marked more clearly. It would let riders know to stay clear because it is dangerous. It would prevent snowmobile riders from getting injured or even killed.

Because of the nicely groomed trails that we do have, more people are able to enjoy the businesses and restaurants of downtown Charlevoix in the wintertime. It is also nice that the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club has the annual snowmobile RIDE IN to bring some wintertime business to town.

WE NEED DOG PARK

Editor:

It is in my belief that Charlevoix should have a dog park. Parks are fun but it would be more fun if your dog were with you.

Dogs need their exercise and in fact vets recommend you walk your dog once a day. We currently have no parks that allow dogs. This leads to a ticket if you take your dog in the park.

I believe there are many dogs in the town of Charlevoix and tourists bring many more. So Charlevoix can have more business downtown.

Without a doubt the dog park will give Charlevoix the happiness and joy in the summer, fall, winter and spring!

Thank you for taking the time to read my letter.

MOVE PARK INSIDE

Editor:

Making our outdoor skateboarding park an indoor facility would make the public of Charlevoix more active in the winter.

Charlevoix could skate all year long. Skateboarding year long is good because when all the snow melts we haven't skated in a long time so we have to relearn all the tricks we already knew. Also so the public of Charlevoix is more active in the winter. Another reason is so the public of Charlevoix has fun all year round.

The skate park could receive more money. With more money the park could sponsor skaters. Also the park could be improved. And it would be more exciting for us kids.

With the park open all year more people could try skating. People who always wanted to skate but didn't have the time would have more time. Also the skaters would have more time to improve their skills. And the park could give skating lessons.

To recap an indoor skate park would make the children of Charlevoix be more active in the winter. There are some kids who prefer not freezing like crazy just to play outside. So to me an indoor skate park is just what the doctor ordered.

TURTLE GOES MISSING

Editor:

I just wanted to get the word out that a large 4-foot turtle that has resided beside the Castle Farms reflection pond was stolen over the Memorial Day weekend. It is a large fiberglass sculpture that has a smaller twin that was left behind in the pond. Two gnomes from the Castle Farms enchanted garden are also missing.

Richard Mueller, the general manager of Castle Farms, wonders if a guest from one of the weddings had a bit too much to drink and in a moment of non-clarity put the turtle in a truck to take it for a joy ride. The turtle was used as a mascot by the employees and was given to Richard and Linda Mueller as a Christmas gift in 2005 by Richard's brother and sister-in-law, Glenn and Val Mueller. Linda has been heard speculating that the gnomes may have snuck out of her new enchanted garden and jumped on the back of the large turtle and they may all be off on a summer holiday.

A police report has been filed and if anyone knows of the location of the turtle and gnomes and can help to secure their safe return no questions will be asked. Castle Farms will gladly pick the items up if notified of their location. Castle Farms can be contacted at 237-0884 or www.castlefarms.com.

DONORS DESERVE THANKS

Editor,

May 17th was a beautiful day. The sun was shining. It was a delightful 60-something degrees after many chilly days of clouds and drizzle. It was a perfect day for gardening, golfing, boating, etc. However, the American Red Cross was at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix for a blood drive. The church was ready for their arrival. An abundance of members of the Charlevoix Lions Club came to set-up and take-down. Many volunteers worked the two shifts.

I am immensely grateful to the 94 donors who arrived to donate blood after heeding the gentle reminders from my volunteers who phoned them from Preferred Properties Network. Other donors noticed the banners the city electric department put up, or the posters that businesses graciously displayed.

I'm grateful for the dedication of all the volunteers and donors. Approximately 250 sick and injured patients' day was made more beautiful, also, by the contributions of blood, the gift of life, from Charlevoix.

On behalf of the patients, the American Red Cross and myself, I say a hearty thank-you.

Sincerely,
Ellen Breining
Charlevoix Coordinator

BIKE RACKS ARE GREAT

Editor:

Good news for Charlevoix! There are now two bicycle racks at Captain's Corners: One at Glen's Market and one near the China One restaurant and Hallmark Card Shop corner. This may not sound like much, but we must remember that just a few weeks ago there were none. Let's hope these racks are among the first steps toward making Charlevoix a bicycle friendly, bicycle accessible city. The goal is to make Charlevoix a city where the bicycle is welcome, not just as a recreational vehicle, but as a means of transportation.

To complete the deal, Charlevoix will need more numerous and traffic-safe bikeways in the city. Charlevoix will need more bike racks downtown. Think of all the small errands that you could run on a bicycle with a basket or carrier, if there was a secure place for your bike and a secure path there and back. A higher proportion of children could bicycle to school with these arrangements.

The mindset of many of us will need to change. Riding a bicycle is not what you have to do if you don't have a car! Bicycling is often better than using the car! Bicycling will improve our health, will save an increasingly large amount of money and bicycling will help our nation and the world.

Charlevoix citizens and many of the visitors who stay with us in the summer will recognize the truth in this motto: "The best trip by car is the one not taken." I'll look for you a Captain's Corners; I'll know you by your bike helmet.

Down on the farm down in the city

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Sample the local flavor at this year's Downtown Charlevoix Farmer's Market, 9 a.m.-1 p.m. this Thursday, June 21, on the sidewalk of East Park downtown.

The market will run every Thursday until Sept. 27.

"After a successful trial run last summer we've decided to provide a full summer of locally grown produce this year," said Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce president Jacqueline Merta. The chamber is sponsoring this year's market.

Twelve area farmers will be participating in the market, selling locally grown produce, eggs, meat, baked goods, canned items, flowers, trees and shrubs, honey and maple syrup.

Farms featured at the farm market include Berg Farm, Best Farm, Currey Farms Pure Maple Syrup, DeKorne Farm, Friske Orchards Farm Market, Harwood Heritage Gold Maple Syrup, Johnecheck Farm, Kiteley's Farm, Lavanway Farms, Providence Farm CSA & Wagho Peace Center, Siegrist Farms and Greenhouse and Ya Ya's Organic Bakery and Certified Organic Garden.

"We're looking forward to a great summer in downtown Charlevoix," said Judy Kehr of Friske Orchards. "We participate in other area farmers markets but being right in downtown on Bridge Street should be the best place for people to see our products."

Part of the Farmers Market vision is to provide locally grown produce to the Charlevoix community.

For more information, call the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101.

Symphony offers Strings on the Lake

Event is benefit for the hospital

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

At 6:30 p.m. Friday, July 6, Symphony on the Green will present "Strings on the Lake," featuring members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra to benefit the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

For the second year in a row, the event is taking place at the private residence of Warner and Patti Blow.

The Blows have offered their home at 11721 North Pa Ba Shan Trail in Charlevoix as an alternative to a public facility.

"The cost of hosting a private event gets higher every year," said Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation executive director Lyn Jenks. "We decided to do something different and it costs less, so more can go toward the benefit."

This year proceeds will go specifically toward funding digital mammography equipment for the hospital.

"It was something the hospital had on its capital needs list," Jenks said. "We decided to use that as our focus for fundraising this year."

Dr. Carl Harlan of radiology/imaging at Charlevoix Area Hospital said there are certain advantages to digital mammography.

"It's digitally manipulated so the images are actually clearer, particularly for women that have dense breasts," Harlan said.

The cost to attend the benefit is $125 and includes wine, hors d'oeuvres and dessert.

The registration deadline for the event is Wednesday, June 20.

The event will feature musicians Doug Stewart on oboe, John Van Patten on violin, Nancy Koski of Charlevoix on viola, Peggy Beek on violin, Marga Eickholt on cello, Bonnietta Benn on flute, Bob Pattengale on harpsichord and Cherise Titejen on bass.

"We had a great time last year, it's a wonderful place to play music," said Dale Hall, executive director of the orchestra. "We're going to play Joshua Rifkin's baroque Beatles' book."

The musicians will play in trios and quartets throughout the house and yard and then come together at the end of the night to play songs by the Beatles.

"The orchestra is well known with local musicians and they're a nonprofit organization," Jenks said. "We use local whenever we can and local nonprofits."

Quilt show set

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be hosting an exhibit "Antique Quilts — The Charlevoix Connection," beginning Wednesday, July 11 through Sunday, July 15, at the Historic Charlevoix Depot. This exhibit of the beauty and craftsmanship of antique quilters will be open to the public free of charge. Mark your calendars now.

Summer Solstice Art Show this weekend

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce invites you to the 9th Annual Summer Solstice Art Show 10 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday, June 23, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Sunday, June 24, featuring high quality art displayed in downtown Charlevoix. Participating artists are carefully selected to ensure a well-rounded show offering a variety of fun and unique creations.

This two-day event showcases paintings in oils, watercolors and acrylics, as well as sculpture, photography, pottery, jewelry and more.

From contemporary to whimsical, it is a spectacular representation of craftsmanship and artwork with many beautiful and unusual products on display.

He will be available 8 a.m.-noon on Mondays at the Hayes Township Hall located at 09195 Old U.S. 31 north. He will be on call for appointments and may be reached by calling 342-9025.

Author of Charlevoix-based book to appear

Michael Lindley, author of the Charlevoix-based novel "The Seasons of the EmmaLee" will appear at 2 p.m. Saturday, June 23, at the Charlevoix Public Library to discuss his book as well as look back at some history of the Charlevoix area that helped in crafting the story as well as Lindley's family history in the area as it relates to the story dating back over 100 years.

He will also be discussing the business of writing and publishing fiction.

In "The Seasons of the EmmaLee," Lindley explores the deep and complex emotions of unexpected love, betrayal, murder and redemption as two families from different social classes find themselves tragically drawn together by the relationship of their son and daughter.

The story is set in the idyllic resort community of Charlevoix in the early 1940s, as well as present day. "Seasons" was recently selected as a "super summer beach read" by Traverse magazine and "book of the month" by River Bank Books in Grand Rapids.

"The Seasons of the EmmaLee" is now available as a trade paperback from Sage River Press.

The book is available at independent and chain bookstores throughout Michigan and surrounding states as well as Amazon.com and other major Internet book retailers.

Charlevoix picks superintendent

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix Public Schools officials recently hired 27-year veteran Chet Janik as their new superintendent.

Janik, whose starting salary is $98,500 plus benefits, will begin officially on July 1.

"I'm excited about the opportunity," he said. "I'll be trying to spend at least a day a week for the next couple weeks trying to meet with as many staff members and community people as I can and to familiarize myself with the school district so I'm raring to go when the school year starts."

Janik

Outgoing Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education president Bill Trubilowicz said the contract negotiation process was a smooth one.

"I thought Chet's salary was fair for him and fair for us, too," Trubilowicz said . "I think it's right in the ballpark of superintendents in the area. The other thing we put in his contract is a kind of a performance clause based on success of goals and objectives to help determine salary increases in the future."

He added, "We're expecting great things from him. He's got some great ideas."

While Janik officially begins in Charlevoix next week, he has been in town several times working to get ready for his new position.

Janik, 50, accepted a three-year contract with the option to renew at the board's and his pleasure.

"I'm pretty happy that we got where we are and I'm glad we're moving forward," Trubilowicz said. "It's an exciting time to have Chet here because he's really going to be dynamic."

He added, "I think he's going to move our district in the direction we want to go."

Janik said his main focus in the beginning will be the state of the state's budget for the 2007-2008 school year, working to resolve issues with the administration and maintenance garage buildings as well as working to create a three- to five-year vision plan.

A longtime Northern Michigan resident, now working as superintendent of Buckley Community Schools since 2004, Janik has a bachelor's and master's degree from Central Michigan University and has taken advanced classes through the University of Nebraska.

Janik, who is married with three children, was previously the coordinator of special projects with the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District. Before his stint with Traverse Bay, he was director of college outreach with Northwestern Michigan College for 21 years.

"I'm grateful for the opportunity to serve Charlevoix and I just appreciate all the calls and cards I've got from Charlevoix — some people I've known and some I've not known," he said. "I'm also grateful superintendent (Jim) Cooper and the board worked to resolve next year's budget and staffing issues."

He added, "Hopefully this will be a successful partnership."

Youth makes Eagle Scout

Nicholas Cook, 16, of Boy Scout Troop 11 of Charlevoix, was honored at a special Eagle Scout ceremony on May 20. The ceremony took place at the First Presbyterian Church of East Jordan.

To earn the Eagle Scout rank, which is scouting's highest award, Nick had to earn 21 merit badges, serve as a leader in his troop and complete a major community service project.

Nick's service project took place at the First Presbyterian Church of East Jordan, where he is a member. The project consisted of landscaping the front of the church with rocks, perennials and mulch, creating a sitting area in the back of the church with benches, removing a raised step on the altar area, and painting some windows and doors. He did this with 27 other people for a total of 262 hours.

Nine years ago, Nick started scouting as a tiger Cub with Cub Scout Pack 114 of Swartz Creek. When he was 11, he crossed over to Boy Scout Troop 114 also of Swartz Creek. Three years ago, he moved to Ellsworth. He then transferred to Charlevoix Troop 11, which is chartered to the Charlevoix Kiwanis. He has earned 30 merit badges, served as patrol leader, den chief and scribe. He also has earned the Boy Scout life guarding certification.

Nick attends Ellsworth High School where he will be a junior in the fall.

Ride in a WWII bomber June 29-30

The Charlevoix Municipal Airport and Island Airways are welcoming back the World War II B-17 Bomber, sponsored by the Yankee Air Museum at Willow Run Airfield in the suburb of Detroit.

The B-17 is best remembered for its dangerous daylight bombing missions over Germany during World War II. With a wingspan of 103 feet, 9 inches, this 10-passenger "flying fortress" is a force to be reckoned with. A famous example of this type was the "Memphis Belle," which was featured in the film of the same name.

Comprised of dedicated Yankee Air Force volunteers, a comprehensive repair and rebuild program began after receiving the B-17 in 1986 with its first post restoration flight in July 1995. The "Yankee Lady" will be open for viewing and rides all day Friday, June 29, and Saturday, June 30. The cost for a 25 minute ride is $425 per person.

For more information, contact Dave Wright at (734) 483-4030 or visit www.yankeeairmuseum.org.

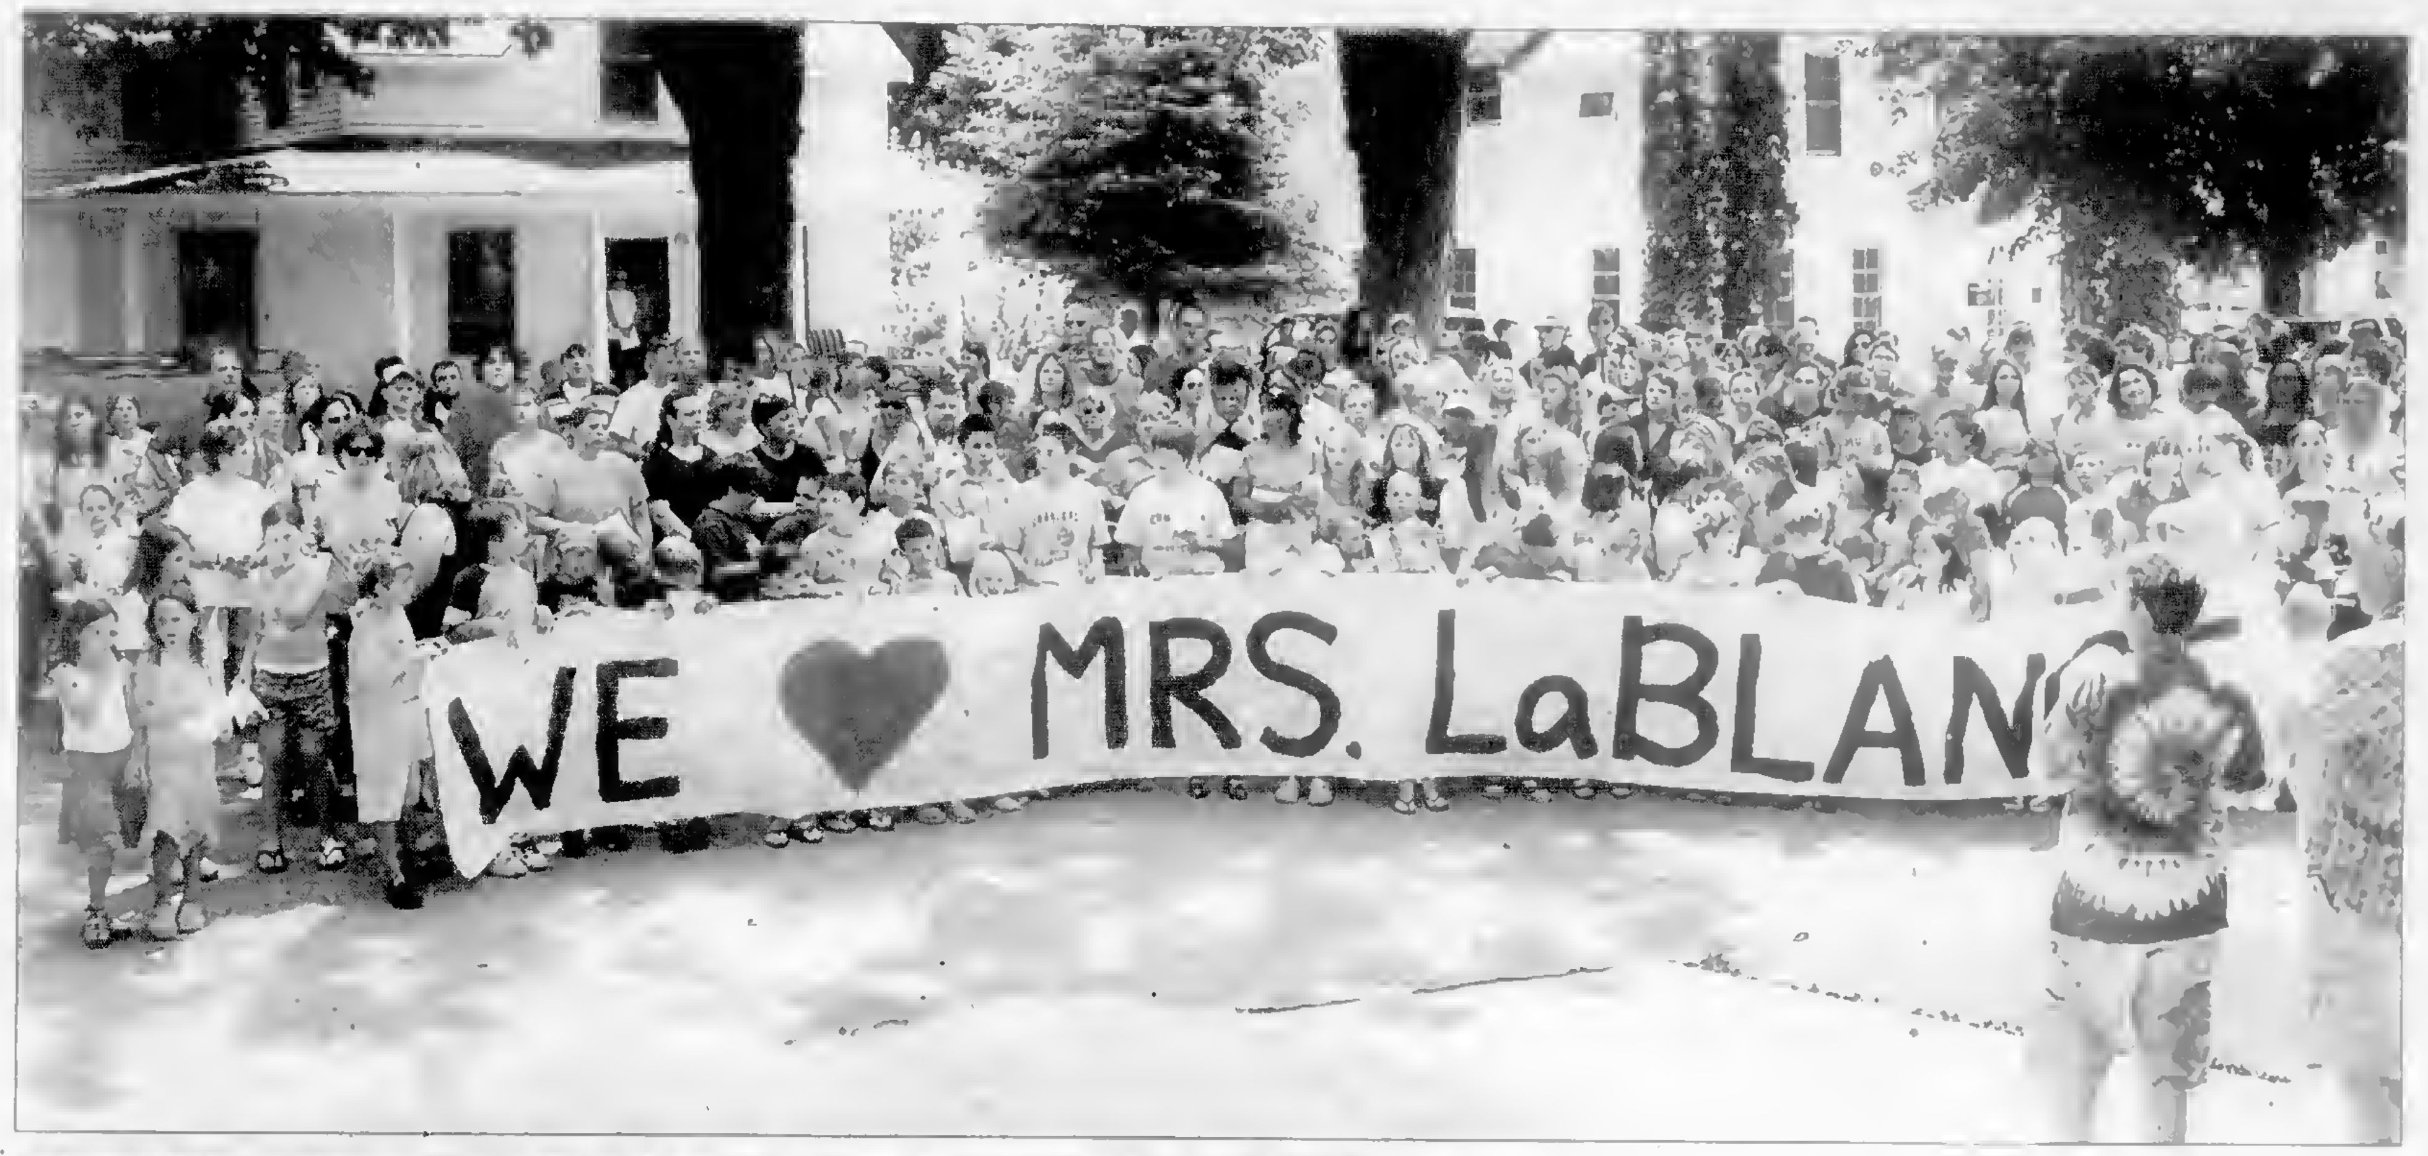
Former students entertain Marina



Photos by Kim Taylor

More than 500 former students and wellwishers turned out on Friday, June 15, to sing for their favorite music teacher, Marina LaBlance, outside her home where she is resting following a tough battle with cancer. LaBlance retired from teaching at Charlevoix Elementary School in June 2005.

City supports grant to improve water quality

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

The city of Charlevoix is working with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council on a environmentally-friendly plan to improve the city's stormwater management.

On June 4 the city council unanimously supported Tip of the Mitt's application for a grant to help fund its Treasure Lake Charlevoix project, a major objective of which involves the improvement of stormwater systems in the city.

"The goal of the TLC project is to protect and enhance the water quality of Lake Charlevoix," said Tip of the Mitt's watershed coordinator, Valerie Olink-Danstra.

Olink-Danstra said funds needed to support the TLC project total $185,000 with $53,000, if approved, coming from the Frey Foundation grant.

"We put together a package for Frey," Olinik-Danstra said. "We thought support from the city would help."

She said the TLC project consists of four components — stormwater management, water quality monitoring and inventory, watershed management and planning, and information and education.

The stormwater management component, according to the grant application, is the current objective of the TLC project. It is intended to reduce the amount of stormwater pollutants going into Lake Charlevoix. This would include installing rain gardens as an alternative to storm drains, starting near the Charlevoix Public Library. Rain gardens are depressions created in the ground that are then filled with native perennial plants. The rain garden takes in stormwater from nearby paved areas to prevent drainage into waterways.

Olinik-Danstra said the work in the city would serve as a model project for Boyne City and East Jordan.

"We've developed a good relationship with Pat Elliott over the last few months and thought Charlevoix would be a good place to start," she said. "All three communities are too small to be under federal regulation with stormwater management."

"We need to be conscious of our watershed and I feel we need to be proactive in protecting it," Elliott said.

The second component of the project, water quality and monitoring, will consist of Tip of the Mitt's volunteer lake and stream monitoring programs and conducting water resource inventories to determine if there's any chronic problems with water quality.

The third component of the project, watershed management and planning, is part of the Lake Charlevoix Watershed Management Plan that was started in 2001.

Tip of the Mitt is working with the Lake Charlevoix Advisory Committee to ensure the plan meets the newly mandated Environmental Protection Agency standards.

The fourth component, information and education, is part of a continuing effort to convey the need to protect and enhance the water quality of Lake Charlevoix.

This includes the 14th annual Experience Lake Charlevoix event, creating a "Sensible Shoreline Development" brochure, implementing a media campaign and hosting a Web page that will be used to communicate current work and completed projects in the watershed.

Driveway divides neighbors

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Plans to pave a driveway over wetland property have divided the residents of Eveline Township.

During a recent Michigan Department of Environmental Quality hearing, residents spoke in opposition to Lore Silberman's application for a permit to put a driveway on her 65-acre property, which contains a significant portion of wetlands.

Silberman said the driveway is necessary in order to use her property.

"It's our only insurable access to this piece of property," Silberman said. "If we want to legally get to it and use it as a beach, it's the only way we can get to it."

She said her family is currently accessing the property by roads they use with permission from other people.

Brenda Jones, a neighbor to the property, is concerned not only about the environmental impact the driveway would have but also the effect on the aesthetic value should Silberman go through with her plans.

"I'm concerned about increased traffic volume on the road (and) pollution," said Jones.

The plans have captured the attention of Water and Air Team for Charlevoix, an organization whose mission is to protect the environment of Charlevoix County.

"The reason we have a wetlands law is that we can't afford to lose even one more acre of wetland and they're proposing to remove several," said Bill Henne, president of WATCH.

Henne said the driveway alone could affect the ecology of the stream that runs through the property and interfere with water flow through the wetland.

The land that belongs to Silberman was once part of the Loeb property, the family who originally owned Castle Farms.

The property now owned by Silberman was gifted to her by her mother, Jane Sooy.

Sooy was one of three daughters who were each given a portion of the original Loeb property.

"We don't want to put a road through wetlands," said Silberman. "But from Shar Road, it's the only legal access to this property."

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality will assign this case to a field reviewer who will review the permit application to determine if a permit can be granted.

Annual home tour June 25

For the past 27 years, homeowners have opened their doors for the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Home Tour. This year's theme is "Lakeside Living" featuring homes on Walloon Lake. The home tour is always the last Monday in June, with this year's tour scheduled for 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday, June 25.

Seven homes will be featured, each one with a special setting on one of Michigan's most picturesque inland lakes. New log homes, classic prairie design, traditional bead board cottages and traditional lakeside retreats, each residence is a diverse as the homeowners. Many interiors are filled with antiques, artwork and family heirlooms while others ring with fresh modern design.

"We hope visitors make a day of it, touring breathtaking Walloon Lake homes and stopping for lunch as Petoskey, Boyne City, Horton Bay and Bay Harbor are all within a few minutes drive," said Phoebe and Kurt Wietzke, co-chairs.

"We are grateful to the home owners for graciously inviting us into their homes for this great one day fundraising event," added Babs and Mike Hanahan, also serving as co-chairs.

Volunteers are still needed to help with parking and serving as hosts. Call the Crooked Tree Arts Center if you are interested.

Tickets are $30 per person. Tickets are available by calling the Crooked Tree Arts Center, 347-4337 or online at www.crookedtree.org. Tickets are also available in Harbor Springs at By the Bay; Gallery on Main in Bay Harbor, C2 Gallery in Charlevoix and in Boyne City at Boyne Country Books.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 E. Mitchell St. in downtown Petoskey.

Residents take issue with new mine

MINE

which ties us to our past. We ask that you not change the character of this township by undermining the zoning laws which we rely on to preserve our community."

Resident Jeannette Kling said normally when residents want to change the zoning of an area, the issue is placed on the ballot.

"Approval of a special use permit to allow a limestone quarry, an industrial use, in an area zoned agricultural and residential in our township is not what is meant by allowing for excavation of sand and gravel in an agricultural zone," she said.

Karen Ferguson, legal representative for the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety, introduced a hefty packet of last-minute evidence she claims shows Wynkoop is not in control of the mineral rights on his property.

Ferguson told the commission they could not act on the application because Wynkoop was trying to utilize something which doesn't belong to him.

Resident Bill Gnodtke spoke on several issues he felt were valid reasons to preclude Wynkoop from operating a mine.

"The site is not served by an appropriate highway. The location and nature of a mining quarry is inconsistent and not compatible with the uses of the surrounding properties which are zoned agricultural/residential," he said. "The site plan is inconsistent with the Norwood Township Land Use Plan and approval of this application would constitute spot-zoning of industrial mining in an agricultural area. If the planning commission approves this application, they would in effect be changing the zoning."

He added, "A limestone quarry in an agricultural zoned area does not carry out the spirit and intent of the township zoning ordinance. Our ordinance says, 'Agricultural zones are rural in character, including agricultural uses mixed with water bodies, forest lands and open lands."

Wynkoop's lawyer, Edgar Roy III, said the quality of the limestone produced by the controversial project is unmatched by any in the area.

"The greater the demand for the material, the more negative consequences are allowed for the operation," he said.

Fellow gravel pit owner, Greg Karam, of Central Lake spoke in favor of Wynkoop's proposed operation.

"One thing that we're not going to tolerate as neighbors and fellow pit owners is the gangstering of someone's equitable rights and that's what I see here," he said. "To allow a community to become fragmented and combative over issues of this nature is wrong."

He added, "I went through similar situations with maniacal, evil activity behind the scenes and I for one won't tolerate (it). If it was one of you folks that are opposed to this and somebody was violating your rights ... I would be standing up for you too."

Following public comment, the commission members pored over the requirements which must be met for Wynkoop to receive a special use permit point-by-point.

The planning commission will reconvene at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 21, at the Assembly of God Church located at 05291 M-66 North in Charlevoix.

JUN 2007

Charlevoix grads off to real world

BY KIM WAY

This is the final installment of Teen Scene for the 2006-2007 school year. Teen Scene will pick back up in September.

It's that time of year again! With the month of June comes graduation season in our small town. Graduation open houses, senior all-night parties, tears and advice are only a small number of the activities that have taken place over the last few weeks.

Charlevoix High School seniors graduated on June 3 in the high school gymnasium, but that wasn't the only busy time for these scholars.

"There were so many open houses to go to on (Saturday, June 2), including my own," said senior Bethany Pearson. "And that doesn't include the senior breakfast, graduation, more open houses and senior party on Sunday!"

Along with the busyness came a lot of good advice from the speakers at the graduation ceremony. Salutatorians Logan Priess and Jacob Wimmer brought a bit of humor to the ritual when they offered comical characteristics of many high school faculties. Valedictorians Zita Anderson, Lauren Bradley, Lauren Dupuis and Caitlin Taylor spoke about the importance of teamwork, coaches, the crowd and the field. Guest speaker Jim Kanine took advantage of having all the students present and taught a five-pointed lesson — assessment, new material, experiment, test and homework.

Kanine's assessment covered what the students already know from their experience on school trips throughout their school career. For the new material, Kanine branched off the saying "Home is where the heart is." During this time, the importance of balancing one's time and organizing where to put one's heart was emphasized. The experiment was performed by Roger Gowell and Tom Schultz and brought laughter to the attendees. The homework was to keep in touch with all of one's classmates by using the provided "coffee list" that includes the class of 2007's names, addresses and phone numbers.

With so much advice, so many things going on and so many decisions to make, it's hard for many seniors to get it all under control. Not only is it tough, it's also nerve-racking.

"I'm so nervous to go to the University of Michigan this fall," said senior Ian Hughes. As stated in a previous Teen Scene issue, Hughes will be attending the University of Michigan engineering program this fall. "It'll definitely be different not having anyone there to watch out for me with my diabetes. Also, I'm nervous about entering the engineering program; it'll be hard."

Most graduated seniors have until the middle or late August before they head off to school, but for Chris Waha, it's already started. At Grand Rapids Community College, Waha starts his freshman year on the baseball team with practices during the summer.

"I already miss Chris, and he left only a few days ago," said senior Sasha Spenceley. "I don't know what I'll do when everybody leaves!"

For many, the advice given at the commencement ceremony added a new perspective on their situation. Graduated senior Kevin Moore is putting the "golf ball" theory, taught by Kanine, into action by not worrying so much about the little stuff and keeping the important things important. Erica Hedrick plans to use her "coffee list" in years to come to keep in touch with her high school friends.

With all the changes, many will go, some will come and few will stay; life lessons will be put to action, new friends will be made and old friends will be treasured, but the Charlevoix High School graduating class of 2007 will never be forgotten. Thanks to all who contributed to the success of these students and to those who will continue to help.

> 'I'm so nervous to go to the University of Michigan this fall,' said senior Ian Hughes. 'It'll definitely be different not having anyone there to watch out for me with my diabetes. Also, I'm nervous about entering the engineering program; it'll be hard.'

Charlevoix artist showing in Glenn

More than 100 crows by Charlevoix artist Meredith Krell will be flying, scavenging and cavorting around at Vesuvius Gallery, near Glenn, for "A Murder of Crows" 11 a.m.-6 p.m. on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through June 24 in celebration of the gallery's 100th exhibit.

"A Murder of Crows" features Krell's linoleum prints, paintings and mixed media work based on her most popular and intriguing subject matter, crows and ravens.

"A Murder of Crows" takes a look back at her imagery through the years and combines it with a selection of new work. All artwork is available for sale. Vesuvius opened in 1993 and Krell first exhibited her work at the gallery in 1994.

For a viewing by appointment, call (269) 227-3970.

Vesuvius is located in an 1866 Greek revival farmhouse, between South Haven and Saugatuck at 1173 Blue Star Highway, one mile south of Glenn. Visit them on the web at www.vesuviusgallery.com

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

For the 77th consecutive year, the time honored tradition of "Venetian" will soon embrace Charlevoix in our annual celebration of life, family and community. The "Venetian" mission of elevating our spirit of community is more timely than ever, as we struggle with the temporary loss of our downtown jewel, East Park, during her well deserved construction make over. "Venetian" will forge ahead with alternative downtown venues in 2007, which may prompt greater appreciation of such community blessings as Lake Michigan Beach and the new Charlevoix Public Library. The wonderful Charlevoix tradition of "Venetian" would not be possible without the support of the Venetian Burgee Club, those individuals, organizations and businesses who have generously contributed funds, goods and services to the Festival. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2006 Venetian Burgee Club who are reflected below.

Opportunities abound for volunteer service in the Venetian Corps and financial support through the Venetian Burgee Club. Burgee Club members are entitled to commemorative burgee pennants emblazoned with the Venetian Logo, the current year and their sponsorship level, so that they may display their annual tradition of Venetian support. Call 547-3872 for information. Such financial support is especially critical to maintain the recent Venetian tradition of nationally renowned, two-night fireworks displays, which will again be launched in 2007 on Friday, July 27th and Saturday, July 28th. While the Venetian Board anticipates a Friday night fireworks display in 2008, sufficient financial support must be realized within the 2007 Festival in order to do so.

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix High School student Sam Balasz spent the first half of 2007 as a congressional page in Washington, D.C.

> It was a lot of fun, the school was a little bit harder than here and I was getting up a lot earlier.
> Sam Balasz
> CONGRESSIONAL PAGE

Congressman Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, selected Charlevoix High School junior Sam Balasz to be a Congressional Page for the U.S. House of Representatives for the 2007 spring semester. On June 12, the Courier sat down with Balasz to talk about his semester.

What was it like to work with Congressman Bart Stupak?

I really didn't work specifically for him, I just worked for every congressman, whoever needed me at the moment. Their office would call and I would go and run a letter for them. I worked for anyone and everyone.

Could you explain a little more about your position and your typical day there?

I would work on the House floor, a congressman's office would call in and say "I need this letter to go to the hopper to be put into the Congressional Record," or "I need a letter to this office," and then I'd have to go to each office building. There's three office buildings and they're all connected by tunnels. I'd have to go there and come back, a lot of walking.

What was your impression of Washington, D.C., was this your first visit?

It's not the first time I've been there but I love the city, there's so much to do and I just loved seeing all the sights and monuments.

What high school did you go to in Washington, D.C.?

It's a high school just for congressional pages and it's in the Jefferson building at the Library of Congress.

How was your semester there?

It was a lot of fun, the school was a little bit harder than here and I was getting up a lot earlier. School starts at 6:45 and then I was going to work at 11:30 every day and then working until 5:15 or later.

Where did you live?

I lived in a dorm a couple blocks from the capital and it's just for the pages.

You're going to be a senior this year, has this experience influenced how you'll spend your senior year?

Not really. I pretty much had the same outlook on my senior year. Taking a hard schedule and continuing sports. I'm going to be running cross country in the fall and playing baseball in the spring.

What are your plans for college?

I'm looking at in-state schools, the University of Michigan and Michigan State. I'm not sure what I want to major in yet.

How did this experience compare to your experiences working in Africa with your dad?

This is completely different than Africa, but this experience was amazing. Nothing compares to it, it was the greatest thing I'd ever done.

Beatles photographer to speak Friday

Internationally renowned photographer Bill Eppridge will be at the Crooked Tree Arts Center for a Coffee at Ten lecture at 10 a.m. and a gallery talk at 7 p.m. Friday, June 22, discussing his life as a photojournalist and his time spent with the Beatles on their first U.S. tour captured in the current exhibition at the arts center entitled "The Beatles! Backstage and Behind the Scenes."

Revisit the beginnings of the magical mystery tour with a fine art photography exhibition from the archives of CBS and LIFE, where Eppridge worked. Eighty-four never-before-published images of The Beatles are showcased in this exhibition, magnifying a condensed 1964 time-frame as the Fab Four won new North American audiences and revolutionized rock music at an unprecedented pace.

Eppridge graduated from the Missouri School of Journalism in 1960 and his first assignment was a nine-month, round-the-world photographic shoot for National Geographic magazine. Eppridge worked for LIFE from 1962 through 1972 and his assignments ranged from photographing wild horses in Montana, to the 50th anniversary of the Soviet Revolution; from the Beatles first days in the United States to the war in Vietnam.

When Robert Kennedy was assassinated in Los Angeles during the 1968 campaign for the Presidency, Eppridge was 12 feet behind the Senator when he was shot. The photograph of Senator Kennedy lying on the floor, his head cradled by a busboy, was taken by Eppridge and is one of the most famous images in photojournalism.

Sports Illustrated hired Eppridge after LIFE dissolved and he dove into sports coverage on stories such as five Olympic games; five America's Cup campaigns; the awful consequences of the explosion of Mount St. Helens and the oil spill of the Exxon Valdez.

Eppridge's visit to Petoskey will be a highlight of the programming behind the current exhibition at the Crooked Tree Arts Center which will be on display through July 8.

"We've Got It and Then Some"

Consign Design brings affordable furnishings, acccessories to Charlevoix

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

With the recent opening of Consign Design, treasure hunters, art aficionados and collectors of antiques have yet another reason to visit Charlevoix.

Owned and operated by Mary Adams and her husband, Chuck, Consign Design, located at 211 Bridge St. Suite B, offers both buyers and sellers a place to conduct their business be it Baroque or Vetruvian, expensive or cheap.

"Our goal was find something every person can afford. We have some nice things with better quality than Wal-Mart, but we can compete with Wal-Mart prices because our stock is used," Mary Adams said. "We have some original artwork, some antiques and used furniture that's in good condition. Right now we have a really beautiful end table/cabinet priced at $28, we have linens priced as low as $1, we have some lamps priced as low as $14 and then we have expensive things like $700 lamps priced at $350."

Adams said her stock changes on a daily basis.

"We have stuff going out and stuff coming in all the time. I think it's really fun to get to see all the different things people collected themselves that they are now extinguishing collections or tired of it or trading up," she said. "It's like bits and pieces of people's lives — it's always interesting."

While Consign Design may be a buyer's paradise, Adams urges sellers to stop in for a look.

"We are looking for new consignors and we take a variety of items (non-electronic household items) like rugs, dishes, lamps and any kind of accessories, pictures, crystal, china, linens, just a lot of stuff," she said. "If they (people looking to sell on consignment) have small items, they can bring them in, of course they have to be in good condition and clean, or we have someone who will pick up larger items after hours."

There is a small charge for picking up larger items depending on how long it takes.

"We determine what the retail value is, if we can, and discount 60 percent off the original price for the first month," Adams said. "Then, each month for three months after that, the price goes down 10 percent. You can get some good deals."

The large discounts apply to items which are not antiques, but added, "We have the antiques appraised and sold at a reasonable price."

Adams has been a collector for years, but this is her first venture in the retail sale of them.

"We used to sell and buy antiques on consignment at various places and ended up having a back stock of antiques," she said. "I was on the committee for Cool Cities and everyone said we need affordable furniture and home accessories and affordable art and another antique shop downtown."

She added, "Since I'm one of the biggest critics of empty stores downtown, I decided to do it. I see us somewhere between the Rainbow Shoppe and retail."

Some of her current stock includes European antiques, a kitchen table for less than $25, mission pieces, arts and crafts pieces and rattan furniture from the 1940s by Heywood-Wakefield.

"That rattan is like the coolest thing we have right now, and it's in perfect original condition. We have side chairs, end tables a game table and a sofa," she said. "It can be broken down and sold individually. There is also a rocker that is very cool."

Adams added, "I hope that (Consign Design) will be an asset to the community. We intend to be open year-round. The best thing about it is, when someone comes in and doesn't have a large budget, there is something they can afford."

Adams and her husband have owned a cottage in Charlevoix since 1990 and lived year-round since 1995.

May Street apartment fire

Firefighters battle a blaze in a three-unit apartment building on Wednesday, June 13, at 999 May St. While the fire was stopped before the building collapsed, the dwelling is no longer habitable.

At approximately 11:10 a.m. on Wednesday, June 13, Charlevoix Fire Department responded to a structure fire at 999 May St. The building contains three apartments owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wise of East Jordan.

When firefighters arrived, fire was visible in the center of the building and from the roof in the center of the building. Fire did extend to all apartments through the common attic.

The one tenant who was home when the fire started was able to escape without injury. No one was injured while fighting the fire.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation. Firefighters were on the scene for nearly two hours.

The building is no longer habitable.

Firefighters were assisted on the scene by the Charlevoix Police Department, Charlevoix County Sheriffs Department, Michigan State Police and city electric and water departments.

Appellate court upholds anti-smoking regulation

BY FRED GRAY
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Court of Appeals has effectively upheld the four-county Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's authority to adopt an anti-smoking regulation that went into effect last year.

The appellate court upheld Charlevoix Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas' order denying a motion for summary disposition in the case, filed by five citizens who argued that the state Legislature had pre-empted the authority of local health departments to regulate the smoking issue.

The regulation prohibits smoking in all public places within health department's jurisdiction — Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Otsego counties —, and requires employers who do not wholly prohibit smoking at an enclosed place of employment to designate an approved smoking room.

In the case before him last August, Pajtas said the issue was narrowly limited to one of pre-emption and did not include arguments over the dangers of second-hand smoke or government interference in individual rights.

In its ruling this week, the appellate court held that under the Michigan Public Health Code (PHC) the state department of community health could authorize a local health department to enforce the smoking restrictions set by the Michigan Clean Indoor Air Act (MCIAA).

"The preliminary provisions of the PHC require that the code and each of its various parts 'be liberally construed for the protection of the health, safety and welfare of the people of this state,'" the court said.

Attorneys for both sides said they expected Pajtas' decision to be appealed all the way to the Michigan Supreme Court.

"This case is exceedingly important statewide," health department attorney Jim Young said at the time, adding that although he had no direct evidence, he believed the plaintiffs had the secret backing of tobacco companies, a charge plaintiffs' attorney firmly denied.

Young said the he believed the plaintiffs had selected a small, rural Northern Michigan county to test the authority of health departments throughout the state be-

Rayders baseball ends season with semifinal loss

After a record setting season on the field, the Rayder boys' baseball team finished their season with a loss in district semifinals to Boyne City, 5-4.

"It was a disappointing way to end the season. We felt like we had a good chance to win the districts this year but we didn't get it done. In a one-run game like this, there were a lot of things that made a difference, but we have to give credit to Boyne City," said coach Allen Telgenhof. "They only got two hits to the outfield all day off Ty (Telgenhof), but they bunted like crazy. We made some key errors and they manufactured five runs. I told the guys I felt like I let them down with a key decision I made to have our guys be too aggressive on the bases which cost us a run."

He added, "Some people might question why we didn't throw Chris Waha against Boyne City but they hadn't hit Ty when we played earlier in the season. We figured we'd be playing East Jordan if we made it to the district finals and they hadn't hit Waha. So taking all of that into account, we thought throwing Ty in game one and Chris in game two gave us the best chance to win a district championship."

Telgenhof said his plan didn't work out as he had hoped.

"Charlevoix scored two in the first on a catcher's interference, an error and a (Michael) Heckendorn RBI single. Boyne came back with one in the bottom of the inning on a single, a stolen base, a passed ball and a ground out," he said. "Boyne scored two in the bottom of the third on a walk, single and two straight errors to take a 3-2 lead. Charlevoix tied it in the top of four on a Ty Telgenhof RBI single. In the bottom of four, they took the lead for good on a single, walk, bunt single and sacrifice fly."

He added, "They scored an insurance run in the fifth with a two-out rally that began with an error, followed by two walks and an RBI single. Charlevoix scored in the sixth on a walk and a Ty Telgenhof RBI double but left him stranded on second. Chris Waha pitched the sixth inning for us, striking out two."

Charlevoix left six runners on base, including four in scoring position. Boyne City left six on as well, with five in scoring position.

Ty Telgenhof had a single and double and two RBI. J.D. Speigl had a single and a double. Cliff Jones had two singles. Heckendorn had a single and Ty Telgenhof was the losing pitcher wit 5 innings pitched, five runs, one earned run, five strikeouts and five base on balls.

While Coach Telgenhof admits his boys came up short of all their goals for the season, they had many successes.

"We won 22 games, which is second in school history. We scored 267 runs which blew away the old school record of 220, set in 1982. We also had a lot of individual honors, and they continue to come in," Telgenhof said. "Chris Waha was unbelievable all year long, setting a school record for strikeouts by a pitcher with 108. He won eight ball games which is third in school history. He led our team with a 1.55 ERA and with 36 RBIs and a .379 average as a hitter."

He added, "Cliff Jones tied the school record for runs scored in a season with 37."

As for the next season in Charlevoix Rayder baseball, Telgenhof said, "The future of our program is bright with sophomores Heckendorn and Jon Putman and freshman Clayton Mitchell having great seasons. Heckendorn batted .365, scored 28 runs and drove in 21. Putman hit .288, scored 35 runs and knocked in 23. Mitchell brought up eight games into the season, hit .289, scored 29 runs and stole 20 bases. Ty had a fine year as our number two starter and will be ready to step up to be the number one guy next year."

Ban on smoking upheld in state court cause the plaintiffs believed the local agency had neither the resources nor the will to withstand a legal challenge, as larger counties might have.

Asked to comment on the appellate court decision, health officer Gerry Chase said: "I thank the boards of commissioners of all four counties who accepted our arguments that the regulation was needed to protect the public health and that of individuals, and that it was totally legal.

"Since its adoption we have had enforcement actions which have been resolved at the cost of correspondence to owners of businesses, who have complied with the requirements."

None of the appellants, Kent McNeil, Franklin Fisher, Roger Griffin, Scott Way or Jeff Legato, could be reached for comment.

Rayder girls' team finishes 18-10

The Rayder girls' varsity softball team ended their season with 18 wins and 10 losses

"It was a very good season as we built off of the '06 season where we ended with a 12-12 record," said coach Tony Zimmerman. "All of the young ladies went into every game with the confidence that we were going to come out on top. They played hard all season and never quit until the final out was made and I am very proud of them for their efforts."

Lake Michigan Conference all-conference selections went to sophomore catcher Lauren Mielke with a .462 batting average and to junior pitcher/first base Desi Faust with a .444 batting average. The Lake Michigan Conference honorable mention selections went to sophomore and third basemen Erica Faust with a .391 batting average and sophomore pitcher/first base Amber Hoffman with a .374 batting average.

"We will be losing seven seniors. Those players include four-year player Sasha Spencley, three-year players Chariesse Rogers and Janay Drost, two-year player Kara Cieslecwyk, and one-year players Renee Drew, Kim Rosen and Jill Loper. These (girls) will be missed and it has been a joy to coach this group of young ladies and I wish them the best in there future endeavors," Zimmerman said.

"For the '08 season we are looking forward to building on our success with the core group we have coming back. The future looks bright with second basemen Leah Kelly (with a) .328 batting average, outfielder Caitilyn Mitchell (with a) .285 batting average with one home run along with Mielke, Desi Faust, Hoffman and Erica Faust with three home runs," he said.

He added, "We will look for these players to lead the team

Resident seeks recall of 4 on board

RECALL

tention of the board."

Since the first of the year the board has allowed public comment at both the beginning and end of their meetings until Wednesday's meeting.

In a post-meeting interview, Trubilowicz said he felt the Wednesday meeting was a continuation of Monday's meeting and therefore didn't need more public comment.

A former teacher at schools in Florida and current Charlevoix resident, Pam Beatty, attempted to speak and again Truhilowicz said no public comment would occur.

"There should be an uprising of the people," said Beatty, who was supported by Ike Boss.

"There will be," Boss said. "There will be a recall tomorrow, believe me. I will circulate the petitions to recall every board member that votes to hire an assistant principal and you will be recalled. The people will speak."

He added, "This is not a communist country, yet. But this must be a communist board if we can't speak."

Board member Christine Michaud said the elementary students will still have specials, though the duration will be shorter.

"We do need an athletic director. We do need a disciplinarian in the high school," she said. "Numbers are down in the elementary school and the middle school and so therefore, teachers, if we didn't have enough for them to do, maybe we should lay them off part-time if they don't have a class to go to."

The elementary school went from a fall 2003 head count of 451 to 431 in 2004 and 421 in 2005. The middle school went from a fall 2003 head count of 433 to 427 in 2004 and 393 in 2005. The high school went from a fall 2003 head count of 455 to 479 in 2004 and back to 455 in 2005.

Following the meeting, Beatty expressed her disappointment with the entire evening.

"They didn't allow the people to speak," she said. "All elementary children are being affected by these cuts. PE, art and music time is being cut. They pink-slipped teachers and got rid of support staff so they can appoint people to, positions in administration? These cuts are going to affect the children."

Beatty said during her time in Florida, they had far more children per school and managed to operate without an assistant principal.

"I hate to see children and teachers affected at the cost of administration when it has been done and can be done without (additional administration)," she said.

Michaud said the administrators would not put more work on the teachers than they can handle.

Truhilowicz said the board is getting down to making difficult cuts.

"Do we want to lay anyone off? Absolutely not," he said. "That is certainly not my choice ... but it comes down to a question of, 'How critical is it to have an assistant principal?'"

Prior to the 5-1 vote in favor of the motion for an assistant principal, Truhilowicz said Stevens was against hiring the assistant principal/athletic director. Larry Levengood voted against the measure.

As he had stated during Wednesday's meeting, Boss began the process to recall Christine Michaud, Diane Kilkenny, Dean Spencley and McLean on Thursday, June 14.

"I've pulled the petitions, I'm looking through election law and getting an attorney's opinion on the wording," he said. "(Then), I'll get it turned back into the county for certification."

Spencley said if Boss is that deadset against the assistant principal/athletic director position, then he should file the recall, but after asking the three administrators if the high school principal's job could be done with that position, they said no.

Aside from the decision to hire an assistant principal/athletic director, Boss was unhappy with the way the meeting was conducted.

"It was illegal. There was not an open meeting because they would not let anybody talk," he said. "We elected those people. They're spending our taxpayer money, but they think they're spending their own money."

Boss questioned whether or not the board is really working for the best interests of Charlevoix's students.

"The people did not want an assistant principal and they

Board questioned on teacher layoffs

(board) still went ahead with it anyway," he said. "The board just needs to know who they're working for."

He added, "I'm going to find out what the people really want."

Boss said he understands you cannot put everything to a vote, but added, "When you have little over 400 kids in the high school and you're laying off teachers and to keep an administrator, well, the people of the town will decide whether that decision was right."

The next item on the agenda was to appoint a high school principal.

Following deliberation by the board on whether or not it was appropriate for current middle school principal, Keith Haske, to continue coaching if he takes the position as high school principal, they voted 5-1 to appoint him, with the restriction he may not coach during the 2007-2008 school year.

Interim superintendent Jim Cooper said the newly hired superintendent, Chet Janik, felt an administrator should not coach and Levengood, who was the lone nay vote, said Haske deserved better.

The board then voted unanimously to appoint current assistant high school principal, Suzanne Klinger, as the middle school principal.

In financial matters, Charlevoix Public Schools will not face the sting of proration as was originally feared.

"We're not anticipating losing any of the (per pupil funding)," said school business manager, Shawn Biddle, who would not go so far as to call the news a win.

"I think the victory will be when we know, when making these budgets in June, what our foundation allowance will be the following year," she said.

Biddle budgeted for the upcoming school year with the prediction of receiving the same amount of per pupil funding as last year, though that number is not yet known.

Some cuts made by the board include four teachers laid off with one to be called back at two-thirds time, summer studies and a counseling position.

Over the past five years, Charlevoix schools have made nearly $4 million in cuts in an attempt to keep up with declining enrollment and Michigan's slumping economy.

Haske was out of town and unable to return phone calls by press time. According to his wife, Haske had not yet been offered the position by the board as of Friday, June 15.

Board members Michaud and McLean did not return phone calls on a possible recall by press time.

When asked how she felt about the recall drive, Kilkenny said she knew nothing of it aside from Boss' threats during the June 13 meeting.

"Well, it certainly is his right to do so. I don't feel we made the wrong decision," she said. "There is no member of the board that is an educator. We took advice, as well as all three principals, and they believe this is a necessary position and weighing all the options at that point to have that position, I think, is very important."

Kilkenny said, with all the changes facing Charlevoix schools, now is not the time to shortchange the high school.

Trubilowicz said he is disappointed someone would attempt to recall board members, "when they don't get their way."

He added, "They elected us to be their representatives and it's not like we're doing anything with criminal intent."

Boat well hearing set on June 26

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality will hold a public hearing on proposed dredging, installation of a floating dock and the construction of a boathouse on Round Lake.

The hearing, scheduled for 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 26, at the Charlevoix County Sheriff Department located at 1000 Grant St. in Charlevoix, pertains to the application filed by APJ Properties LLC attention: Jim Anderson, 579 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Shores, 48236.

"The applicant proposes to dredge an upland boat well and an entry channel, install a floating dock system and construct a boathouse on Round Lake at 304 East Dixon Avenue for the purpose of providing protected dockage and dry winter storage," as stated in the application for permit number: 07-15-0019-P. "Approximately 1,000 cubic yards will be excavated from upland to create a 60-foot by 30-foot boat well. Crooked Tree summer 2007 classes

Meet other artists and join in the fun this summer at the Crooked Tree Arts Center by taking a summer art class. There are offerings of various lengths and in different media throughout the summer for children and adults.

Watercolor: The Fearless Approach

Donna Vogelheim

9 a.m.-3:30 p.m., July 11-12

Level: Beginner to advanced beginner

Members: $150 /non-members $185

Minimum: Six students, maximum 16 students ages 17 to adult

Watercolor is such a beautiful medium, but hard to control. In this two-day workshop take the fear out of painting with this medium by doing simple exercises that will teach all the basic techniques.

Color and its characteristics will also be discussed to make the watercolor experience easier and fun.

Attendees can also make a technique reference manual from the painting exercises done in class.

Watercolor: Shape not Object

Donna Vogelheim

9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m., July 23-25

Level: Advanced beginners-advanced

Members: $225 /non-members ; $260

Minimum: Six students, maximum 16 students ages 17 to adult

Good composition is accomplished by putting together beautiful shapes to create a painting.

It is important not to focus only on the objects, but the resulting shape that several objects make.

This will start off with an exercise that will shift the focus to that end.

The subject matter will be the landscape with many demonstrations and illustrations of its component parts.

A brief discussion of color will enhance painting technique and experience.

Part of the time will be spent out of doors to put this knowledge in practice.

Summer Ceramics with Jim Beckering

Youth Ceramics for ages 7-14 1-3 p.m. Wednesdays, June 13 to Aug. 1

Adult Ceramics for ages 15-adult 5-8 p.m. Wednesdays, June 13 to Aug. 1

Skills: You will learn minimum skills using the potter's wheel, slab building, coil building, glaze application, and firing.

The first class is intended as a foundation for more specialized learning in the future.

Knowledge of art: We will work at some basic questions about art. Why is art done? How does an artist come up with ideas?

What are the strategies of creativity used by artists?

How art is made expressive and meaningful?

Knowledge of ceramics: We will cover the special qualities of the materials and processes used in ceramics.

You will learn about clay bodies and glazes, firing kilns, as well as various ways to form and decorate ceramic work.

Learning in art — how it happens: We take class time to discuss student work in progress.

You might also clarify your ideas by discussing your pieces with a classmate. What do your pieces say to another person?

Talking and critiquing can also be very helpful in identifying some quality in your work which you may have been unaware of.

Ask for instructor counsel. The teacher knows this is a beginning class, so don't hesitate to seek advice.

If class time is too busy, ask for an appointment.

Adult class members: $180, non-members: $215

Fees include all glazes, firings and your first 25-pound bag of clay. After the first bag, additional clay can be purchased at $10 per bag.

Youth class members: $120, non-members: $140

Fees includes all glazes, firings and clay

Minimum class size: Six students, maximum class size: 10 students

Paper Batik Workshop

10 a.m.-3 p.m. on July 31 through Aug. 2

Paper batik is very similar to cloth batik using wax and paint/ink and proceeding from the lightest colors to the darkest.

Rice paper is used instead of cloth; watercolors are used instead of dye. The process of paper batik will be demonstrated step-by-step, examples will be shown and possible ideas will be covered.

There will be plenty of time for each student to complete one or two batiked designs. Designs may be simple or more complex.

You may want to bring some design ideas or some reference materials/photos from which to work (photos of flowers form your garden, landscape photos, photos of animals, fish, etc.).

Also, if you have watercolors, you may want to bring them along to use.

Members: $100, non-members $135

Fee includes all materials

Students experience lake

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and the Lake Charlevoix Association hosted the 14th "Experience Lake Charlevoix" event on May 22 and 23 for sixth-graders of the Lake Charlevoix watershed.

More than 300 students from Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix, Concord Academy-Boyne and Northwest Academy came aboard the Beaver Islander to participate in the annual field trip adventure.

Students visited seven stations aboard the boat designed to teach them about Lake Charlevoix and its watershed, including water quality, ecology and safety.

More than 20 volunteers worked hard to help make this program a success.

Steve Braun recieves champions of character award

The long-standing contribution Steve Braun, golf professional at the Charlevoix Belvedere Club, has made to the popular Charlevoix Area Junior Golf program has not gone unnoticed.

His efforts for 12 seasons were recognized recently by the Beyond the Scoreboard, Inc. Braun's selection to receive a Champion of Character Award for his efforts as a youth sports leader was announced by Jack Taylor, executive director.

Steve joined several other local golf enthusiasts to start the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's program in 1994 and has volunteered to teach youngsters the fundamentals of golf. However, Braun's involvement doesn't stop here.

As the program grew to between 150 and 200 young golfers, several unique features were added.

Scholarships to the prestigious Ferris State University and Boyne Academy week-long golf camp were awarded to five to six golfers annually who displayed a passion for the game.

So he began a fundraising venture to generate funds for the scholarship program by taking pledges and playing 100 holes in a day.

Over the past few years, his efforts have raised more than $40,000 for the program.

Junior golf program director Dean Davenport, who nominated Braun as a candidate for the award, was excited that he was selected. "Steve certainly deserved to be recognized for his continued efforts to help our area youngsters learn life's skills through playing golf in our program.

We were recognized by the National Junior Golf Association as one of the top 13 programs in the country a few years ago and our unique scholarship program was singled out as being part of the reason. All recipients of our camp scholarships have benefited greatly from the week away from home and learning about themselves and about golf."

The Beyond the Scoreboard banquet was scheduled for June 19, and was held at the new Community Building located at the Petoskey fair grounds.

Taylor, in focusing on the mission of the organization, added, "Beyond the Scoreboard is about teaching the principles and life lessons to coaches, athletes, parents and officials. We will recognize the area's outstanding high school and youth coaches, sports leaders, and outstanding high school athletes at our third annual awards banquet.

We are pleased to recognize Steve Braun's excellent record and achievement that stands in harmony with our mission in sports."

Norwood mine moves forward

Wayne Wynkoop

The Norwood Township Planning Commission voted 6-1 to allow the Norwood Limestone Mine, LLC to operate as long as it meets certain criteria, but the issue is nowhere close to dead.

First, Norwood Township supervisor, Wayne Wynkoop, owner of the gravel operation, must await planning commission minutes approval at their regular July 9 meeting before again going before Judge Thomas Powers to present the special use permit and find out whether the court will lift a stay of operations imposed on Wynkoop back in January.

"I feel relieved that one stepping stone is out of the way for the time being, but I think the writing has been out there that this is far from being over," Wynkoop said.

Judge grants Central Drug bandit plea deal

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Robert Wilks

Robert Jason Wilks, the 25-year-old Bellaire man who attempted to rob Central Drug Store of Charlevoix last January and later arrested on March 6, was found guilty of attempted unarmed robbery.

According to Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema, Wilks received a plea deal after Central Drug owner, John Ochs, asked for leniency.

"I felt it was a good result. It relied on the victim's wishes in this case as far as the plea," Jarema said. "This case shows the addictive nature of prescription drugs."

In a written statement from Ochs to the court he stated, "I never felt threatened by Mr. Wilks. He did not threaten us (Ochs and his father Frank) with harm if we did not give him narcotics nor did he say he had a gun. Because he was facing me, I could not see the butt of the gun that my father saw."

Victim requests lenience in Wilks sentencing

"My understanding is that he is a known drug abuser. I feel sorry for him that he felt he is so addicted that he needed to try to rob a pharmacy to support his habit," Ochs further stated. "I certainly do not condone what he did and I feel he has to be held responsible for his actions."

He added, "I would like to have him forced to undergo drug rehabilitation and only incarcerated if he refuses, does not complete it or relapses into drug use again."

Wilks was ordered in May to serve the rest of his 90-day sentence with the possibility of time off for good behavior, which is statutory, and ordered to pay $820 in fines and costs as well as serve 24 months on probation.

Before being sentenced, Wilks read a prepared statement to the court in which he told them he is an Eagle Scout, a long-time depression and chronic pain sufferer, computer enthusiast, recovering drug addict and soon to be convicted felon.

"I believe Mr. Ochs saved my life by denying me the drugs I demanded," he said. "I realize now, more than ever, that while I thought what I was doing was only going to hurt myself, how many people I have already caused pain and the countless others my actions that day could have affected."

Wilks recounted his introduction into the world of prescription drug abuse.

"Opiates ... were my drug of choice. I had start(ed) using them when I could not find adequate medical treatment for my pain," he said. "In the end, I sought them on my own illegally and began treating myself, mirroring other people's doses."

Wilks said his eight-year period of self medication led to, "a skyrocketing tolerance and ultimately daily intravenous use."

"My personal supply, and what I thought were all other choices exhausted, and in the grip of a full day of withdrawal including intense physical pain and mental duress, I decided I was going to kill myself," he said. "As I was driving home from work, the trigger of seeing a drug store containing the very things I knew would end my pain ... drove me to this act of total desperation."

Wilks told the court he hopes, "that my actions have not permanently scarred the victims."

"Thanks to the support of my family, friends and countless others who at first only knew me by my self-inflicted, tarnished name, I am in recovery after over three months of intense rehabilitation including medical and mental therapy," he said. "For the first time in over 14 years, my depression is almost completely under control, I have minimal pain and I look forward to each day and the rest of my life."

Wilks apologized for his actions and added, "While it has been proven relapse is a part of recovery, I know deep within my soul that my next relapse will be a funeral, and I have more reasons to live now than I ever have."

The parade will proceed from Holy Cross Church. This year's theme is "Water, Woods, Wonderland." In case of rain, the parade will he delayed until 3 or 4 p.m. if necessary.

Following the parade is a kid's carnival that features a dunk tank of prominent Beaver Islanders. This year, Beaver Island Community School principal Kitty McNamara will lead the line up of dunkees.

West said visitors of the public beach may be in for a surprise.

"There's a rumor that some skydivers are going to jump out of an airplane trailing red, white and blue," he said.

Just before dusk, the Clyde Fogg Memorial Boat Parade will take place in the harhor, followed by a fireworks display put on the hy the island's fire department.

Every year, the community of Horton Bay, west of Boyne City, hosts a parade that is completely non-commercial.

The Horton Bay General Store hosts a variety of activities to promote the parade, including an auction that helps fund next year's event. The parade costs the community ahout $3,000 to $4,000 each year. The auction's highest bidder will be invited to a special event on the store's upper deck that includes drinks and appetizers.

The parade will begin at 1 p.m. at the intersection of Horton Bay and Boyne City-Charlevoix roads, continue down Boyne City-Charlevoix Road and end in front of the Horton Bay United Methodist Church. Textbooks, tools of special interest?

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

As a lifelong lover of history, I was shocked when I learned Abraham Lincoln, Christopher Columbus and Thomas Jefferson dabbled in corporate welfare, genocide and slavery.

I wasn't shocked so much because I thought these men incapable of dirty doings, but because I had been taught otherwise as a child. After all, it's not like my teachers admitted to using textbooks handcrafted with the most selective chunks of misinformation special interest attack dogs could manipulate.

Don't get me wrong, I lay none of the onus on schools or teachers and all of the blame on the knowledge industry — those multinational textbook corporations who bow to extremist groups interested only in shaping factoids around the environment, sexual preference, religion and politics — truth be damned.

Instead of feeding the yearnin' for learnin', they foster super patriotism, compliance with authority and adoration of apparently infallible capitalism.

According to his 2003 Senate testimony, Gilbert T. Sewall of the American Textbook Council said, "Textbook content is thinner and thinner, and what there is, it is increasingly deformed by identity politics and pressure groups."

Flipping through a couple middle and high school history books recently I noticed some blatant omissions and sentimental treatments of some serious schmucks.

Your kids may learn Columbus was an explorer in a section which queries, "What happens when different societies meet?" but the only mention of brutality comes in the quote about the queen of Spain becoming angry when she heard Columbus mistreated the people of what we now call Hispaniola.

Desperate to learn of this "mistreatment" I called Macalester College anthropologist, Jack Weatherford, who told me, "No encounter in history was worse than that between the Europeans and the Americans," but to be more specific, Columbus' men killed natives for dog food, forced them to pay tribute, raped their women, kidnapped and enslaved hundreds and thousands of them. Oh, and European disease killed 90 percent of the native population over the next century.

Your kids' hooks are also remiss in telling how Honest Abe saw blacks as an inferior in all respects and, while debated among academics, Thomas DiLorenzo states in his book "The Real Lincoln," that, "Lincoln invaded the South without the consent of Congress, as called for in the Constitution; declared martial law; blockaded Southern ports without a declaration of war, as required by the Constitution; illegally suspended the writ of habeas corpus; imprisoned without trial thousands of Northern anti-war protesters, including hundreds of newspaper editors and owners; (And) censored all newspaper and telegraph communication."

One of the textbooks dances around president Woodrow Wilson's rabid racism, after all, he was but a man of the times, but practically pats him on his pointy white hood for creating the Federal Reserve Bank by stating, "this improved the nation's monetary and banking system."

But who needs truth? If kids knew their money was valued somewhere between a punched lunch ticket and a Taco Bell napkin they might be apt to revolt.

This country has too much to celebrate to risk losing our self-appointed status as moral arbiter by covering up our naughty bits.

Nevertheless, we lie to our children because we are afraid they might not forgive us for the truth, and then we have the gall to wonder why they rebel when they get to college and learn their K—12 years were replete with lemon scented horse dung.

How can students think critically, appreciate past sacrifices and be ever-vigilant of man's temptation for tyranny if we fail to dispense the bad with the good?

Keeping our kids deaf, dumb and blind may be easier for us and the purveyors of knowledge, but it won't go very far to prevent future historical horrors.

LETTERS to the editor

TRUE CHARACTER

Editor:

Accidents sometimes happen to even good people who exercise reasonable care in the performance of their duties. While it is always easy to criticize a person for an accident, I prefer to look at how the person reacts to an unfortunate event. In my opinion, this shows the real character of a person.

Case in point. This spring Douglas Bergmann of Bergmann Marine was transporting my sailboat and the boat slipped in its cradle and fell off the trailer causing a substantial amount of damage. The Courier ran a picture of the boat on its side on the front page to the great embarrassment to Douglas personally and to his business. I thought it might be important for your readers to hear the rest of the story.

From the first phone call to me, Douglas took full responsibility and said that he would personally see that everything was made right. Douglas worked hard with the insurance company and the boat manufacturer. He personally made sure that all of the damage was fully identified and repaired. This week the sailboat was delivered in spotless "white glove" condition with all repairs made. In fact, my inspection shows that Douglas went beyond repairs authorized by the insurance company because he wanted to return the boat in better condition than when it went into storage last fall. I very much admire Douglas and his character in the way he handled himself following the accident. Both he and his company are a shining example of what is right with American business and he is a credit to our community.

Yes accidents do happen to good people. During a difficult time and great embarrassment, Douglas has shown his true character. I remain proud to tell everyone that Bergmann Marine remains my marine company. We could all learn by Douglas' example of taking responsibility and then making it right.

Scientific and novice views of global warming

CARE enough to learn

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

So, you have decided that global warming is a real threat and that something needs to be done about it. Now, what to do? I have a small suggestion.

On Saturday, June 30 at the Charlevoix Public Library WATCH (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix) and CARE (Conservation and Renewable Energy) are sponsoring an educational fair that will help in making decisions about what to do. It begins at 9:45 a.m. and it's free.

As a lifelong teacher of ecology and conservation, I have always thought that the solution to most environmental problems required education. The CARE Fair is hoping to educate and motivate both children and adults, and begin to make Charlevoix County a model of appropriate response to energy and resource concerns. Don't miss it.

And now for something completely different, but maybe related. Summer seems to have arrived even earlier than its official beginning on June 22. Both Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix are warmer than they have been on these dates during the 12 or 13 years. Salmon have arrived earlier than in the past and I caught a small mouth bass in the Pine River Channel last week. The garden got an earlier start than in many years, and there may even be the possibility of some sweet potatoes maturing if late summer is kind to me.

All that earlier start can be something of an advantage for the human population and our closest plant companions. But those organisms that have lived here for a few thousand years and don't have our easy capacity to move if necessary or desirable, may be subject to serious confusion or even serious problems. Suppose for argument's sake, you are a small mammal that ordinarily sheds last year's crop of insulating hair, beginning on a date determined by date length. If it gets warm some time before that date, your life is likely to be as uncomfortable as would ours if the air conditioning went out in the middle of an August heat wave. Almost all plants and animals in our part of the world manage their pattern of life and reproduction on the basis of day length rather than temperature. That pattern has worked well for thousands of generations of those plants and animals. Now, if temperatures change and day length does not, the resulting confusion can retard or even eliminate reproduction of both plants and animals. And, of course, no reproduction will result eventually in the total demise of that particular organism. We don't know enough about the detailed habits and structures of most plants or animals to predict which ones might be most in danger, but it is a certain bet that many of them will be in danger.

It is clear that we live in interesting times. We can only hope that we learn enough about the effect of those times quickly enough to help hold the world together. Maybe the CARE Fair will help with the answers. Go and learn.

Roger Knuston is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. He can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6558 or by e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Is local weather a sign of a global problem?

BEHIND THE NEWS

Edith Gilbert

Charlevoix warming a sign of global problem?

Global Warming? Don't know a thing about that — but just ask me about Charlevoix Warming.

Come with me into my basement where I still have a long steel pole like a fishing rod. On the tip is a little yellow flag. When we moved to Charlevoix to live year-round in the 1960s, the snow banks were 6 feet high, and the gas stations and hardware stores sold these poles for people to attach them to the front of their car. Old timers will remember. The object was that one could see a car in advance coming around the corner. We haven't had 6 foot snow banks in Charlevoix for a great many years.

I also remember the first thing summer people did when they arrived in Charlevoix was to order a cord of wood to burn in their fireplace. We always had a nice grate fire in our fireplace on the Fourth of July. Not now. We haven't had a grate fire in June or July for many years.

Before my California summer visitors arrived, I used to tell them, "Bring sweaters and rain gear." We could count on a good three-day blow in August, but we haven't had this change of weather for a long, long time.

When the Lodge was built in the early 1960s, we were asked if we wanted air conditioners installed. "Air conditioners" we laughed. "We have cool breezes off Lake Michigan, who needs air conditioners?" Last summer I installed an air conditioner on the second floor, and many of my friends are air conditioning their cottages these days.

Old timers have described in detail when snow reached up to second story windows. Strong armed men shoveled snow that created a 5 foot high tunnel from the front door to the sidewalk. Today ski areas are hurting because there isn't enough snow to ski during Christmas vacation.

This climate change has been keeping more and more people "up north" for longer periods during the winter. "Winters aren't so bad up north anymore" people say. Instead, the two favorite get-away-months are March and April, during the mud season.

Are Charlevoix people interested in global warming or Charlevoix warming? Probably both! They want to know more about climate change, clean renewable energy, recycling and promoting conservation. For more information, attend the CARE FAIR from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 30 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

10 things you never knew about JoAnne Beemon

Bringing you closer to your neighbors ...

Charlevoix resident of nearly four decades, JoAnne Beemon, is a wife, mother of four girls and a boy as well as a substitute teacher, director of the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy and a lifelong environmentalist.

1. What is your favorite food?

Potatoes. I think it should have been the apple of the Garden of Eden.

2. What really makes you mad?

Behind the scenes government. I think there are real forces that stand and keep us from getting a trail system, that keep us from having clean storm water and that allow illegal, behind the scenes acts such as public office holders who are also being employed by the government.

3. If you could meet anyone for an hour lunch, live or dead, who would it be?

I think I would still like to take Eleanor Roosevelt and talk to her about her dream of the United Nations and peace on earth, and maybe Adlai Stevenson could come along.

4. What scares you most?

I think human stupidity, coupled with technology. We have the ability to blow ourselves up and harm the planet in irreparable ways and we do not seem to have the wisdom to understand that everything is interrelated.

5. Name something you want to accomplish?

I want to see a bike trail to Fisherman's Island (park) so every kid can ride their bike out there. I want to jump on my 1965 Schwinn and pack a big old lunch and drive that bike out to Fisherman's Island (park).

6. Who is the most interesting person you ever met?

Bobby Kennedy. He was a terrific person. We went out to Washington and met Bobby Kennedy and his message was, each one of us needed to go out in the community and make a difference.

7. If you had a magic wand and could change one thing about yourself or your world, what would it be?

That my husband and children could have strength and patience, because they need it living with me.

8. What has been your life's work?

I have had the joy of following what I think God would want me to do and that is to fight for the environment, fight for social justice and to work for the common good. I have led a charmed life. I've been able to participate in some of the most wonderful projects and see them to fruition.

9. What is something few people know about you?

I got kicked out of Gerry Ford's office. It was the late (19)60s and we picketed his office whenever he was in town. My sign said, "Free lunches, not war." We'd go in and talk to him and one day we really tried his patience and he kicked us out. He was a really nice guy, he was a terrible hawk, but a nice guy. One day he picked us up when we were hitchhiking to school and he took us to school.

10. What is your passion?

Sharing the wisdom that every person has a purpose and every person is needed. The great work of today's generation is to save the ecosystem so that we can all live.

The information for "10 things you never knew" is compiled by Courier staff writer Benjamin Gohs.

JOURNALISTS ARE NOT TOOLS OF SOCIAL CHANGE

Editor:

Your opinion, as expressed (on page 4) June 20 by Stefanie Carano in "Politicians, journalists can help society," is totally offensive to intelligent and independent thinking adults. She states that "a good journalist, like a good politician, can be pivotal in influencing beneficial social change … they have the wisdom to be open to change … they move forward with what they know is right … all for the common goal of moving the human race to a better tomorrow."

It is extremely arrogant, but typical, of the liberal elite among journalists and politicians who believe they know what is best and what is a 'better tomorrow' and that they have a role in social change because they have insight and wisdom, implying that others do not.

This attitude, along with journalistic failure to investigate and report facts without their own interpretation or feelings about them, is the very reason that journalists and politicians are held in low esteem these days. Politicians and journalists, unfortunately, have assumed a role for themselves in social change – something in which they have no legitimate involvement.

CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL?

Editor:

At first glance, Bridge Park appears to be a great place downtown Charlevoix to sit and relax with family and friends. However, every time I have merely walked nearby there is a raw-sewage-like odor in the air. This disgusting smell, rising from two unsightly large pipes at either end of the park, surprises me. I wonder if this has already been discussed while I was away at school and if so, why we, who pride ourselves on living in a beautiful place, still tolerate it. Then I wonder if it has not been discussed, why such a poor design was approved in the first place.

Bridge Park is a stain on Charlevoix and I only hope to return next summer and see that East Park is not only functional, but socially and aesthetically acceptable too.

HOW SOON WE FORGET

Editor:

Hats off. Along the street there comes a blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums and loyal hearts are beating high — a flash of color beneath the sky. Hats off. The flag is passing by.

The old saying "out of sight, out of mind" appears to be holding true in communities all across our great country. Following 9-11 everyone seemed united by flying American flags and displaying bumper stickers announcing their patriotic support of their country and, following the invasion of Iraq, by supporting our troops by displaying ribbons stating "We Support Our Troops" or "God Bless Our Troops" on their cars and trucks. If you will take notice, you will see very few messages of support being displayed and fewer privately owned American flags being displayed. How soon many appear to forget, being caught up in everyday family events.

Another disturbing cultural change is the lack of respect being shown our American flag during parades and ceremonies by the public in general and especially our children in particular. All through my childhood my parents taught me to respect our flag, our national anthem and our pledge of allegiance. Our schools used to teach patriotism and respect for our country and its symbols, but this too has seemingly been eliminated from our culture, as has God who gave us all our liberties and freedoms. It is time that we reflect on the cultural changes around us and make personal commitments to reverse these trends and return to a culture that shows the world that we are a United States of America by showing respect to our national symbols. We can begin this July 4 by standing up, removing our hats and placing our right hands over our hearts as Old Glory passes in our parades to celebrate the birth of our nation with all its freedoms. What culture do you ascribe to and support? Will you set an example for our children by showing respect for our flag when it passes by? The choice is yours.

THANKS LEAGUE SUPPORTERS

Editor:

The Northern Michigan Detachment of the Marine Corps League offers their heartfelt thanks to the generous citizenry residing in the "Tip of the Mitt," for their support of the Flag Day sales of American flags, in recent weeks.

Very few people entering area stores found it necessary to pass by the men, women and friends of the league handing out the flags. The results are gratifying.

The result was the greatest amount of money ever collected in the 10-year history of this event.

After minimal expenses, this new record will allow the league to provide three, $1,000 scholarships to high school seniors attending North Central Michigan College this fall.

An extra amount is building in an endowment account, the interest from which will eventually provide a fourth, self-sustaining scholarship.

Todd Campbell

Age: 38

Experience: Has served for four years as Sturgis' assistant city manager, three years as Greenville's assistant city manager, started his career as the Village of Homer's village manager for two years.

Academic background: Masters of Public Administration from Central Michigan University, Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from Hope College

Greatest accomplishment to date: The downtown revitalization project in Sturgis, increasing the industrial park.

Management philosophy: Manage for results, not worrying about what an issue will do for one's career, need to be flexible and be able to work with different personalities.

The Charlevoix City Council has selected two potential replacements for former city manager, Michael Wiesner, whose seat was vacated in February.

Robert Straebel

Todd Campbell

Robert Straebel of Taos Ski Valley, N.M. and Todd Campbell of Sturgis have been chosen as candidates to oversee the city's 2,994 residents, its seven departments, airport, golf course, marina, downtown development authority, sewage and water treatment plants and the attorney and treasurer's offices.

Robert Straebel, 42, has been village administrator for Taos Ski Valley for five years. Taos Ski Valley is a small skiing community in the Rocky Mountains with 56 full-time residents. Previously, Straebel was town manager of Hayden, Colo. and started his career as a manager's assistant in Congress City, Colo. He received a master of public administration from the University of Colorado at Denver and a bachelor of arts in marketing from Ferris State University .

Straebel wishes to return to Michigan, having family and friends in the area, and said Charlevoix is the type of community he'd very much enjoy working for.

"It's on the move," Straebel said. "It's a vibrant community with natural resources."

He said he noticed Charlevoix has a number of department heads in its city government who have been in their positions for a long time and said he would use them as a resource in his position.

Straebel said his management philosophy is "lead by example," setting the bar very high, demanding phone calls are returned and committing to not being swayed by special interest.

"I'm a strong proponent of ethical, transparent and participatory government," he said. "I don't accept folks that spread ill will, I don't tolerate substandard performance."

Third Ward council member Shirley Gibson said she is in favor of Straebel becoming manager.

"Mr. Straebel is the candidate I would vote for," Gibson said. "I liked his plans for growth and to work with developers. I like his open door policy."

Todd Campbell, 38, has spent the past four years as assistant city manager for Sturgis, located in St. Joseph County which borders the Michigan-Indiana state line. The city's population is approximately 11,285. Prior to his time in Sturgis, Campbell was Greenville's assistant city manager and started his political career in the Village of Homer as village manager.

Council to name new manager in July

MANAGER

includes a master of public administration from Central Michigan University and a bachelor of arts in political science from Hope College.

"Things aren't going well in Sturgis," Campbell said. "Being here, it's a great community, it's an engaged community."

He said his youth and sense of duty are his greatest strengths.

His management philosophy, he said, is "manage for results," not worrying about what an issue will do for one's career, recognizing the need to be flexible and being able to work with different personalities.

"The department heads need freedom to challenge what my thoughts are," Campbell said.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said he liked Campbell's background with public utilities.

"There's only one candidate with experience extensively in electric, water and sewer and that's Mr. Campbell," Carlson said.

City treasurer Richard Brandi said the electrical department is the city's largest revenue source and its department head is currently on medical leave.

Third Ward councilman Sherman Chamberlain said it may come down to economics when choosing the candidate and said council should call the candidates and ask what their salary requirements are.

Mayor Carlson said the council may make a hiring decision as soon as the week of June 25 and that, at that time, he would notifiy council of the candidates' answers to salary requirements.

Charlevoix resident John Picha said money will always be an issue when it comes to hiring a new employee.

"I think you're going to have a problem with money no matter who you get," Picha said.

Crooked Tree's 2007 Paint Out

Kevin Barton's, plein air painting "Zippered Fields" pictured above is an example of work artists will generate on July 28 during Crooked Tree's Paint Out event.

On July 28 there will be artists painting all around northwest Michigan for Crooked Tree Arts Center's second Paint-Out.

Beginning at 8 a.m. artists will gather at various locations in the area including Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Walloon Lake and Charlevoix to have canvases or paper stamped to verify that the material they will be painting on was blank in the morning of the paint-out. After a cup of coffee and a doughnut they will then venture anywhere in the area to begin a day of plein air painting. As the sun moves across the sky, artists will be painting and capturing a day in the life of northern Michigan. The completed artwork must be returned to arts center framed and ready to hang by 6 p.m. that same day.

At 6 p.m. the work will be highlighted in an opening in the lower level of arts center. All work will be on display and for sale until the end of August.

The paint-out is open to all artists over the age of 18 and with all levels of artistic ability. There will be a $10 charge for participation. For more information, contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org.

CCMS owner shells out $123,000 to the City of Charlevoix

$90,000 due by Nov. 1 or criminal charges will be filed

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

As of June 15, the City of Charlevoix's treasury received $123,000 from William Montgomery as part of his pay back to the city.

Montgomery initially wired the funds to the Michigan Municipal League's hired attorney Peter Warden.

Warden received an e-mail late Tuesday evening, June 19, that said $123,000 from Montgomery had landed in his trust account. Warden, an attorney in private practice at Garan, Lucow, Miller P.C., was going to represent both the city and the league in a lawsuit against Montgomery.

"He was to walk in a check to city hall," said city attorney Jim Young. "What he did, I think for speed, was to wire the money."

City treasurer Richard Brandi said the city treasury has received the funds from Warden.

"It's going to be a lot cheaper for everybody if we get him to pay the full amount rather than take him to court," Brandi said.

Young said no charges will be made against Montgomery at this time.

"This is only one of two payments, the city expects him to live up to what he's promised," Young said. "$123,000 will be sent to the city, leaving a balance of $10,000 that we and the league will discuss who gets."

Montgomery's next payment of $90,000 is due Nov. 1. Young said if the city does not receive the money, criminal charges will be filed then.

The initial conflict between Montgomery and the city started when he deposited a check for $223,000 to his personal and investment bank accounts that was meant to go to his company's insurer, United Fire and Casualty. The funds were an insurance payment for city street work performed in 2001. Since then, the city was sued by United Fire and Casualty, having to pay another $223,000 on top of what was lost to Montgomery. The city in turn sued Montgomery to make up their loss of revenue, attorneys' fees and legal assistance from the league.

Montgomery's attorney Michael Winnick said neither he nor his client have a comment for the press at this time.

Jeff Porter resigns from DDA

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Jeffrey Porter

Charlevoix dentist Jeffrey Porter recently announced his resignation from the City of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority.

"I feel it's time for somebody else to take my place," Porter said.

He is giving up the position to become president of the Crooked Tree Arts Council based in Petoskey, which has projects in Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties.

"It was a time issue," Porter said. "I want to do one thing very well."

Porter's resignation marks the end of a long stint on the authority, totaling 24 years. His first term spanned from 1983 to 1986, his second from 1986 to 1990 and his third and most recent term spanned from 1991 to 2007, leaving only a brief period of time in 1991 when he did not serve.

"He did a fine job serving owners of the DDA, I really appreciate it," said mayor Norman Carlson Jr.

Carlson said he is in the process of appointing Porter's successor but has not made a decision yet.

Porter said over the years he has seen many changes in Charlevoix's downtown and in the authority's district, such as greater expenditures on construction projects.

"Up until the East Park project, the DDA spent $11 to 12 million in downtown," Porter said. "With East Park, they spent another $3 or 4 million."

During his terms, there were two particular projects he was very proud to be a part of.

"I'm most proud of getting the lights replaced in downtown with the current streetlamps," Porter said. "I'm equally proud of the Ferry Avenue park concession stand and re-landscaping project."

His term, now vacant, expires in April of 2010.

Sheriff warns of fraudulent mail

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater advises that a fraudulent mailing is going out to citizens of Charlevoix County stating they are required to complete an electrical inspection.

This mailing fraudulently uses the Charlevoix County Building Department's name and address on it and claims that records indicate a failure to complete home inspection. The mailing is very detailed giving permit numbers and time frames that the alleged inspection was supposed to have taken place. It also includes a form labeled electrical permit application.

If you receive a similar mailing, please contact the Charlevoix County Building Department at (231) 547-7236 or the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office at (231) 547-4461.

Digital photography helps assault victims

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Any victims of assault in Charlevoix County can expect clearer, more accurate documentation that will help prosecute their attacker.

New documentation equipment was recently provided to Charlevoix Area Hospital with the help of the Northern Michigan Women's Resource Center, county courts and police.

"We had antiquated equipment, we would never know if the pictures were good," said Sue Coen, emergency room nurse for Charlevoix Area Hospital. "Now if we have a bad one, we can delete it and take one at a fresh angle."

Coen, who performs all the examinations for physical and sexual assault cases, said a clear picture helps support evidence of an attack when presented in court. Investigations will now be faster and more efficient.

The grant to purchase the equipment came from a combination of funds from the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan in Petoskey, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema's office, the Charlevoix County Sheriff, the City of Charlevoix and the City of East Jordan.

Coen said that initially it was a victim of sexual assault who came to Charlevoix Area Hospital who recommended the hospital update their equipment.

"We knew we were working with old equipment, it happened to be the victim that said 'You know, you need something new,'" said Coen. "She worked as a victim's advocate."

After the victim's complaint, the hospital took action and the equipment was purchased within three to four months.

Coen said a victim's greatest resource after an assault is a network of personal support from family and friends to help them provide emotional strength needed to prosecute their attacker. If not, Coen said the Women's Resource Center is available to help.

Domestic Abuse/Sexual Assault Program Director Chris Krajewski of the Women's Resource Center said the center receives a grant made possible by the Violence Against Women's Act of 1998. A portion of the grant is given to the prosecutor's office and police departments to purchase equipment that will help prosecute physical and sexual attackers.

Krajewski said the idea for the equipment came after Jarema was approached by Coen.

"The prosecutor's office said 'hey,' let's pool all our money this year,'" Krajewski said.

In the past, the grant has been used for items such as a screen that enables the victim not to have to face their attacker in court.

Charlevoix City Council

The following issues were discussed during the Monday, June 18 meeting of the Charlevoix City Council:

Item: Charlevoix Senior Citizen's Center- Request for Support for Grant

In brief: The Charlevoix Senior Citizens' Center is asking the city council for their support in endorsing the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians two percent allocation funding to pay for the expansion of the center's kitchen facilities. The center had asked the tribe for financial support.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Request for Major Development Plan- Pine River Building, 99 Bridge St. and 103 Bridge St.

In brief: The council considered the development plan submitted by Clint and Steve Berlage, that was previously presented to the city's planning commission. The Berlages have requested a change in their building's use at 99 and 103 Bridge St. from office to residential. Their plans include one retail space and five residences for the property. According to the planning commission, the plan meets all the requirements under Section 5.92 (18) of the zoning ordinance. The plans meets the requirements of the fire and police protection, except for the water supply. A 2-inch water line that has been proposed to serve the residential units will meet this requirement.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: 2007 Venetian Festival itinerary, fireworks permit and liability

In brief: The council reviewed the fireworks permit, the hold harmless agreement and the revision of Venetian itinerary presented to them by Daniel Barron, president of the 2007 Venetian Festival. The city reviewed the certificate of liability insurance and hold harmless agreement submitted by the Colonial Fireworks Company based in Clayton. The hold harmless agreement would prevent the city from any liability caused by the fireworks show. Colonial Fireworks agrees to reimburse the city all reasonable attorney fees and costs of litigation in the event a claim is filed. Also, Barron said that most of the Venetian events will now take place at Lake Michigan beach (such as Kid's Day, the musical concerts, etc.) with the exception of the carnival and Saturday's boat parade and fireworks show, which will take place at their usual locations. The boat parade and fireworks viewing scheduled for July 22 has been moved from East Park to Bridge Park.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Partial occupancy or use agreement — Downtown Park Project

In brief: The city is seeking permission from Hallmark Construction, who is currently performing the work in East Park, to use a sidewalk and the marina at the park in the months of July and August. This would allow boaters to use the marina during this time. Hallmark Construction has agreed to put up a construction fence along the sidewalk for this purpose.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Request from Beaver Island Boat Company to use additional docks

In brief: The Beaver Island Boat Company would like to acquire the additional dock, dockage space and parking spaces left by the decommissioning of the U.S. Coast Guard vessel, Acacia. The company wants to use the extra dock for their luggage operations. The six parking spaces would be used for the unloading and loading of luggage and vehicles from the ferry and would be restricted to 15-minute use.

Council action: Approved, 4-2

Item: Appointments

In brief: City council and Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. addressed current vacancies on city appointed boards, authorities and commissions including a seat on the Downtown Development Authority, the Planning Commission, the Housing Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals. Ken Polankowski's term on the Shade Tree Commission expired on Dec. 31, 2006. June Cross, John Hess and Doug Way Jr.'s terms on the planning commission expired in April of this year. John Yaroch and Hugh Mason's term on the Downtown Development Authority also expired in April of this year. On the Historic District Commission, Linda Mason and Hans Wiemer's terms expired in June of this year. Rick Brandi's term as city representative on the District Library Board also expired in June of this year.

Council action: City council approved appointment of Ken Polankowski to the Shade Tree Commission, re-appointment of Rick Brandi as city representative to the District Library Board and Linda Mason and Hans Wiemer were re-appointed to the Historic District Commission. Council also approved the mayor re-appointment of John Hess and Doug Way Jr. and the re-appointment of John Yaroch and Hugh Mason to the Downtown Development Authority.

Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...

NOW...

Background

Phase 1 of the $10 million East Park and marina renovation project includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. The targeted completion date for Phase 1 is near the end of April. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, is underway simultaneously. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Docks which were fabricated this winter are currently being installed. Utilities are expected to be hooked up and operational near the end of June. The total cost for Phases 1 and 2 is $3.8 million.

Events as of June 27:

Finishing up the floating piers.

The bore and jack under bridge street is complete.

A concrete promenade is starting to be poured. This is a wide walkway boaters will use to access the docks.

A trench drain is being installed and concrete is being poured around the shell. A trench will drain rainwater away from paved areas.

All of light pole bases have been installed.

H piles have all been installed to support a retaining wall.

Auger cast piles for the harbor master building is complete.

Work on Mason Street is expected be complete between June 23 and June 25.

Starting Monday, June 25, electric department employees will start pulling the primary wire through the conduits that have been installed.

The ice suppression system is complete with the exception of the compressors and covers.

This report was generated by Pat Elliott, City of Charlevoix Street Department superintendent. If you have any questions, please contact Elliott at 547-3276. The project update can also be viewed on the city Web site at www.cityofcharlevoix.org/public.htm

Pajtas' smoke ban ruling stands

The State of Michigan Court of Appeals issued a ruling on June 5 in unanimous agreement with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency that it has the authority to regulate smoking in most workplaces and public places in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties, its four-county health district.

Plaintiffs took their case to the Court of Appeals after Judge Richard Pajtas at the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix ruled in favor of the health department in August 2006. The case is now over unless the plaintiffs ask the Michigan Supreme Court to accept the case. There is no automatic appeal to the Supreme Court.

"This decision is significant, not only for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, but for all health departments in Michigan," said attorney Jim Young, who represented the health department in both court cases. "It will be a published opinion which sets a statewide precedent that is binding on lower courts."

Not only was the decision unanimous, but the three-judge panel agreed with the health department on every one of its arguments defending its authority to enact regulations that protect public health, Young said. "The clear success of our case illustrates the thoughtfulness of Judge Pajtas' ruling last summer in favor of the health department."

The court ruled local health departments were charged by the Legislature to "adopt regulations to properly safeguard the public health." It agreed with the local health department that the Michigan Clean Indoor Air Act does not conflict with the local regulation, even though it is more stringent than the state law.

Plaintiffs also argued that a provision banning the firing of an employee who makes non-smoking an issue violates an employer's at-will employee rights. But the court said that it is lawful to protect an employee from discharge when the employee reports the violation of a local regulation as well as a violation of state law.

According to Gerald Chase, health officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, 24 non-smoking individuals on average die each year in the health department's four-county health district as a result of exposure to secondhand smoke.

"We worked with our county boards of commissioners to approve the smoke-free workplace regulation for one reason: Eliminate non-smokers' exposure to secondhand smoke, a known carcinogen, at least at the work site," Chase said. "We are grateful to our four county boards of commissioners for recognizing the regulation was needed to protect public health."

The "Public Health Indoor Air Regulation of 2005" requires most businesses in the four county health district served by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, to provide smoke-free environments for their employees. Businesses in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties may designate a smoking room for their smoking employees that is independently ventilated so that smoke does not enter other non-smoking areas of the work site. The regulation does not apply to restaurants and bars, private residences (except those used for child care, health care or adult day care), Indian-owned casinos or vehicles occupied by only one employee.

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations and protect the environment for residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. For more information about the smoke-free workplace regulation, visit www.nwhealth.org.

Char-Em ISD seeks AmeriCorps volunteers

Give to your community. to your schools. to yourself. Char-Em

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District (Char-Em ISD) AmeriCorps Program is searching for individuals to join their team for the 2007-2008 school year.

Commonly referred to as "the domestic PeaceCorps," AmeriCorps is an opportunity for individuals to serve their community and to make a difference in their life and the lives of those around them.

The focus of the Char-Em ISD AmeriCorps Program is to mentor elementary school age children in need of academic assistance or social issues. Currently applications are being accepted for 10 positions that will serve as mentors and teach conflict resolution skills to at-risk students.

The full-time positions are a 10-month commitment and require completion of 1,700 hours of service throughout the 2007-2008 school year. Benefits include a living stipend of $11,100, an education award of $4,725, and single subscriber health insurance for those who qualify. Members must be at least 17 years of age, and have a high school diploma or GED.

Applications will be accepted until July 10 and are available by contacting AmeriCorps assistant Linda Johnson at (231) 547-9947, or by visiting the AmeriCorps Web site at www.americorps.org and clicking on Join Now. The Char-Em ISD AmeriCorps Program serves 11 school districts within intermediate school district's service area of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties.

Charlevoix State Bank announces the Retirement of

Richard M. Hodgson & John E. Kurtz

An Open House Celebration will take place Tuesday, July 10, 2007, from 12 - 4pm, at Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State St., Charlevoix, Michigan to wish Richard and John well in their retirement.

Richard M. Hodgson moved to Charlevoix in 1970. He has owned and operated several businesses in the area, including Walker Marine Agency on Round Lake, and has been a partner in Island Airways. He became involved in banking as a Director of First State Bank of Charlevoix in 1974 and continued until that bank was sold. In 1994 he was part of the group that formed Charlevoix State Bank and has since served as its Chairman. He has been instrumental in developing the bank's branch network, including award winning Main Street Center in East Jordan and the newest branch in Ellsworth.

Richard has been very active in community service. He was a charter member and Commodore of Charlevoix Yacht Club. He has served in positions with the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals, City Planning Commission, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, and East Jordan Chamber of Commerce.

Richard's plans for retirement include continued community involvement and travel with his wife Laurie and daughter Elizabeth.

John E. Kurtz began his banking career in 1970 in the Detroit Area. He moved to northern Michigan in 1973 as Assistant Vice President of First National Bank in Petoskey. In 1981, his career brought him to Charlevoix where from 1981 through 1993 he was Vice President and Cashier of First State Bank of Charlevoix. From 1993 to 1997, he was Senior Vice President and Senior Loan Officer for CB North Bank of Charlevoix, now Citizens Bank. Since 1997, he has held the position of President and CEO of Charlevoix State Bank.

John has always been active in the community. He has held several positions with various organizations, including Charlevoix Lions Club where he served as president, member of Library Finance Board, Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Finance Committee, Charlevoix Cool Cities Process Committee and many, many more. John received the Outstanding Citizen Award this year presented by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

John's retirement plans include traveling with his wife Elaine and enjoying everyday to it's fullest.

Michael Hinkle is now president and CEO and Richard M. Hodgson II has taken over as Chairman.

Sleeping Bear Press author event

Illustrator Gijsbert (Nick) van Frankenhuyzen and his wife, author Robbyn Smith van Frankenhuyzen, are flanked here by former Michigan Governor William Milliken and Gov. Jennifer Granholm at an author's reception at the governor's residence in Lansing early this spring. Nick's latest book, "Mackinac Bridge: The Story of the Five Mile Poem" was selected as a 2007 Michigan Notable Book. Robbyn's latest, "Kelly of Hazel Ridge" (illustrated by Nick) won the 2006 National Outdoor Book Award. The Sleeping Bear Press duo is undergoing a whirlwind mini-tour of northern Michigan. At 11 a.m. on Wednesday, July 4 they will be signing copies of their books at Up North Kids located at 220 Bridge St. in Charlevoix.

Celebrate the summer strawberry harvest

What? An old-fashioned strawberry social.
When? 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 30 at Friske's Farm Market.

Friske Orchards will celebrate the strawberry harvest at their annual Strawberry Social, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 30.

The day begins with a strawberry pancake breakfast at Friske's Orchard Cafe and u-pick strawberries at the farm on Doctor Road.

There will be something for all ages to enjoy — wagon rides, old-time music, old-fashioned children's games, early American handcraft demonstrations, strawberry shortcake and a chance to meet Miss Strawberry.

Friske's Farm Market is located 10 miles south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31 at Atwood. For more information, call (231) 599-2604 or visit www.friske.com.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Charlevoix public pool 10 year anniversary celebration

What? "Ten Years and Growing Stronger" is the theme for the 10th anniversary celebration of the opening of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.
When? Thursday, July 19
Where? 11905 U.S. 31 North, Charlevoix

"Ten Years and Growing Stronger" is the theme for the 10th anniversary celebration of the opening of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Thursday, July 19.

THE CELEBRATION

The staff and board of directors have planned special events that day to showcase how the pool has served the public over the last decade.

The public is invited to use the pool that day at no charge and tours will be available for those who don't want to swim but wish to see and learn more about the pool facilities and its programs. The staff will serve hot dogs and a light meal from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. free to visitors.

EVENT SCHEDULE

The schedule for Thursday, July 19 in which the public can join in activities for free is as follows:

- Lap swimming 6 to 8 a.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. (two lanes).
- Open Swimming for all ages 3 to 5 p.m. (with the inflatable tanker) and 6 to 8 p.m., OYO (on your own) for adults only from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. (two lanes) and Aqua Exercise class from 8 to 9 a.m. The public can observe Red Cross Swim Lessons from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

THE HISTORY

Nearly 50 years ago the late Ralph Hamilton, a member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club envisioned and promoted an indoor pool for Charlevoix. The Friends of the Pool's many volunteers, spearheaded by Bruce and Barbara MacArthur made the pool a reality in 1997.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool was one of only a few pools in the country built and operated without public funding. In 2005, the pool went to the public and passed a Recreational Authority Millage for the City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township and Charlevoix Township. These funds help keep the fees reasonable to the users, including offering dollar nites (four nights a week); non district users pay $1.50. The millage has also allowed the pool to put aside $35,000 a year in a contingency fund. This fund was used this past winter to replace the aging ventilation system at $110,000.

To date over 325,000 swimmers from Charlevoix and the surrounding area have used the pool.

THE BUDGET

The pool's budget for 2007 is $427,000. Of that $177,000 comes from the Recreational Authority, $80,000 from the annual pool auction, $50,000 from donations/other fundraising and $120,000 from fees and charges.

Anyone purchasing a pass or signing up for a class the week of July 16 will receive a 10 percent discount.

For more information about the Charlevoix Area Community Pool programs, call (231) 547-0982 or visit www.charpool.org.

Ride a Bomber

Who? Yankee Air Museum at Willow Run Airfield

What? Rides and viewing of a World War 11 B-17 Bomber

Where? Charlevoix Municipal Airport

When? Friday June 29 and Saturday June 30

How much? The cost for a 25 minute ride is $425 per person

The Charlevoix Municipal Airport and Island Airways are proud to welcome back the World War 11 B-17 Bomber, sponsored by the Yankee Air Museum at Willow Run Airfield in the suburb of Detroit.

The B-17 is best remembered for its dangerous daylight bombing missions over Germany during World War II. With a wingspan of 103 feet, 9 inches, this 10-passenger "flying fortress" is a force to be reckoned with. A famous example of this type was the "Memphis Belle" which was featured in the film of the same name.

Comprised of dedicated Yankee Air Force volunteers, a comprehensive repair and rebuild program began after receiving the B-17 in 1986 with its first post restoration flight in July 1995. The "Yankee Lady" will be open for viewing and rides all day Friday, June 29 and Saturday, June 30. The cost for a 25 minute ride is $425 per person.

For more information contact Dave Wright at (734) 483-4030 or visit www.yankeeairmuseum.org.

Planning commission isn't Wynkoop's last stop the lone "nay" vote on the planning commission, he could not in good conscience vote for the special use permit knowing what the gravel-hauling trucks would do to Norwood Road.

"Things like noise and dust can affect a small group of individuals, but something like that road is an entity that belongs to the entire township," he said. "I did read all the letters and that was one of the reasons I made the recommendation I did, because a lot of people were concerned with the road issue. I made my decision on a lot of letters and a lot of fact."

Way said he would have voted in favor of the permit if Wynkoop had agreed to be bonded with responsibility for the nearly one mile section of Norwood Road, from the Wynkoop mine to U.S. 31.

"We asked him to obtain a bond for the road and they (Wynkoop and his representatives) politely refused," he said. "The way it's set up now, they agree to put in a part of the material so the county road commission can fix it when the road deteriorates, and his (Wynkoop's) attorney and engineer admitted it will deteriorate. My question is, if that happens and you're out of business, is the township going to be stuck with a rotten road to pay for?"

"Why should I pay for a brand new road for a 50-year-old road already damaged," said Wynkoop, who had at one time planned to work with a gravel hauling contractor to pay for the complete repair of the section of Norwood Road from his property to U.S. 31. "If I still had the money sitting in my bank account, I would have been happy to (pay for the road repairs) but, these people have taken these plans away from me by battling me and not listening to what I had to say and not taking me as a man of my word and misrepresenting my good intentions from day one."

He added, "I was in the trucking business for 15 years. I know how trucks deteriorate roads, it's going to happen, but everything else deteriorates the roads too. I'm willing to pay my fair share. I'm willing to pay more than my fair share, but I should not be held accountable for rebuilding a road that has already deteriorated."

Norwood resident Bill Gnodtke said, while he is disappointed with the commission's decision, he was not surprised.

"By granting that special use permit, they succeeded in denying the people of the township the rights afforded to them when property is rezoned," he said. "When you look at the makeup of the planning commission and consider the statements some members had made as far as a year and a half ago, they supported the original application, so it wasn't a surprise they OK'd it."

Nearly 30 people attended the Thursday, June 21 meeting of the Norwood Township Planning Commission to decide the fate of a special use permit requested by Wayne Wynkoop (third from left) for his limestone mine. The commission approved the permit request pending ratification of the minutes at their July 9 meeting.

Gnodtke also echoed Way's sentiments about the deterioration of Norwood Road.

Chairman of the commission, Tom Mielke, said after reviewing all the facts, he felt the commissioners ruled appropriately and added that Wynkoop's offer to provide the gravel for road repairs was generous.

"That offer is probably worth somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000," Mielke said.

Mielke thanked his fellow planning commission members for their hard work.

"There was a lot of evidence and a lot of time spent to make their findings," he said. "It was a difficult task and I think they did a good job."

Wynkoop said he has no issue with most of the planning commission's restrictions.

"I am concerned with the hours of truck operation. I think they are a little too restrictive," he said. "The hours will put a damper on contractors who want to start work early in the morning."

He added, "I think if they were really concerned about health and safety they would not be subjecting more truck (traffic) during the peak (time) of traffic."

Stipulations on Wynkoop's special use permit according to the Norwood Township site plan review requirements:

- A 2 cent per ton deposit into an escrow account to later be used for reclamation or the process of where land tore up by mining is restored back to a more natural or otherwise useable state.
- The special use permit will expire 15 years from the first date of operations following this special use permit approval.
- Reclamation must be completed within 12 months of end of operations.
- Permit is limited to extraction from the 25-acre pit defined in the application.
- Operations must not extend closer than allowed by the applicable state and federal laws to the seasonal watercourse "Whiskey Creek." There must not be any drainage from the operations into Whiskey Creek.
- The normal peak estimated traffic of 30 truck trips (in/out) per day between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. on weekdays only traveling on Norwood Road between the site and U.S. 31 with warning road signage erected per zoning ordinance 7.02.3.C
- The decibel levels as measured at the property lines must be at or below 60 decibels as measured on the C scale.
- Blasting, a potential source of vibration, must not be performed.
- Dust must be controlled within the site as required by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

June 26: The day the music died

Marina LaBlance kept a notebook.

Between the pages, she kept track of the lines, skits or solos in the annual Charlevoix Elementary Spring Musicals — making sure each student had a moment to shine.

"I have past students in their 30s and 40s and they can still remember the dance they did, their partner or the show's theme," LaBlance, said in a jovial voice before her final curtain call in 2004. "It's become an important part of their childhood." "... They are all stars that shine that night."

But on Tuesday, the music died. The 59-year-old mom and retired teacher passed away after a struggle with colon cancer.

However, her memory will be kept alive in the hundreds of "Marina" stories, the words to "Sing a Song" and in Greek dinners.

"Marina's like the lyrics of your favorite song — the memories and words will never be forgotten," Cathy Silberhorn, a third-grade Charlevoix teacher and friend said.

Recently, former students and community members

Charlevoix Middle School principal, Keith Haske, will continue coaching basketball and his principalship at the middle school.

According to Haske, while he wanted the Charlevoix High School principal position, he felt a loyalty to his team to continue coaching.

"I felt after 10 years in our district in coaching and administration that I could do both, but the board felt otherwise," he said. "I think that is probably the hardest principal job in the district. I just thought it might be good for the district if I went up to the high school."

After deliberation over whether Haske should be allowed to continue coaching varsity basketball if he accepted the position, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted 5-1 during their June 13 meeting to offer Haske the position as principal of Charlevoix High School.

"Keith decided yesterday (Monday, June 5) to stay at the middle school. We talked and he weighed all the options and he decided to stay and coach," said outgoing interim superintendent of Charlevoix Schools, Jim Cooper. "I think the board felt that the high school principalship, especially being new in the position in the first year with the commitment in the evenings, they felt it would be very difficult for a person coming in to do that and coach a varsity sport, so that was their hesitation."

Haske rejects high school principal's position

HASKE

Haske has been a head coach for 23 of his more than 28 years in education with 13 years spent at St. Johns and 10 years with Charlevoix Public Schools as both assistant high school principal and athletic director for four years and middle school principal for six years.

While disappointed with the board's decision, Haske said he will be happy wherever he goes.

"I'm excited. I love being at the middle school. I think we have great staff at the middle school," Haske said. "For me it was a no-lose situation. I had to follow my heart and in my heart I still wanted to be a coach."

Larry Levengood, school board secretary and lone nay vote during the June 13 meeting, said Haske deserved to be treated better after 10 years of service to the district.

"It was unfortunate to have the discussion in a public forum," he said. "I think if he had known he wasn't going to be able to coach, then he probably would not have submitted his name, that's just my thinking."

He added, "I would rather that he moved to the high school, but we have some other good candidates. We'll get a good high school principal."

Outgoing board president, Bill Truhilowicz, said the board wanted to make sure the new principal has no distractions.

"I felt there was potential conflicts there to be head coach and the principal," he said. "When you get into coaching athletes, you end up being judge and jury if you do both jobs. I thought it was a reasonable compromise to try it for a year without coaching and go forward from there, but I respect Mr. Haske's decision — I know he loves to coach."

Current high school assistant principal, Suzanne Klinger, who was to be appointed as middle school principal if Haske would have accepted the high school principalship, will now be recommended by Cooper for the high school principalship during the board's July 9 organizational meeting.

Haske said, "Suzanne will do a great job wherever she is, but I thought it would be a little bit easier with her first principal's job at the middle school."

Truhilowicz hopes everything will work out for everyone.

"I expect great things from all parties involved," he said.

Radiation treatment followed and she entered remission.	Her colleagues and peers voted for her to receive an Outstanding Person in Education award.	She received an eddi Award for her dedication to the arts and education.	LaBlance was named Outstanding Citizen of the Year at the 47th Annual Meeting of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.	She retired from her position of 33 years as Charlevoix Elementary School music instructor.	LaBlance was diagnosed with colon cancer by her family practitioner, Dr. Jim Gels following an ultrasound that revealed tumors on her liver. Surgery followed to remove a tumor in her colon.	Her first day of a 48 hour jump-start chemotherapy treatment took place.

A tribute to my friend

I first met Marina LaBlance more than 30 years ago. She was the young, beautiful Marina Anegon, music teacher at Charlevoix Elementary School. I was a parent of young children. We were all young, and full of life and dreams.

Our kids would come home singing silly little songs like "My Daddy's Whiskers" or the one about a lady floating down the Nile on the back of a crocodile, and teach us the words. Those were the days of the legendary spring musical, when half the town of Charlevoix would cram into the high school gym to watch the extravagantly orchestrated production directed by a diminutive woman who held hundreds of students and their families and friends in the palm of her hands. She would stand in front of her piano and look up into the bleachers packed with up to 600 spit-shined children dressed in white tops and dark bottoms, give them that special "Everyone look at me and no talking look," and transform the gym into a concert stage. She looked like Marlo Thomas in those days, long dark hair and dark eyes. Her voice was low and touched with a contagious lilt, a little bit Greek, a little bit U.P. Her eyes could twinkle with laughter or pierce you to the core in a serious moment.

I later came to know Marina as a colleague. By this time she had married and become a parent herself, and LaBlance also received the E. Dale Kennedy Award for excellence in promoting education and was secretary for the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair board of directors.

She has been actively involved with the art fair for over 20 years. This year's event will take place on Aug. 12 in East Park.

Greek goddess of music takes her place in sky

JUST A THOUGHT

Julie Witthoeft

Last night I stared at the clear summer night sky.

With two semesters of college level astronomy under my belt you would think the names of constellations are well anchored in my brain and roll off my tongue like the ABCs. Not so much.

I do remember the names have close ties to Greek mythology and are associated in many cases to gods or heroes.

The evening was spent as most have been over the past six weeks since our family welcomed our new baby girl Harper — rocking, thinking and staring out the nursery window at the quiet night sky.

This night was different. I rubbed my tired, teary eyes as I thought about the loss of a friend, a friend who lost her mom and a community left calling for an encore.

That morning, Tuesday, June 26, I learned Marina LaBlance, a 59-year-old community icon who taught music at Charlevoix Elementary School for 33 years, retiring in June 2005, had died following a battle with cancer.

I first met Marina in my teens. At that time her strict curfews and mother's intuition stood between me and her daughter Maro, now 29, getting into trouble. We couldn't get anything past her. As cunning as we were, we never successfully pulled the wool over her eyes.

Returning to Charlevoix in 2000 after graduating from college, as a cub reporter for the Courier covering the school beat Marina was my media contact at Charlevoix Elementary School. It was clear to me and anyone who saw Marina at school that she was passionate about her work.

When the Charlevoix Middle School bleachers were removed in conjunction with gym renovations putting the kabash on her signature spring musical our conversation was packed with off the record comments I'll never leak.

Her exasperation wasn't at all rooted in ego about the end of her big performance. It was always about the kids. Every time we discussed the musical she said this was a time when all the students were equal. They all had a role and they could all be proud of what they accomplished at the end of the show.

I started this column with a blank stare and my laptop on my legs. My husband Charlie asked what had me stumped? I told him I had to write a column about a woman that was everything and I didn't know where to begin.

When I told him it was Marina he said what all her students have said, "She made music fun — I loved going to music class when I had her. She made you believe you could do it.".

In the obituary Marina's family submitted which appears on page 8 of this week's Courier it states she died peacefully at her home. We should all hope that when our time comes we can be at peace knowing, like Marina that we trusted our intuition as parents and developed strong friendships with our children, that we were passionate about our work and made a difference in the lives of many.

As Harper drifted off to sleep that night, I spotted a summer constellation I remembered the name of, Lyra (harp) and renamed Vega, its brightest star, Marina after Charlevoix's own Greek goddess of music.

FILL THE HOLE

Editor:

Is there any reason that when a storefront is empty, the Chamber of Commerce can't offer it up for other merchants to merchandise?

If they used the Chamber roster in alphabetical order in a two-week rotation, it would be more than fair. It would also benefit those left dealing (with) this gaping hole in their midst. An empty store window is punishing to the small retail district.

CHEERS TO A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Editor:

The Charlevoix girls soccer program had another very successful year. The varsity team retained their conference title for the third year in a row and was second in the state among all divisions with a team GPA of 3.86. With the help of the Sports Boosters, we were able to add a JV club team. This enabled 17 more girls the opportunity to play soccer as well as ensure the quality of the program.

We as coaches can't do it all by ourselves, and we are very fortunate to have had such great community support for the girls. Thanks so much to all the Sports Booster Board members, Doug Drenth, Andy's Market, Tom Bergmann, Bob Schofield, Mr. and Mrs. Pung, Maribeth Zimmerman, Zita Winn, Charlevoix Screenmasters, Ron Way and Charlevoix 4-H, loyal fans, Boogie Bob, Tom at ACE Hardware, and last but not least the referees (we didn't always agree with your calls, but appreciate your effort which enables us to play).

We're already looking forward to next season.

KUDOS FROM A CANADIAN NEIGHBOR

Editor:

I came upon your site purely by accident. Being Quebec born and raised, I found that many of my family ancestors came from Charlevoix County in Quebec Province. So naturally, I love Charlevoix, I have visited many times because it is one of the most beautiful sights on the great St. Lawrence. Being naturally prejudiced, I automatically am drawn in the most friendly way to anything bearing the name Charlevoix.

I read through your Web site and must compliment you on what a delightful publication you produce. So sharp and professional and good looking. Your readers must be very proud of it and of you. I further checked out the town of Charlevoix in your state. I really didn't know about it either until I looked it up. It seems to reflect the same sophisticated friendly appearance and style and atmosphere evident in your newspaper. Congratulations to you all. So far, I have never been disappointed in anything called Charlevoix.

'Oompah' to Marina and the legacy she left

I had returned to the classroom to resume my teaching career. I marveled at how she did it — all those classes introduced to every form of music and dance imaginable, but especially the continuation of the annual spring musical show, each with a different, timely theme. As a staff, we found ourselves swept up into preparations for each production, learning the songs and dances, burning the midnight oil to help construct the elaborate scenery on one side of the gym which would form the backdrop for her show, taping black paper to the windows usually while listening to the Rayder's tournament basketball game on the radio while we worked. So many shows, over 25. So many children transformed into stars for a night, hundreds. The most poignant memory of Marina in those years for me was the night of the "Desert Storm," patriotic-themed show, during which she played the piano and sang, with the children echoing the chorus of "From a distance." There wasn't a dry eye in the house. It's the only time I ever heard Marina sing in performance. She never featured herself.

I eventually knew Marina as a friend. We shared the love of teaching and the arts, we shared many of the same friends, we lived in the same neighborhood, and we often celebrated our birthdays together since they were only a day apart. We watched our children grow up together. She introduced me to her wonderful Greek family, and foods that I had only heard of, and yes, "ouzo," that powerful Greek licorice flavored aperitif. The same friend, who used to sneak into my classroom after school to snitch candy out of the treat jar on my desk, was there to offer me support in so many ways over the years. I wish I could give her chocolate today to thank her, one more time.

There's a Greek tradition that involves lighting a shot of brandy dribbled over a cheese hors d'oeuvre, in which, at the moment of ignition, everyone shouts "Ooompah," and raises their glasses to the occasion. Well, Marina, "Ooompah" to you and to the legacy you have left us all…determination, spirit, love, humor, and most of all, enduring friendship. We know you will be watching over us, from a distance.

9th Annual Garden Walk features seven local gardens

Marsie Gowdy, chairperson of the 9th Annual Garden Walk, "A Tapestry of Northern Gardens," recently visited the home of Carol Mack, one of seven garden owners featured at the July 11 event. Mack owns a completely organic vegetable garden.

On Wednesday, July 11, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host their 9th Annual Garden Walk in Charlevoix featuring seven gardens.

"A Tapestry of Northern Gardens" will offer those who garden and those who just enjoy the beauty of a garden a quiet place for a welcome respite from the summer days. Those attending will start with the gardens of their choice at 10 a.m. and walk leisurely through the gardens until 4 p.m.

Gardens include the Polakowski's family garden, the Heath room designed garden, the Chavez weed-free wonder, the Brennan's Irish garden, the Alexander's inviting garden, the Schuiling's sloped sensation and the Mack organic garden.

Many of these Charlevoix gardens have been personally designed, planted and maintained by the owners. Each garden offers ideas and plant material selections for the home gardener, amateur or professional, to take home and incorporate into their personal gardens.

Tickets for the walk may be ordered in advance by calling (231) 237-0239. Tickets are $10 per person in advance or $12 the day of the walk.

A Garden Club luncheon will coincide with the event from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. at the new Charlevoix Public Library. The cost is $25 per person. To make lunch reservations, call (231) 547-7034.

Marina LaBlance:
Sept. 17, 1947 - June 26, 2007

Marina LaBlance

Marina Anegon LaBlance, 59, of Charlevoix, died peacefully in her home on Tuesday, June 26, after a courageous year-long battle with cancer.

She was a beloved mother, sister and dear friend to many. She was the youngest of four children born to Greek immigrants, Christopher and Mary Anegon, on Sept. 17, 1947 in Iron Mountain. The family relocated to Saginaw where she lived until she attended Western Michigan University and graduated with a major in music education.

Marina is survived by her daughter, Maro (Jason); son, George; sisters, Julia (Louis) Cini, Electra Tarachas; brother, Jim (Shirley) Anegon; and close friends, Mary Beth McGraw and the McGraw family.

She is preceded in death by her parents, and brother-in-law, George Tarachas.

She had a zest for life, and a profound love for family, friends, teaching, children and the arts. Marina moved to Charlevoix in 1972 and was the elementary music teacher at Charlevoix Elementary School for the next 33 years, retiring in June of 2005. Throughout her career, she received multiple awards, including the Outstanding Elementary Teacher of America Award, the OPIE (Outstanding Person In Education) Award, the prestigious Crooked Tree Arts Council "eddi Award" and Charlevoix's Outstanding Citizen Award. Marina's love for art led her, along with McGraw, to open a gallery in downtown Charlevoix from 1986 to 1991. She also spent 23 years as an active member of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair Committee and was a founding member of Charlevoix Council for the Arts.

As a 12-year breast cancer survivor, Marina volunteered with Reach to Recovery to offer guidance and support to other women faced with similar challenges.

Marina enjoyed gardening, traveling, reading, music, and entertaining friends and family. Teaching music was her great passion; her annual Spring Musical became a community tradition. She genuinely loved all her students and touched countless lives. Marina lived her life with compassion, enthusiasm, honesty and conviction, and will be greatly missed by all who loved her.

A funeral service took place on Friday, June 29 at Greensky Hill United Methodist Church.

Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix County Community Foundation c/o Marina LaBlance Music Education Fund, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI, 49727 or Charlevoix Hospice, Hospice of Northwest Michigan, P.O. Box 233, Boyne City, MI 49712. Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is assisting the family.

DDA warns Chamber time is running out

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

For the second year in a row, the City of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority gave the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce $25,000 to fund events including the Thursday night concerts, Taste of Charlevoix, Summer Solstice Art Show, Farmer's Market, an update of the restaurant guide and the Christmas Open House.

"I told them (Chamber of Commerce representatives) they need to look elsewhere for compensation," said Hugh Mason, Chairman of the Downtown Development Authority. "I question how much they're doing for the DDA, they're really doing it for their members."

Chamber of Commerce president Jacqueline Merta said they are using the money to market and advertise downtown events as part of the Cool Cities plan. She said events like Taste of Charlevoix in a town the size of Charlevoix is costly.

"There are members who put money into that event, but that event costs a lot of money to put on," Merta said.

Merta said that the money from the Downtown Development Authority markets the community, not just their members.

"A lot of what we do is for the public," Merta said. "All this information is not just member information, its community information."

She said funds from the Downtown Development Authority specifically go toward promotion of events and to pay the musicians for the Thursday night concerts.

The Downtown Development Authority's 2007-2008 budget currently contains a $30,000 figure allocated for professional services and Mason said he believes part of that is where the money comes from that is given to the Chamber.

He said that in the past, the money for professional services was used to fund a downtown coordinator.

"Ten years ago, the downtown coordinator was shared by the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau, the DDA and the Chamber," Mason said.

> "I told them they need to look elsewhere for compensation."
> Hugh Mason
> CHARLEVOIX DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY CHAIRMAN

Now, Mason said, the Convention and Visitor's Bureau has dropped out and the Downtown Development Authority has their own downtown coordinator, executive director Keith Carey.

"Next year, we may have to take over the concerts ourselves," Mason said.

Carey said he will work with the Chamber on finding alternative sources of funding.

"What's good for the Chamber is good for the DDA, the DDA is the face of the downtown, Chamber is the face of business, opportunities exist for us to collaborate," Carey said.

He said approaching private foundations and area townships may be an additional source of funding for the Chamber.

Going, going, gone

After more than two decades of service as a Michigan Department of Natural Resources conseravtion officer, Tim Kochanny of Charlevoix has retired. Here Kochanny is thrown into Pine River Channel by U.S. Coast Guard personnel in a timehonored tradition of saying goodbye to conservation officers.

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

From falling in a river while writing a ticket and trying not to get shot by angry hunters to teaching youngsters about the outdoors, Tim Kochanny has had a full career in his work as a Michigan conservation officer.

Kochanny, who retired on June 27, began his career with the Michigan State Police in 1983 and said he has loved every minute of his work for the Department of Natural Resources.

"I've always had a basic love for the outdoors being a hunter and fisherman. It's funny, people think because you're working outdoors and riding snowmobiles in the winter that it's all fun, but I've been in some situations that have been pretty scary," he said. "I had a guy try to run me over and kill me in Midland County while I was working deer season. It's a dangerous job."

Kochanny added, "You are 10 times more likely to die in the line of duty as a CO (conservation officer) than a police officer because we're dealing with people with guns most of the year."

However, Kochanny said, "99 percent of the people we deal with are decent which is kind of nice."

Kochanny, who graduated from Northern Michigan University in 1980 with a bachelor's degree in psychology and criminal justice, said the fun parts of his job included showing children how to fish and teaching them about wildlife in general.

"It's probably been most enjoyable going to the schools and giving talks and bringing animals in," Kochanny said. "I go to all the groups and they think it's fun because they love hearing DNR stories."

In his spare time, Kochanny writes short stories about his days in the DNR and hopes to publish a book.

"People seem to think it's funny when law enforcement people make mistakes," he said. "And it's neat catching violators using decoys. We have a stuffed deer and stuffed turkey."

He added, "You'd be surprised how many people shoot at (them) and people love to hear about that."

While happy with his career, Kochanny said he is also proud to have raised three children in Charlevoix.

"Two of them are graduates of Michigan State (University), one is a CPA and the other is in special education and my daughter is a sophomore at Michigan State (University) and my wife is a medical technologist at Northern Michigan Hospital," he said. "It's just been so neat to raise a family in this community that just really cares about kids."

Kochanny, who recommends this career to any upandcoming nature lovers, is excited about moving on to the next level of his life.

"I think it's going to be great. I'm going to decide in few months what I want to do with rest of my life," he said. "I like kids and probably will help out with the Catholic school and get involved with more organizations and do more things."

He added, "I'll probably do a lot more fishing and I have a boat in the garage that does not get out often enough."

Aside from aspiring to publish his work, Kochanny is considering teaching self-defense and firearm safety classes.

"I taught self-defense for 10 years at Delta College and Ferris State (University) and I am a firearms instructor so I might do that too," he said.

In his nearly quarter century of service, Kochanny has been awarded a medal of valor for surviving a storm on the lake and was awarded a commendation for making drug busts at the Bay City State Park.

He won't miss the significant increase in paperwork he has seen over the years, but he will miss working with other members of law enforcement.

"There is a camaraderie in law enforcement that is different from every other job," he said. "I will probably miss that the most."

(Above) Here is what the school board recall petition will look like if the election committee decides the wording is clear enough for voters to understand. Ike Boss started the recall on four board members after they voted to begin the hiring process for an athletic director/assistant high school principal.

Recall proceedings on four members of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education are underway.

John McLean, Christine Michaud, Dean Spenceley and Diane Kilkenny have been threatened with recall for, as Ike Boss, author of the recall stated in his petition, "Failing to allow public comment at a public meeting on June 13, 2007 and for voting to retain an assistant principal position, making it necessary to lay off four classroom teachers."

But, said outgoing school board president, Bill Trubilowicz, the teachers in question would have been laid off regardless of whether the assistant principal/athletic director position was retained or not.

The teachers to be laid off include Gwen Catt, Sara Parrish, Steve Carland and Kristine Burmeister, though Burmeister will be brought back at two-thirds time and counselor, Kristen Beach's position was eliminated and she will likely be moved to an elementary classroom.

And, as far as the issue over whether or not public comment needed to be allowed, Kelly Yaroch, human resource coordinator for Charlevoix Schools said the Wednesday, June 13 meeting was merely a continuation of Monday night's meeting and therefore the public comment allowed during the Monday, June 11 meeting was sufficient.

Boss filed the recall with the Charlevoix County Clerk's office on Thursday, June 14.

A clarity hearing will be held at 1:30 p.m. on July 11 in the commissioner's room by the probate judge, county clerk and county treasurer, members of the Charlevoix County Election Commission, to decide whether the wording is of sufficient clarity that voters will understand it.

If the wording is found to be intelligible, the petitions will then go to Boss who will then have six months to circulate petitions.

Boss will need at least 25 percent of those registered voters in the Charlevoix school district who voted in the last governor's election.

Signatures may not be older than 90 days.

School board secretary, Larry Levengood said, while he didn't support hiring the assistant principal/athletic director, he would like to see people pull together instead of resorting to a recall.

"It's a budget issue and tough decisions have to be made," he said. "(I) felt administrative cutbacks should be made the same as maintenance staff, bus driving staff, secretarial staff and teaching staff."

He added, "We knew this wasn't going to be easy."

Outgoing interim superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Jim Cooper, said the recall effort is unfortunate.

"If someone doesn't like a decision, they can start a recall drive, but I think you're going to discourage people from wanting to even be part of the board," he said.

Middle school principal, Keith Haske, said, "The funny thing is, the job the board is being recalled for, I was hired for 10 years ago and I find it interesting that, at the same time there was the same debate."

He added, "It seems to me that some people don't think it is a necessity to have help in the high school. I know in doing that job alone is more than enough for one person."

McLean is disappointed the recall has been filed, but said he will not budge from his decision.

"Nobody wants to be recalled, but I think it's an important decision, so I will stand by that," he said.

What happended? Ike Boss filed the recall with the Charlevoix County Clerk's office on Thursday, June 14.

What's next? A clarity hearing will be held at 1:30 p.m. on July 11 in the Charlevoix County commissioner's room by the probate judge, county clerk and county treasurer, members of the Charlevoix County Election Commission, to decide whether the wording is of sufficient clarity that voters will understand it.

Then what? If the wording is found to be intelligible, the petitions will then go to Boss who will then have six months to circulate petitions.

New marina docks open with power

Opening is over, a month late

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

After initial delays due to changes in wage requirements and changes in leadership at the beginning of this year, Charlevoix's downtown East Park marina has opened its docks to the public.

"Our goal has been to have the docks powered up and available for use the first week of July," said City of Charlevoix Street Superintendent Pat Elliott.

In recognition of this event, the Downtown Development Authority hosted a July 3 ceremony at the foot of Pier A, the northernmost pier to welcome summer boaters.

The Charlevoix City Council recently signed an agreement with Hallmark Construction granting the city permission to use the sidewalk and promenade for boater traffic in July and August, in the expectation that the docks would be completed.

Sunny Ward, co-owner of Ward Brothers Charter Boats on Round Lake said boat traffic is down this year and it would've been better if the East Park construction was started earlier.

"We're not satisfied that it wasn't done before the season started but there's some things you can't control," Ward said.

He said people have been calling asking why there isn't a place for transient docking.

"We've put them at our gas dock, which we normally wouldn't do and tried to work around that," Ward said. "It would've been better if they were done in June but at least they're making an effort now."

He said he's seen the construction activity increase at East Park in the past two to three weeks.

"They didn't used to work Saturdays," Ward said.

In the initial project presentation to Charlevoix's city council in July 2006, the docks were scheduled to be finished by May 27.

City of Charlevoix treasurer and acting city manager Richard Brandi said there are two reasons for the delay in the project, the first was the requirement that employees who worked on certain segments of the project were paid wages set by the federal government. The second was the need to change the project architect. In April, Peter Pollack of Pollack Design Associates in Ann Arbor was replaced as head architect by Mark Buday, an architect out of Harbor Springs, in order for the project to continue to be state-funded by Michigan Waterways.

The change in head architect delayed the start of construction by four months.

As a result, the completion of the docks were delayed by a month and a half and the harbormaster building, that was supposed to be finished in March, is still being completed.

As the project has continued, there has also been unexpected work, like construction beneath the east side of Mason Street in order to enhance storm water systems that will be connected to the park.

Brandi said the city will be paying for the cost of the work at Mason Street. He said he did not know exactly how much the work would cost.

In the meantime, Elliott said he has been trying to ensure that the whole downtown park will be available by the summer of 2008.

"Pat's been working hard to get the project taken care of for users of the park," said Keith Carey, executive director of the Downtown Development Authority. "The focus is on customers."

Venetian Festival relocates to Michigan Beach

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

The 2007 Venetian Festival planning has successfully progressed, despite the temporary closing of East Park, the festival's primary location for the past nine years.

This year, all events will take place at Lake Michigan Beach, with the exception of the carnival and the Saturday boat parade and fireworks show, which will take place at their usual locations.

Something new at the events will be a tent serving alcohol on festival grounds.

"We have focused more intensely on revenue-generating opportunities, one of which will be a tiki tent for beer and wine," said Dan Barron, president of Charlevoix Venetian Festival Inc., the nonprofit organization that funds and operates the festival every year.

The tent will be within a roped-off area on Lake Michigan Beach. Those under 21 will not be permitted inside the ropes, nor will those enjoying alcohol be allowed outside of the roped area.

Barron said the tiki tent will help offset the cost of the festival relocation in which he said a considerable amount of time and research was spent.

"This took extraordinary additional effort," Barron said. "We've had extensive assistance from city staff and from our sound and lighting experts."

Sound Environments, the festival's light and sound company for the past eight years, has provided a stage for the musical acts.

"I think there's some obvious difficulties involved in a new venue but Lake Michigan Beach has a large area and beautiful resources," Barron said. "It will provide an outstanding staging area."

Festival assistant director Amy Kurtz said the stretch is perfect for viewing the Friday night fireworks.

For the boat parade and fireworks scheduled for Saturday, July 28, Kurtz said spectators can view the show from Bridge Park and the parking lot below Bridge Park, instead of East Park. They will need to bring chairs this year because of the pavement.

"The Beaver Islander will be moved so the whole area will be open," she said. "We don't expect it to be any different other than a shift to the north."

East Park will not be available for the 77th Annual Venetian Festival use July 22-28. The following is a brief overview of where events will be staged:

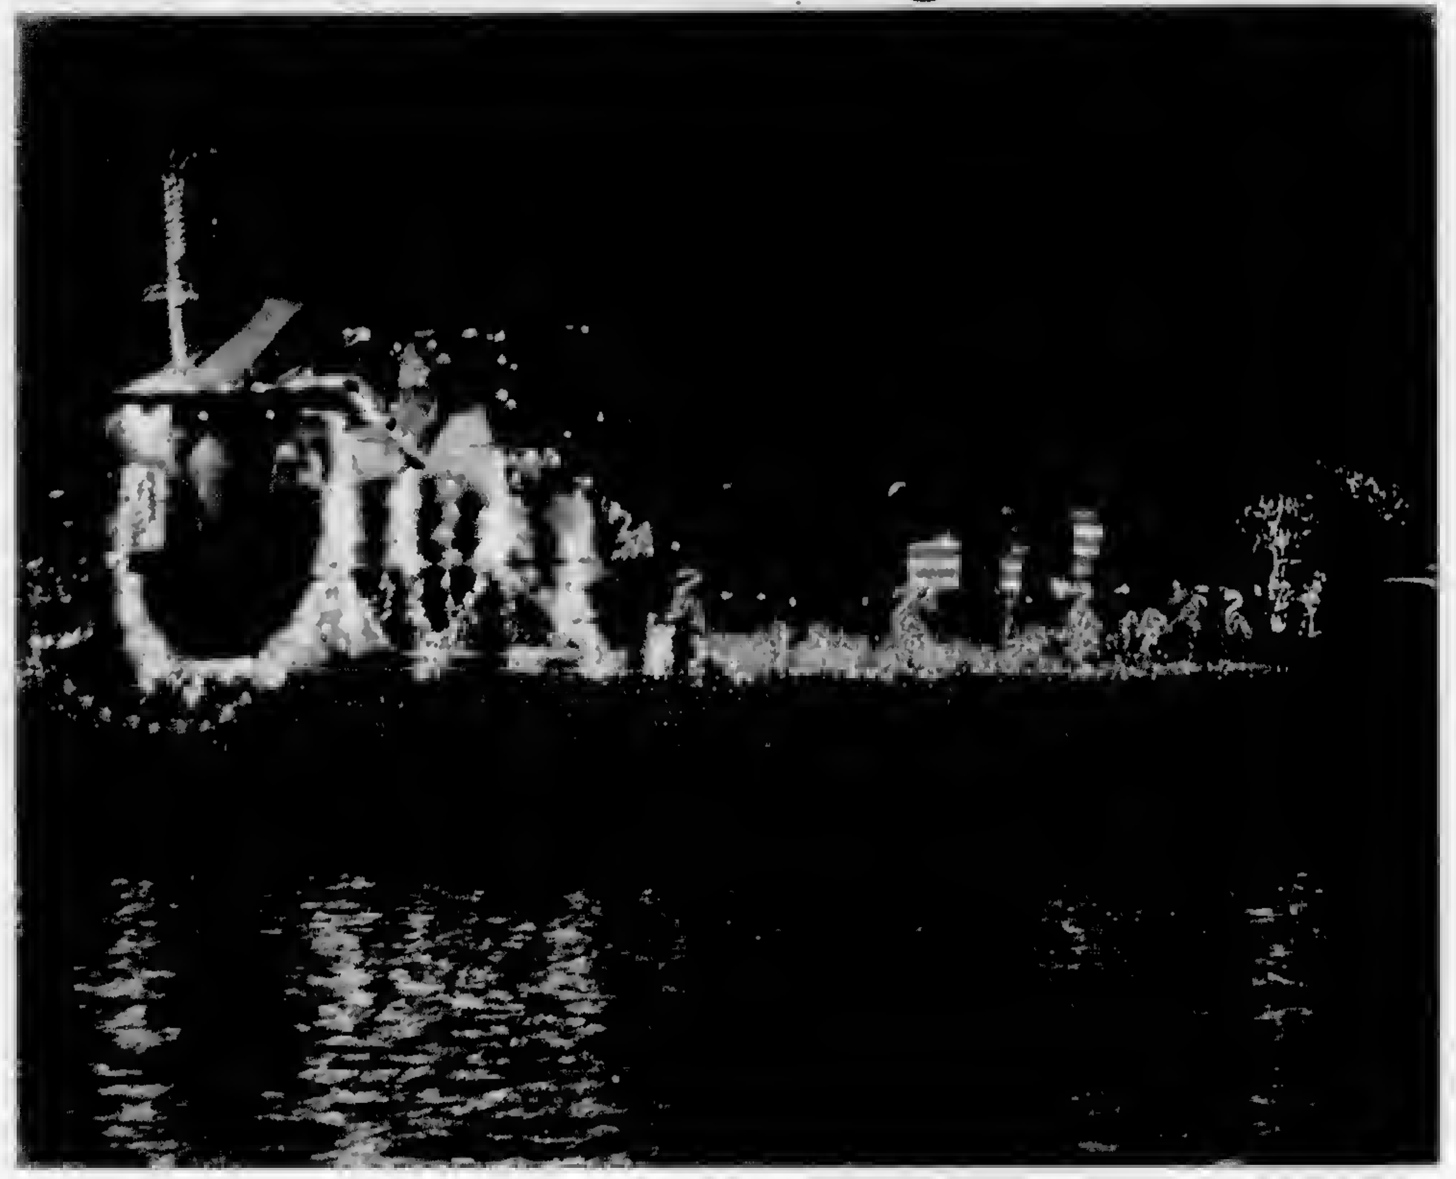
Country Kickoff, July 24, Castle Farms.

Rhythms of Venetian concert series, July 22-28, Michigan Beach.

Kids' Day, July 26, Michigan Beach.

Fireworks, July 27, viewing at Michigan Beach where like entertainment will take place at other locations along Lake Michigan.

Boat Parade and Fireworks, July 28, Bridge Park



File photo

In spite of East Park construction, Venetian's signature Grand Electric Boat Parade and stadium fireworks will still take place in the Round Lake harbor with viewing areas in the parking lot accessed off Clinton Street as well as from Bridge Park. The Courier will publish a complete festival guide in the coming weeks.

Driver injured in car, deer collision

On Tuesday, June 26 Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office deputies Westrick Jr. and McAuliff were dispatched to Charlevoix Area Hospital to responded to a driver injured in a car collision with a deer.

Samuel Jordan Sheelk, 17, of Norwood, was driving south on Barnard Road near Matchett Road when his 1993 Buick Skylark struck a deer.

The deer impacted the left front corner of his car and came towards the driver's side rearview mirror. The deer ripped the mirror from the vehicle which came up and hit Sheelk in the face through his open window. The deer left the scene of the accident, and Sheelk suffered a minor cut to his left eyebrow. Sheelk was later transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital by his father to receive a few stitches from where he was treated and released the same evening.

Boathouse proposal draws concern

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

At least 25 people attended the Tuesday, June 26 Michigan Department of Environmental Quality hearing on proposed dredging for a boathouse at 304 East Dixon Avenue.

Following applicant Jim Anderson's presentation and three-minute comment periods by Elden Johnson and Gene Saenger, two neighbor's opposing the development, Johnson's attorney, Bridget Brown Powers, told the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality agents the hearing may have been out of order.

"I think it is important to note that we are scheduled to appear in front of the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals on (July 18) and it is our position that the permit was not issued properly," she said. "While it's on appeal it's stayed and therefore there really isn't any standing to come before the DEQ or the Army Corp of Engineers with a zoning permit that is stayed at the moment."

Roxanne Ramirez, a representative of the land and water management division for the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality in Charlevoix County said her division regulates the administering of construction activities on inland lakes, streams, sand dunes and wetlands among others.

"The department shall issue a permit if it finds that the structure or project will not adversely affect the public trust or riparian right," she said. "The department will not (issue a permit) if the proposed project or structure will unlawfully impair or destroy any of the water or natural resources of the state."

Anderson spoke on his project's behalf during the hearing and told the representatives he has four reasons for proposing his 72 by 42-foot boathouse and dock project.

"The waves get very difficult in the fall and in the spring, making it difficult, very difficult, to moor a boat, let alone get on or off a boat, in those conditions," said Anderson, who added that owning his own boathouse will allow him to extend his boating season into the shoulder months.

Anderson would also like a boat with a lot of "bright work" which is a varnished wooden boat.

"Wood and varnish don't mix with sun and so you have to cover a varnished wooden boat or it simply will degrade in short order," he said, adding that he wants the option to work on the boat during winter.

While neighboring property co-owner, Gene Saenger, has worries about the size of Anderson's project, he has other concerns.

"I'm all in favor of a boathouse, not necessarily the boathouse that's proposed. I don't see any evidence as to why this boathouse has to involve upland dredging," Saenger said. "I think the project is completely out of scale. I think there are many alternatives to this project, one of the alternatives is to build it over the water and a second alternative is to build it on a scale that's more in character with boathouses already in Round Lake."

Anderson said he plans to go to great expense to make his boathouse fit the neighborhood.

"The first rule I said to the architect when we first met was, 'This boathouse, this house, has to look like it has been in Charlevoix for a hundred years so the architecture fits the community," he said. "I'm using building materials like wood shingles that require a lot more maintenance than would ordinarily be used in a house today so that I could make this project fit the neighborhood."

As far as the size of his project when comparing it to neighboring boathouses, Anderson said, "Mine is larger than three others, about the same as the fourth and much smaller than all of the rest on Round Lake."

Aside from aesthetic concerns, Johnson said he fears for the environment.

"This over 20-feet-deep excavation extending 60 to 80 feet upland into the property will penetrate into the old dump and fill property of the Redington, Nelson and Company steam mill property," he said. "The subject permit is situated on the east 120 feet of said property which operated for over 50 years as a lumber mill and timber flat and shipping business."

Johnson said much of the ground below the property's surface is filled with garbage and other debris from the former company.

"What guarantees will I and my neighbors have to protect our property and families against the pollution affecting our health and safety?" he said. "Should the MDEQ approve this permit and allow upland dredging, it will be the first allowed in the R1 residential zone of City of Charlevoix in Round Lake."

Johnson also objected to Anderson's 14 boat slips, but Anderson assured the representatives that the city counts boat slips by the number of feet of dock one has.

"The truth of the matter is I have two docks and the way the city calculates boat slips is any distance of 26 feet along a dock," Anderson said. "The density of boat slips on my property is lower than most of the other boat slips along the north shore."

Anderson added that he will not rent boat slips to anyone.

What? The guitars will be on display at the Bier Art Gallery art demonstration.

When? From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday, July 5.

Where? The gallery is located six miles south of Charlevoix off U.S. 31 in a red and white schoolhouse.

Aficionados of art and music will have the opportunity to see the two merged during Bier Art Gallery's Demo Days.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday, July 5 at Bier Art Gallery six miles south of Charlevoix, artists Tyler Bier, 20 and Anna Ferrell, 18, will display their lifelike clay representations of famous guitars.

"We've done a Les Paul, Stratocaster, Jaguar, Flying V, some acoustic guitars and a butterfly guitar," Bier said.

Lifelong artists, Ferrell and Bier began creating the guitars last fall as a creative release.

"I always liked art class and won some awards for some of the stuff I've done and I'm always drawing and trying to do something (artistic)," Ferrell said. "Tyler's the musician. He has a wall of guitars and he's always playing, so that was kind of the inspiration."

Bier added, "My parents have done art since I was born, so I just kind of grew up around it and my parents were encouraging us to make something we could put in the gallery and I like guitars, so we decided to try it."

Though a musician of six years, Bier has been an artist for much longer.

"I started working in clay when I was 13," he said. "I made piggy banks after my grandpa passed away — he used to make them."

The artisan duo enjoys making the guitars in pairs.

"Usually we sit down to make one each and the process takes about eight hours to make one," Ferrell said. "I look at Tyler's wall of guitars and we just kind of model them after those. The acoustic ones are more easy to make, but if you get into electric guitars you have knobs and other details to put on them."

Bier added, "After we shape the clay, we let them dry for a few days then fire them in the kiln and after that you have to glaze them and fire them once more and after that we have to string them."

The delicate strings on the itsy-bitsy instruments, which measure nearly a foot long, are made of copper speaker wire.

Anyone interested in a custom clay guitar need only snap a few pictures of their favorite guitar and let Ferrell and Bier do their thing.

The 13 guitars for sale at the gallery range in price from $165 to $195.

Both Ferrell and Bier will be at the gallery shaping their clay during the Demo Days demonstration.

Anna Ferrell and Tyler Bier have created more than a dozen smaller versions of guitars out of clay. The two young artisans will be on-hand creating guitars during Bier Art Gallery's Demo Days on July 5.

Zaccaro's celebrates family legacies, local talent

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

The story of Cindy Warner's Zaccaro's Market begins in Bari, a small fishing village on Italy's eastern shoreline.

It was from there that Warner's maternal grandparents immigrated individually to the United States and settled in Cleveland, Ohio where they eventually met, married and became U.S. citizens. When they started a family, George and Phyllis Zaccaro decided to introduce Italian delicatessen to Americans.

This deli, along with Warner's extensive experience operating three restaurants in northern Michigan, led to the creation of Zaccaro's Market at 221 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Warner never visited her grandparent's Cleveland business but when her grandmother came to live with her after the passing of her grandfather, she was told many stories about it. One in particular took place during Prohibition.

"My grandmother couldn't figure out why gentlemen would come in and drink coffee at the counter for hours," Warner said. "She found out years later that her husband was serving Cafe Royale, coffee spiked with bootleg whiskey."

The coffee bar at Zaccaro's Market is dedicated in memory of her grandfather.

Besides coffee, wine and beer), Zaccaro's Market features a deli, bakery, fresh produce, gourmet dishes, seafood and international grocery items. Her freezer section features dishes like Creme Brulee and Roast Duck.

"Everything in our freezer is what we would consider gourmet quality," Warner said. "A lot of things made by chefs are now flash frozen and it defies the cost of making it yourself."

Fruits and vegetables in her produce section are selected by her head chef, Jim Morse and are used in the dishes served at the prepared foods counter.

"All ordering was hand-picked by our executive chef," Warner said. "In produce, we want to have a really good selection. We cater to the foodies."

Warner said anything loose and non-packaged comes from local farms.

"50 to 60 percent of our produce is local," Warner said.

One featured seasonal item in her produce are strawberries from the Leelanau Peninsula.

"The gentleman out of Leelanau, he picks his strawberries earlier," Warner said. "He gets the first pick of the crop and delivers them mid-morning, an hour after they come off the vine."

In addition to providing locally-grown produce, Warner's businesses also contribute $5,000 a year to an organization called 'Taste the Local Difference' that helps sustain local farming.

Warner said she is very selective when picking her staff for the market.

"They have to have a serious bent on customer service," Warner said. "When people come here, their experience has to be excellent."

She said in addition to providing good customer service and having experience serving food and wine, her staff is also primarily local.

Chef Morse grew up in Lake Ann, near Traverse City and studied culinary arts at Northwestern Michigan College.

Warner said Morse leads the staff at the prepared foods counter and selects the dishes that will be featured there.

The prepared foods at Zaccaro's Market include international dishes like lasagna and hummus, and American favorites like macaroni and cheese. Customers ordering these items, or meat and cheese from the deli section, can also watch the Food Network on a plasma television situated on the wall behind the counter.

Warner said she intends to stay open all year long and is already making preparations for the winter season.

"In winter we're going to have to get creative," Warner said. "We'll do less quantity and see what sells, we'll do catering trays for local businesses."

In addition to owning Zaccaro's Market and other northwest Michigan restaurants, Warner is involved in the software business. She runs the Services Division of a California-based company called Salesforce.com. She also owns downtown's Village Inn Pizza, and Traverse City restaurants J and S Hamburg and The Boathouse.

Charlevoix resident Jim Flanagan said Zaccaro's has magnificent customer service.

"This is an upscale, first class shop and I wish them well," Flanagan said.

Charlevoix resident Sharon Witucki also enjoyed it. "It's a fun place, great atmosphere," she said.

Zaccaro's Market is open this summer seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Council offers Straebel city manager's seat

STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Robert Straebel

At a special meeting on Wednesday, June 28, the Charlevoix City Council voted unanimously to offer the position of city manager to Robert Straebel.

Straebel is currently the village manager for the Village of Taos Ski Valley, N.M. but has roots in Michigan, being a graduate of Ferris State University and having family in the northern Michigan area.

Council is offering Straebel a three-year contract with a base salary of $79,000 and a department benefits package that includes seven days of sick leave, nine paid holidays, six days of funeral leave, three personal days and a Premier Health PPO.

Also included is a cell phone allowance for $41 a month, a car allowance for $450 a month and a 100 percent education reimbursement.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said he would call both Straebel and candidate Todd Campbell to let them know of council's decision.

In a previous meeting, Carlson said that Campbell was the only one with experience extensively in electric, water and sewer in regards to the city electric department's $5.9 million budget and department head that is currently on sick leave.

As of June 28, he said Straebel's knowledge of public works would not come into play.

Straebel has been selected to fill the vacancy of former city manager Mike Wiesner who council fired in January. City treasurer Rick Brandi has been acting city manager during the transition.

Grounds for Wiesner's dismissal included, "Failure to properly supervise the city treasurer regarding the issuance of a check to CCMS in the amount of $222,978; failure to properly supervise the city wastewater treatment plant regarding the falsifying of records by wastewater treatment plant personnel; failure to provide in a timely manner the city council with information that will be considered at a city council meeting; and failure to provide monthly reports regarding the operation of city departments."

Wiesner has since accepted the directorship of the Boyne City Department of Public Works.

Music, art featured at Otis Pottery open house

The 10th annual open house at Otis Pottery will take place July 6-8.

This annual event which features concerts of chamber music on Friday and Saturday evenings is open to the public. David, June and Andrew Otis, will be showing their recent wood-fired clay work. Also featured will be an exhibition of aerial photographs by Robert Hartman, professor emeritus from the University of California, Berkeley.

For nearly three decades Hartman has flown over the California landscape in his 1949 Piper-clipper aircraft, taking photographs with infrared film that transforms environmental reality into gorgeous abstractions.

The chamber music concerts will feature a return of Fran Shelly, professor of flute and principal flutist with the Wichita Symphony Orchestra, Kansas, and Dorothy Vogel, pianist, from Traverse City. Joining the ensemble this year will be Jill Marderness, a bassoonist from Scottsdale, Ariz. and artist in residence with Michigan Bay View Music Festival.

Chamber music will include works for flute, bassoon and piano by Vivaldi, Haydn, Beethoven, Taffanel, Villa-Lobos and Douglas.

This open house will continue each day with concerts scheduled at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday evenings. Pottery demonstration and flute ensemble music are scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

Otis Pottery is located at 01691 M-66 North, East Jordan, one mile south of the Ironton Ferry. For more information, call (231) 536-7856.

All proceeds go to the Lions Club's 33 beneficiaries which include youth scholarships, sports teams and activity programs, civic programs and projects and of sight and hearing local and state programs.

At the upcoming event, 25 teams are expected to go for the winning lowest-score trophies and cash prizes. This year, a player who sinks an ace on hole 17 will win a new Chevy Trailblazer for three years from Fox Charlevoix.

There are consolation cash awards on each of the above holes for the players who come closest to the pins. There are cash awards for longest in-the-fairway drives on holes one, 10 and 16. Players can go for $5,000 in the putting contest held on the practice green. A trophy and cash award goes to the closest-to-the-pin putting finalist.

Charlevoix public pool 10 year anniversary celebration

What? "Ten Years and Growing Stronger" is the theme for the 10th anniversary celebration of the opening of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

When? Thursday, July 19

Where? 11905 U.S. 31 North, Charlevoix.

"Ten Years and Growing Stronger" is the theme for the 10th anniversary celebration of the opening of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Thursday, July 19.

THE CELEBRATION

The staff and board of directors have planned special events that day to showcase how the pool has served the public over the last decade.

The public is invited to use the pool that day at no charge and tours will be available for those who don't want to swim but wish to see and learn more about the pool facilities and its programs. The staff will serve hot dogs and a light meal from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. free to visitors.

EVENT SCHEDULE

The schedule for Thursday, July 19 in which the public can join in activities for free is as follows:

- Lap swimming 6 to 8 a.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. (two lanes).
- Open Swimming for all ages 3 to 5 p.m. (with the inflatable tanker) and 6 to 8 p.m., OYO (on your own) for adults only from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. (two lanes) and Aqua Exercise class from 8 to 9 a.m. The public can observe Red Cross Swim Lessons from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

THE HISTORY

Nearly 50 years ago the late Ralph Hamilton, a member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club envisioned and promoted an indoor pool for Charlevoix. The Friends of the Pool's many volunteers, spearheaded by Bruce and Barbara MacArthur made the pool a reality in 1997.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool was one of only a few pools in the country built and operated without public funding. In 2005, the pool went to the public and passed a Recreational Authority Millage for the City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township and Charlevoix Township. These funds help keep the fees reasonable to the users, including offering dollar nites (four nights a week); non district users pay $1.50. The millage has also allowed the pool to put aside $35,000 a year in a contingency fund. This fund was used this past winter to replace the aging ventilation system at $110,000.

To date over 325,000 swimmers from Charlevoix and the surrounding area have used the pool.

THE BUDGET

The pool's budget for 2007 is $427,000. Of that $177,000 comes from the Recreational Authority, $80,000 from the annual pool auction, $50,000 from donations/other fundraising and $120,000 from fees and charges.

Anyone purchasing a pass or signing up for a class the week of July 16 will receive a 10 percent discount.

For more information about the Charlevoix Area Community Pool programs, call (231) 547-0982 or visit www.charpool.org.

JUL 2007

Hundreds gather to say goodbye to LaBlance

MARINA

gathered in front of the beloved music teacher's house to sing songs. LeBlance sat up from her bed, she belted out 'Hi everyone! I love you!' and enthusiastically waved to the crowd. Marina's children, George LeBlance and Maro LeBlance stood by her side crying and sharing in the community she brought together.

Like the memorable songs passed on, she reached people.

"She just had the ability to bring out the best in children," MaryAnn Chew, a former teacher and friend said. "...The world is a little less better today because of her passing but better because she did pass through our lives."

Marina served the community as a teacher for 33 years. She could demand respect with a stern look, but she was known for her vibrant smile: She was never afraid to dance with the kids, to laugh and to sing.

In an historical moment, Marina organized an assembly in honor of the Indonesian Ambassador, Soemadi Brotodiningrat who visited Charlevoix after the tsunamis. The ambassador smiled and clapped during the songs of unity.

"She was a great role model for all ... She showed us all how to do it," Pat Carland, an elementary teacher said. "... kids couldn't wait to get to music. She had them right at her fingertips. They could be themselves."

Diane Priess, a kindergarten teacher remembers her students' fondness for Marina, they would often make her cards and talk about Marina — whose name they had a difficult time pronouncing.

"She was a presence in the classroom," Priess said.

Kelsey Way, 13, sang in the final spring musical in 2004. Looking back, Kelsey's favorite musical moment was singing Grease's "We go together."

"She had fun teaching us the crazy words. It just made everyone laugh," Kelsey said.

Boogie Carlson, the Charlevoix city mayor was a student in the Michigan Bicentennial concert in 1976 — which Marina directed. Nearly 30 years later Carlson watched his daughter perform in Marina's final show.

"It was a testimony," Carlson said, of the recent tribute. "All the people who turned out to sing to her — it sent chills up your spine."

Marina's children, Maro LeBlance and George LaBlance, are overwhelmed by the community support.

"We've received hundreds of cards, many with touching letters sharing how she helped shape their lives and now their children's lives," Maro said. "... it takes you back to what a community is all about."

George said his mom never understood the community fanfare, she simply believed she did her job.

In her first year of teaching she received the 1973 Outstanding Elementary Teacher of America award. Marina received the Outstanding Person In Education Award and the Crooked Tree Arts Council "eddi Award." She was also named the Outstanding Citizen of the year by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

"Marina was the sunshine in everybody's life," Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce said.

Marina was the grand marshal of the Venetian parade and was the speaker at the 2002 Charlevoix High School commencement. LeBlance was also a founder of the Charlevoix Council of the Arts. The council hosts the Waterfront Art Fair, a fundraiser for art and cultural education in the schools.

But George and Maro remember her most important role — mom.

"My mom, my sister and I were always a team," George said.

The trio enjoyed watching musicals, road trips out west and eating ethnic cuisine.

George shared a heartfelt laugh, speaking of an Alaskan cruise, where his mother was intrigued by the Native American dancers. When they needed a volunteer she was the first to dance.

"She was never afraid of anything," George said.

She made each birthday or holiday special. She celebrated her Greek heritage, teaching her kids how to cook and hosting Greek parties.

LaBlance was also known for her spontaneity. She was the first to karaoke and even marked the Millennium by driving to Florida and back.

Maro said she shares her mom's love for life.

"She taught me love — family and friends are more important than anything material in the world," Maro said. "She also taught me to be courageous and stand up for yourself."

Most of all Maro will miss their daily phone calls.

"We became genuinely good friends and had more than a mother-daughter relationship," Maro said. "I'm so blessed that she was my mom, she was a great role model and somebody I aspire to be like."

Pool expansion planned

A swimmer uses the existing Charlevoix Area Community Pool facility off U.S. 31 near the Charlevoix Country Club. The pool board is currently reviewing plans for a major expansion.

Additions to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool building are currently in the works, despite problems of mold and humidity with the existing structure.

Preliminary plans include constructing an adjacent building to house a larger lap pool, while keeping the current building off U.S. 31 in Charlevoix Township and replacing its pool with a children's wade pool.

Pool director Al Gooch said he would like to see more families with young children at the pool and the plans for the pool additions would be an attempt to accommodate these customers.

Gooch said there are no plans to demolish the existing building.

"We don't want to be closed," Gooch said. "If you remodel, you can have more money in it than if you start it new."

Gooch said the existing building is experiencing mold in the attic, missing tile on the pool deck, a shifting ceiling and broken light fixtures.

"It wasn't a dangerous mold," Gooch said of the attic. "We're keeping a constant watch on it. The moisture problem is an ongoing issue."

Gooch said he plans to have the light fixtures repaired in August when the pool is drained and that nothing needs to be done about the shifting

Businesses report high traffic on July 4

Bridge Street was packed with shoppers on July 4 and the days that followed. Merchants believe the Wednesday holiday kept visitors in Charlevoix longer.

Downtown business earnings for this year's Fourth of July holiday were generally the same as last year, with a few exceptions.

Lodging businesses like the Bridge Street Inn Bed and Breakfast had many visitors, regardless of the mid-week date.

"It seemed like people came up even though it was during the week, so that was great," said Bridge Street Inn owner John McKown.

McKown said Internet exposure has helped attract visitors from farther away, who then stay for four or five nights rather than just the usual two or three during the holiday.

Zaccaro's Market, which opened in June, experienced their best day on July 4. Assistant manager Laura Noble said the store had a lot of visitors, especially in the morning.

"We were busy," Noble said. "It was kind of a gloomy day, people didn't want to be at the beach, they were checking out downtown instead."

Pam Awrey at the new G and Papa's Pizza did not experience the same success.

"It was pretty slow, but we just opened on Monday," Awrey said. "We had a few big party orders."

Awrey said she observed that the town was ceiling.

"These are very minor shifts," he said.

Community pool board member Steven Hansen said that some of the building's problems may be attributed to its wood structure.

"We might have less of this if we had a utilitarian, cinder block building," Hansen said.

But when the pool was built in 1997, he said, there was emphasis on the aesthetics of the building.

"Most pools made of cinder block are windowless, this one is almost like swimming outdoors," Hansen said. "I know everyone was so pleased with its bright design and small piece of air over the pool that had to be heated."

Hansen said warm moisture over the pool rises quickly into the pool's attic, where it cools and condenses, which is creating the mold.

"It's folly to try to have a perfect environment above the pool; every pool has these issues," Hansen said. "Other pools in nearby towns have had excessive humidity problems as great or greater than ours."

In April, the Charlevoix Area Pool Board approved the hiring of Air-N-Energy Consulting, a Traverse City firm, to fix the problem.

Hansen said Air-N-Energy has suggested enlarging the soffit vents that are in place to address the mold problem and close off higher soffit vents to emphasize ventilation.

He said with the new addition, the attic space should have its own ventilation system and be treated as a third air space to help resolve the current air problems in the building.

The existing building's new ventilation system, installed last year for approximately $111,000, is currently posing a problem.

"It's ventilating but not dehumidifying the attic. A firm is going to come in to permanently fix the problem," Gooch said.

Gooch said the current architect for the pool renovations, Jack Begrow, is not concerned about the state of the existing building.

"Begrow is aware of the issues with wood and contracting of wood," Gooch said. "He doesn't see that as a concern."

The community pool was built in 1997 as one of the only community pools in the country completely funded by private money.

"For 15 years," Hansen said, "Friends of the Pool raised enough money to build and operate the facility."

He said since the passing of .33 mill for 10 years for operational and maintenance purposes in 2005, the pool has received 40 percent of its funding from the Recreation Authority, an inter-governmental authority spanning the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township and Hayes Township.

This millage costs an estimated $2 per month for an average home of $125,000.

Gooch declined to estimate what the cost of the expanded pool facility will be or when construction is proposed to take place.

The new ventilation system at the Charlevoix Area Pool circulates air and keeps the pool deck temperature two degrees cooler than the pool water. This was installed this spring to address humidity issues.

Gas prices don't deter tourists empty in the evening, with people going elsewhere for parties or to view a fireworks show.

Jackie Dipert, co-owner of The Clothing Company, Charlevoix Wear and Color Wear in downtown Charlevoix, reported good business on the Fourth.

"We had an excellent weekend and fourth of July was okay," Dipert said. "We don't have a lot going in Charlevoix, except the parade."

Dipert said business at all three stores was the same as last year but with Color Wear, where Dipert's husband was working, being up in sales.

"My husband sold a lot of 'Fresh Produce' — a beachy, colorful line," Dipert said.

She said their loyal customer base is what makes all three stores successful during the holiday.

"We have a lot of loyal customers," Dipert said. "At The Clothing Company, we sold a lot of jackets. Regular customers know we'll have our fall line out and want to get it before it's gone."

Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce president Jacqueline Merta said the fact that the holiday fell on a Wednesday encouraged people to take more time off.

"People were taking the fourth, fifth and sixth off," Merta said. "Today (July 5) is a great day for business. We should have a good, long excellent weekend."

Vera McKown, Executive Director of Convention and Visitor's Bureau said the lodging industry saw strong business but didn't max out.

"Some did better than others, they had vacancies. We were not full," she said.

But overall the feeling is that gas prices which had many fearing the worst for the 2007 tourist season weren't a factor.

"Gas pricing has not stopped folks from coming. I don't think it's a factor," McKown said.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances

Who's to say what's fair and unbiased?

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Opinions are like, well, let's just say everyone has them, and most of us think our opinions are good enough to make sound judgments — that's how we end up with things like the Fairness Doctrine, an old section of the 1934 federal communications act added in the late 1940s to ensure both sides of controversial issues were represented by radio and TV broadcasters.

Oddly enough, Satanists were not given time to rebut Christian broadcasts, socialists didn't follow pro-capitalist investment programs and pacifists were not given the opportunity to append commercials which urged my grandparents to buy war bonds.

Since fairness, as all things subjective, is decided by he who holds the status quo, the doctrine actually gave equal time to no one, but allowed for someone who had been attacked by a radio or TV broadcaster the time to rebut such an attack before the doctrine was struck down during Big Ron's days in office.

In 1969, when the Supreme Court upheld the devious doctrine, they said a licensee had a right to broadcast but not to exclude certain viewpoints from programming.

While I was disappointed to read such a cavalier attitude about freedom by the highest court in the land, what really perturbed me is the myth that the so-called public airwaves do not belong to private companies. Station upkeep, transmission equipment and personnel are all privately funded while the long socialist arm of our apparently pro-capitalist government is used to interfere in matters of taste, decency and morality via the FCC — a federal farce for another discussion.

Forcing faux fairness down broadcasting's throat is akin to telling someone they may open a grocery store, but that they must give equal shelf space to both name brand and generic products.

Some say one-sided political arguments will be the downfall of democracy, as if fraud and demagoguery weren't the institution's cornerstones.

To that end, some would like to revive the Media Ownership Reform Act (MORA) brought out, but not passed, in 2004 by Congressman Maurice Hinchey of New York which, among other things, would compel, "broadcast news outlets to investigate issues thoroughly and present their findings in an unbiased way."

Do we really want such a quagmire of waste and deceit as the federal government designated as the moral arbiter of what is fair and unbiased?

The truth is Democrats are terrified by the huge audiences who follow guys like Sean Hannity and Rush Limbaugh.

And while I'm sure some station owners are interested only in delivering their brand of truth to the public, by and large, this is a money game.

If Burger King could make millions selling carrot sticks, they'd be on the menu. If AM station managers thought they could market Democrat DJs, they'd do it.

Will we next force Ford to carry Chevies, steakhouses to serve vegetarian dishes or perhaps Trojan prophylactic commercials should be followed by messages from the Catholic diocese telling us condemnation is merely a condom away.

If you want fairness, go back to grade school, they give everybody a turn and a blue ribbon just for trying even if you suck.

If we're so worried about a venue for all ideas — that is pretending the Internet does not exist — then designate a couple stations in each state as public broadcasters and let any schmuck with poetry or opinion have at it for a few bucks; our tax dollars have certainly been wasted on more idiotic projects.

Don't get me wrong, it scares me to think a handful of media companies can and do control much of what we see and hear, but giving the government a hand in the action will do little if nothing to fix what is clearly an issue of supply and demand.

A world where government determines controversy, fairness and news is far more frightening than all the personal opinion AM blabbermouths present as fact.

In the end, freedom to express oneself does not include a guarantee that anyone will listen or pay to listen to what you have to say. If you want a relevant rival to republican radio, then demand one or better yet, become one, but don't sit around waiting for Big Brother to fight your ideological battles for you.

The only way to be fair to television and radio businesses is to purge political placebos like the so-called Fairness Doctrine.

A plant invader, epipactis helleborine

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

In the plant world the words invasive, exotic and orchid do not seem to go together. Nonetheless there is an exotic orchid, somewhat invasive, sprouting up at many places in Charlevoix and all over Michigan.

Ed Voss' "Flora of Michigan" lists it in 10 counties scattered over the state in 1972, but by now I am willing to bet it is present in every county in the state. Helleborine is the only common name usually mentioned for the plant. Its full Latin name is epipactis helleborine, supposedly because the leaves somewhat resemble those of hellebore. Is it possible to have a weedy orchid?

In Charlevoix, helleborine crops up along roadsides, in woods, and most obviously in bark-mulched perennial beds. This time of year you can look for a foot-tall plant with a three inch long, pleated leaves and a not-yet mature, bowing flower stalk with as many as 50 small buds lined up along it. The flowers which open in late July or August are less than an inch across and pinkish-purple in color. This is not an orchid you would give to your prom date. One year there will be a dozen plants or clumps of three or four stems scattered all over the mulched bed, and the next year most of the stems will be in a different place.

The secret to its success seems to be a network of perennial underground roots that feed on decaying organic matter, like old bark mulch or the decaying leaves in a forest. The roots can grow for years without producing any above ground stems or leaves or flowers. If you are at all botanically inclined, you may well wonder how such a plant can get along for years without any green leaves to feed it. Formally it is what is called a saprophyte, a plant that feeds on dead material of some kind, and doesn't really need the green pigments we usually associate with healthy plant growth.

Occasionally the above ground stems look like albino plants, with white leaves and stems, but having the same pinkish-purple colored flowers.

Like most of the orchids, each flower produces an enormous number of tiny seeds, which probably explains helleborine's wide distribution in its new home.

Imagine that, an exotic, invasive and somewhat subversive orchid growing vigorously in many of our backyards.

JOURNALISTS DO GUIDE SOCIAL CHANGE

Editor:

I am responding to the fundamental misunderstandings demonstrated by the letter from Margo Johnson (entitled "Journalists are not tools of social change," page 8 of the June 27 edition of the Courier) in which she was criticizing staff writer Stefanie Carano's opinion piece on politicians and journalists.

I must agree with Ms. Johnson that "liberal elite" are arrogant and patronizing in their belief that they "know better" than everyone else. However, isn't the same criticism true of every political stripe?

Conservatives, liberals, fascists, socialists and anarchists all think that their knowledge/beliefs are correct and superior. We all justify our beliefs in order to reduce the cognitive dissonance created by their negative outcomes (like violence or poverty).

Contrary to Ms. Johnson's wishes and beliefs, journalists have always affected change in our society. A history of this would be too long (Google "Creel Commission"), but one recent example is proof enough. New York Times reporter Judith Miller wrote several articles leading up to the war on Iraq that were designed to terrify the American public into aligning with the neo-conservative fantasy of an imminently dangerous Saddam Hussein; his finger on the trigger of weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear bombs. Her "reporting," with the complicity of the editorial board of the most respected newspaper in the world, changed public opinion and generated the public support necessary to start a war of aggression, possibly setting off a cascade of global war and terrorism.

Ms. Johnson might be surprised to find out that the White House frequently uses VNR's, or video news releases. These are commercially produced video news bits, supporting the president's opinion on controversial issues (No Child Left Behind and Social Security reform, for example), masquerading as factual and objective news (Google "Karen Ryan"). These finished pieces are sent to television news stations across the country and aired on TV without revealing their source. This is the classic definition of propaganda.

The mass media's "job" in a democratic society is to provide the means for the free exchange of ideas and the free flow of information. Citizens without information are not citizens, they are subjects. Sometimes, the truth is controversial, provocative, critical, painful or ugly. Fact or fiction, for better or worse, the media do influence our thoughts and they do guide the direction of our social change.

"Liberal media bias" is a myth. Ownership of media determines its content, not a particular journalist's or reporter's political leanings. Owners are overwhelmingly rich, white, old and conservative men. Rupert Murdoch openly acknowledges that he started Fox News to create a conservatively-biased news source to influence the political ideas of our society. It is precisely this kind of corporate manipulation and omission of vital political information by media owners which precludes our country from being a democracy.

CHAMBER'S JOB ISN'T FILLING STORES

Editor:

The Chamber of Commerce was the topic of a letter to the editor and an article in the July 4 edition of the Charlevoix Courier. The letter writer suggested that the Chamber "offer up" empty storefronts to Chamber members for temporary use.

Stefanie Carano's article entitled "DDA warns Chamber time is running out" described a recent decision by the Downtown Development Authority to contribute funds to the Chamber for events that according to Downtown Development Authority chairman Hugh Mason benefit primarily Chamber members.

I am a member of both organizations. Both have their shortcomings (don't we all?) and both are striving to overcome them. Many of us are encouraged by the conciliatory approach that Keith Carey, the new executive director of the Downtown Development Authority is taking.

I feel, however, that I must say a couple of things in defense of the Chamber. First, the empty buildings in downtown Charlevoix are privately owned. The Chamber has no ability to fill them, temporarily or otherwise. The Chamber does its best to support businesses in all of Charlevoix and certainly in downtown Charlevoix, but it can no more fill empty storefronts than you or I can.

Second, the Chamber's activities support all businesses and the entire community. Maybe my dues should not be paying for events that bring people to downtown Charlevoix and benefit non-member businesses. I'm glad they do, however, because what is good for businesses in Charlevoix is good for me and for the community. And I am happy, as a Downtown Development Authority member, to have some of the money I pay to that organization through taxes benefit businesses in the entire downtown, not just Bridge Street, even if the way that must happen is through a donation to the Chamber.

CHARLEVOIX THE MORE BEAUTIFUL

Editor:

I walked around Charlevoix today, and I am proud. I don't have my homestead residence here, but my heart, and a good share of my taxes, reside here full-time. The new marina is impressive and going to be beautiful as well as the new East Park. The new library, which elicits "wows" the first time you go in, is equally as impressive and beautiful. Cities 10 times the size of Charlevoix would be very proud to have facilities such as these two.

This feeling is in contrast to a visit just last month, when I was feeling down over the depressed look of Bridge Street and the torn up park. Our downtown stores' occupancy and mix, still have a ways to go, but what fun to have the addition of Zaccaro's Market, the new children's store, and Boseman's on M-66. Maybe we won't just be a beautiful, bedroom suburb of Petoskey, after all.

Standing on the new marina walkway, looking out over the new docks and boats, at our amazing Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix -- I think we need a new name, "Charlevoix the Even More Beautiful."

NEVER FORGOTTEN

Editor:

As I was reflecting over the years I've known Marina LaBlance and her wonderful, unselfish gift of music appreciation that she so lovingly gave to thousands of children and adults, I was caught breathless.

Words are not adequate nor do they express completely her love and devotion to her God-given talent. To put it simply and with all sincerity: M is for music, magic, marvelous; A is for admired, adored; R is for a radiant rainbow of rhythm; I is for inspiration, intellect; N is for non-stop, never missed a beat; A is for awesome.

Marina will never be forgotten.

'THANKS' TASTE SUPPORTERS

Editor:

The 4th Annual Taste of Charlevoix on June 16 was a big success again this year. There was a great turnout and ticket sales were steady the entire day, despite the change in the location. Several vendors sold out of food early or had to restock during the day. Everyone who attended had a great time, enjoying the wonderful food, entertainment and weather.

The Taste of Charlevoix committee would like to thank all of our participating vendors, the Chamber member businesses who donated their time or materials to the event, the City of Charlevoix and its staff, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and its staff and all of the volunteers who helped that day. Without all of you, this would not have been such a success. We look forward to next year's event and making it even more successful and enjoyable for our community in our newly remodeled East Park.

Hospice grief support program offered at Charlevoix Area Hospital

Losing a spouse, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than we can bear. Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, losing your job, moving, dealing with chronic illness or even losing a pet. Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of six weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from July 10 through Aug. 14 at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The grief support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and North Country Community Mental Health. The program is designed to help those grow through grief and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The facilitator for this program is Dr. Andrew Sahara. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

To pre-register, call the hospice office at (231) 582-8800. There is no charge for this program.

BE AWARE OF NORTH AMERICAN UNION

Editor:

In our free society we usually rely on the mainstream media to keep us informed as to important issues affecting our way of life. But there are issues we never hear about until it's too late to correct them and another bite is taken out of our freedoms.

One of those issues concerns the efforts now underway to combine the United States, Mexico and Canada in a North American Union similar to the European Union and combine the dollar and peso into one currency. Robert Bartley, the former editor of Wall Street Journal, wrote, "I think the nation-state is finished," and "NAFTA should evolve into something like the European Union, with open borders not only for goods and investment, but people."

Although not well known to the general public, the liberal and globalist Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) is the most powerful private group directing U.S. foreign policy today and the Council on Foreign Relations published a report that calls for the formation of a North American Union overseen by an Inter-Parliamentary Group with power over our elected members of Congress. Council on Foreign Relations' "Building a North American Community Report" advocates an integrated continental court system and developing a North American Border Pass with biometric identifiers so that Mexicans can have "full labor mobility." It also supports a Social Security Totalization Agreement that gives billions of dollars of our Social Security to illegal aliens and supports a de facto amnesty for millions of illegal aliens. More Mexicans would legally flee their low wage country for ours that would lead to a massive strain on America's health care, environment, transportation, prisons and schools.

I feel the public would overwhelmingly oppose this proposal, so the sponsors seek to make this happen incrementally. First is to repeal or ignore American immigration laws and border security and next is to blur the line between citizens and illegal aliens or as they are now called "undocumented workers." The North American Union goes far beyond the trade and security agreements we currently have with our neighbors and seeks cultural, political and eventually monetary integration of our three countries that would be a disaster for the United States. We must all contact our representatives in Congress and tell them to stop this unconstitutional attack on our freedoms before its too late.

New manager doesn't fear past politics

Straebel to assume city manager's role Sept. 1

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

This September Robert Straebel of Taos Ski Valley, N.M. will become Charlevoix's new city manager.

"I am ready to commit to Charlevoix for three years," Straebel said.

Though he currently resides in the Southwest, Michigan is not an unfamiliar state to him. Straebel was born and raised in Saginaw and is a graduate of Ferris State University in Big Rapids. His mother currently lives on the south tip of Torch Lake.

"She's very happy to hear I'm coming back to Michigan," Straebel said.

As for the departure of the previous city manager, he said he is not nervous about replacing Michael Wiesner.

"I am confident that I can come in there and work in a pleasurable and professional manner," Straebel said. "I've never been fired, I've had a great track record for the past 10 years."

Robert Straebel

His track record includes five years of municipal management in Hayden, Colo. and five years in Taos Ski Valley.

Hayden is a community in northwest Colorado about 30 miles from Steamboat Springs

"It's largely a bedroom community for residents," Straebel said. "We had a lot of big proposals for residential homes, commercial developments. I was very proactive in managing growth and establishing urban growth boundaries."

Taos Ski Valley, where he is currently village manager, is a resort skiing village in the Rocky Mountains.

"Being at 9,200 feet, we have a short construction season. Our winter begins in October," Straebel said. "During the summertime we are making large investments into infrastructure and improving aging infrastructure."

In addition to these accomplishments, Straebel is proud of his work with the Peace Corp. in Honduras, where he implemented a junior achievement program into a local public high school in one of the poorest areas in the country.

"It was a teaching tool to empower them to start their own business," Straebel said.

The students developed three companies that involved both the making and selling of products an oven mitt company, a wooden lamp company and a cookies and cake company.

"I'm confident that many of the students learned quite a bit about business practices and took the new education forward," Straebel said.

He said that the language and cultural differences were difficult for him in the first year or so, but soon he became acclimated to the community.

"Folks had such a positive and enriching life given the circumstances," Straebel said.

Straebel has accepted a three year contract with the city. In addition to his $79,000 salary and benefits package, the city has offered an additional $2,500 to help Straebel move his family from New Mexico, a 1,635 mile move.

He will assume his post on Sept. 1.

JUL 2007

Beware of traveling criminals offering paving

Consumer Alert for Traveling Criminals

Each year, traveling criminals come to northern Michigan to do hit-and-run paving work.

Homeowners and business owners are urged by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to be especially cautious when approached by people selling asphalt paving and sealing products. Traveling criminals were especially active in northern Michigan last year. They are expected to return in force during the spring, summer and fall.

Traveling criminals usually leave their customers with a driveway or parking area that will eventually reveal poor workmanship. Poor work is not always evident immediately. Problems may not appear for several weeks or months. The traveling criminal paver will be long-gone when the pavement begins to break up, making legal action difficult or impossible.

Traveling criminals traditionally have no real local business address. They are even known to use the name of a reputable local asphalt supplier in order to win customer confidence. They may use business cards and truck signs that appear legitimate. Addresses and telephone numbers are frequently those of only an answering service in another city.

Traveling criminals sell asphalt paving material door-to-door after having scouted neighborhoods for their best targets. Their sales pitch is designed to appeal to those who are especially susceptible to the offer of a so-called bargain. Their victims are often northern Michigan senior citizens.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is presently investigating several complaints of this nature. In one instance, a senior citizen in Charlevoix County paid $560 for an $88 job that turned out to be of inferior material and workmanship.

If suspicious of fraudulent activity, please contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office at (231) 547-4461.

The following issues were discussed during the Monday, July 2 meeting of the Charlevoix City Council:

Item: Northwest Academy request for support for grant

In brief: Northwest Academy school administrator Gary Stutzman requested a letter of support from city council so that the school may request a grant from the 2 percent funds that are available from the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa Indians. They are asking the Grand Traverse Band for $7,000 to help complete a stage area for the rock climbing wall they built. The total cost of the project is $12,000, of which the school will raise funds for a matching amount of $5,000. Northwest Academy is a charter school.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Venetian Festival staging update

In brief: Dan Barron, president of Venetian Festival Inc., the nonprofit that funds the annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival, presented the council with an update of Venetian event planning. The company plans to close off residential streets adjacent to Lake Michigan beach. Starting Wednesday, July 25, Park Avenue from State Street to Clinton Street will be closed to through traffic in the evenings, as well as Grant Street from Clinton to Lake Michigan beach. Access to these streets will be for local residents only. Parking on these streets will be available to local residents and festival participants such as musicians, food vendors and volunteers.

Item: Intergovernmental Agreement — enforcement of prohibited swimming/wading

In brief: The City of Charlevoix has enacted a Prohibited Swimming/Wading Areas Ordinance. The Charlevoix County Sheriff would like to enforce the ordinance. The intergovernmental agreement states that the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and Prosecuting Attorney may enforce the ordinance at the expense of the county and with the use of the county's employees and property.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Request to hire real estate appraiser for Michigan Tax Tribunal Case

In brief: Mark Faucher of Northern Michigan Real Estate Consultants has submitted a proposal for the appraisal of five commercial properties that are part of the Beacon Center Commons at 405 Bridge St. (the former site of Harbor Health and Fitness Club). The total fee for the appraisal reports is $13,000. The fee to do a two-year tax appeal is $3,500.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Designation of delegate to Municipal Employees Retirement System annual meeting

In brief: The City of Charlevoix needs to name a delegate and alternate to represent the city at the Municipal Employees Retirement System meeting in September. Staff is recommending the appointment of city treasurer and acting city manager Rick Brandi as delegate and fire chief Paul Ivan as alternate. In addition to the officer appointment by council, an employee delegate and alternate must be elected to represent Charlevoix. Judy Przybylski was elected employee delegate and Scott Blanchard was elected as alternate. In order to be a member of Municipal Employees Retirement System, an employee must work full-time and have been employed with the city for 10 years or longer.

Council action: Approved, unanimous to appoint Brandi as delegate and Ivan as alternate

These projects must meet requirements such as a maximum building ground coverage of 50 percent, an impervious (constructed) surface that does not exceed 70 percent, a maximum overall building height of 35 feet, a minimum landscaped ground coverage of 30 percent, a maximum habitable building story of three feet and a maximum storm water drainage that does not exceed what would have drained from the site in its natural state.

Council action: Approved, unanimous

Item: Ordinance to Amend Sections 5.5 - 5.12 and Section 5.200 of Chapter 51 of the City Code- Height Amendment

In brief: The amendment to section 5.5 specifies that turrets (small towers that project from the wall of a building, often seen in medieval or Victorian architecture) and similar architectural features do not exceed 5 percent of the total roof area and their height above a building roof does not exceed 15 percent of the building height. The amendment for the remaining sections define permitted building heights and allow for an alternative roof design to a gambrel roof (a traditional barn-type roof), which council believes would make for a more attractive building.

Health officials: 'No need to collect dead birds'

Now that West Nile Virus is well established in northwest Michigan, public health officials say there is no need to collect dead birds for testing.

Dead birds, especially crows and jays, can be reported as a way to monitor West Nile Virus activity. The easiest way to report a dead bird sighting is through the State of Michigan West Nile Virus Web site www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus. Anyone who finds a dead bird should wear rubber gloves to double wrap it in plastic bags and put it out for collection with other household trash, said Joshua Meyerson, medical director for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

"Now that we know West Nile Virus is here, and here to stay, our focus has turned from surveillance to prevention," Meyerson said. "A few easy precautions will help prevent people from becoming infected with West Nile Virus."

If outside from dusk to dawn when mosquitoes are most active, or during the day in an area where there are weeds, tall grass or bushes, people should wear protective clothing, such as long pants, long-sleeved shirts, and socks. Individuals should also consider using an insect repellent containing DEET according to the manufacturer's directions on the label.

Mosquitoes can enter homes through unscreened windows or doors or through broken screens so it is important that they have tight fitting screens without tears or holes.

"It's also important to drain all standing water in your yard," Meyerson said. "Be sure to empty water in mosquito breeding sites such as flower pots, bird baths, and pet bowls at least once or twice a week, and keep gutters unclogged."

West Nile Virus is a mosquito-borne virus that can cause encephalitis or meningitis. Humans can become infected with the West Nile Virus when they are bitten by a mosquito with the virus. Mosquitoes get the virus from infected birds. Humans cannot contract West Nile Virus directly from another person, animal or bird that has the disease.

Most people who are infected with West Nile Virus either have no symptoms at all or they experience mild illness such as fever, headache and body aches. Some people develop a mild rash or swollen lymph glands. In some individuals, particularly the elderly, West Nile Virus can cause serious disease that affects brain tissue. At its most serious, it can cause permanent neurological damage and can be fatal.

For more information about West Nile Virus, call the Michigan West Nile Virus Hotline at 800-668-0869 or visit www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus.

Charlevoix's first exchange students return

STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

In 1962, three teenagers from Europe arrived in Charlevoix to become the city's first foreign exchange students.

Nynke Bierma of Holland, Unne Kallmeyer of Germany and Pertti Salmela of Finland attended the newly-built Charlevoix High School (now the middle school) as part of the senior Class of '62.

Last Thursday, they were reunited with their Charlevoix acquaintances after 45 years, at the house of fellow classmate Tony Duerr, to reflect on a time in their life as Charlevoix students.

Each said that they felt welcomed by the school and their host families, and were readily introduced to American teenage life.

"There was a friendliness in the students, the way they accepted you," said Kallmeyer. "They took you along with all their activities."

Kallmeyer, 62, stayed with then mayor Pat Hawley and his wife, Elsa, at 300 Dixon Avenue, while he attended school.

"There was an openness, that helped me a lot afterwards," he said. "I was at Unilever where a certain internationalism was accepted, that was something I gained here."

Salmela, 62, lived with Charles and Margaret Duerr at 209 Dixon Avenue and reunion organizer, Tony, was his host brother.

"Margaret was extremely helpful," Salmela said. "Tony, who I call my American brother, he was part of the studious atmosphere of the house and it helped me to stay in school. I became part of the honor's society."

Salmela said the emphasis on volunteering in Charlevoix inspired him to become a volunteer, working for both the YMCA and the International Red Cross.

"Volunteering was very visible, the Rotary, the Kiwanis," Salmela said. "The experience in Charlevoix gave me hunger to open myself to work in an international environment."

Salmela, who currently works for the International Red Cross, had just returned from the country of Georgia and will be moving on to Afghanistan when he leaves the United States.

Bierma, 64, didn't like school until she came to the United States, where students of all levels of ability attended the same high school and where academics were not the only emphasis.

"My greatest memory was being in music and band, I played the timpani drums and the cymbals," Bierma said. "If you were not so good at other things but you were good at sports or music, (you) were in a high status."

Bierma, a former flight attendant with Dutch airline KLM, lived at 300 Nettleton with Ralph and Dorothy McRae as the first of two exchange students to live with the McRaes.

For all three former foreign exchange students, one benefit of their Charlevoix experience that stays with them today, is the international perspective gained by studying abroad.

"We're all a bit more international," said Kallmeyer. "Pertti toured 15 countries, Nynke worked for KLM, I went to Unilever and moved on from there."

Kallmeyer, Salmela and Bierma all said there were classes available in the U.S. that were not available in the schools in their native countries that proved to be valuable to them.

For Kallmeyer, successful public speaking was learned when he enrolled in speech (also known as debate) class in Charlevoix.

"It gives you posture to argue before audiences," Kallmeyer said. He said typing was another valuable class.

Kallmeyer, Salmela and Bierma all said the driving class that was offered through the school proved to be useful.

They also remember teachers who influenced them.

"Mr. Coleman gave English literature, he had so much love for literature," Bierma said.

"Mr. Coleman was also my favorite," Salmela said.

Bierma was fond of Mr.

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Ratigan, the Spanish teacher and Kallmeyer liked Mrs. Martin, the speech teacher.

As students, Bierma said the three of them were often invited to speak at community forums hosted by organizations like the Lions' Club.

"They always asked Pertti (about) the connections of Russia and Finland," Bierma said. "Finland struggled so much to come out of Russia."

"Unne always talked about the 'Wirtschaftwunder,' the economic boom in Germany in such a short time, 17 years after the war," she said.

"I talked a lot about farmers, about farming in Holland," Bierma said.

The three of them were very grateful to be reunited.

"Tony brought us back together, it's to his credit we are here," Kallmeyer said.

Salmela said Charlevoix has grown since 1962 but it still has the same feel.

"The high standard construction has changed," said Salmela, motioning to the waterfront, "but the feeling is the same. It's one of the most beautiful places."

Lakeshore Enterprises improves boats, homes

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

When Gary Abbott moved to Charlevoix from Grand Blanc two years ago, he decided to turn his building hobby into Lakeshore Enterprises, a construction business in Norwood Township.

"I've built several homes. I always enjoyed doing that," Abbott said. "This is a departure from a previous career in sales."

Through his business, Abbott offers a unique set of skills, being able to perform electrical, carpentry, mechanical, plumbing and sheet metal work.

Jobs for his customers often include woodwork, such as converting a tiled set of steps into oak hardwood to match the adjacent floor.

"She had a nice wooden floor, so I thought we could match the look of that and have a uniform look," Abbott said.

When it comes to the restoration of boats, Abbott takes an engineer's approach.

"I take everything apart and put it back together," he said.

One example is his 1962 Chris Craft Sea Skiff that he named "Class of '62."

"I had a picture of what I wanted to have," Abbott said.

Knowing the model had an interior of mahogany, he took all the planks, stripped them down and refurbished them. He removed the windshield and lined the hull in mahogany to match the interior.

From the time Abbott started the restoration until the boat was in the water was 10 months.

Other projects he has worked on include building screened-in porches, fireplaces and mantel pieces and renovating kitchens.

In the 1970s and 1980s Abbott owned a construction company called Abbott Peterson Contracting, but he is no longer interested in having employees and enjoys working for himself.

"I pride myself in being dependable, on time and reliable," Abbott said.

Lakeshore Enterprises is located at 4791 Lakeshore Drive in Norwood and is open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week.

Tips for avoiding, treating swimmers' itch

While water quality is generally very good at northern Michigan lakes, the local health department wants to remind beach goers to protect themselves against contracting swimmers' itch.

WHAT IS SWIMMERS' ITCH?

Swimmers' itch is caused by a naturally occurring parasite that is carried from lake to lake by droppings from ducks, geese or other waterfowl. The organisms then move into snails where they mature, eventually coming out to re-infect more waterfowl.

Joshua Meyerson, MD, medical director of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties, explained that when human swimmers leave the water, any parasites on their skin may burrow into the skin in an effort to survive. He said the parasites die quickly, but they can trigger an irritating rash.

"Your body reacts to the parasite by forming itchy, red bumps. Swimmers' itch isn't contagious, but it can be very uncomfortable," he added.

TIPS TO REDUCE SWIMMERS' ITCH

Briskly dry off with a towel as soon as you come out of the water, including the area under swimsuits, and shower immediately after swimming if facilities are available.

Not everyone who is exposed to the parasite will necessarily develop swimmers' itch.

"Repeated exposure increases sensitivity to the parasite and increases the likelihood of swimmers' itch," Meyerson said.

He said children are often infected with swimmers' itch since they typically wade in and out of shallow water where the organism is predominately found and play on the beach as water evaporates on their skin.

ming or wading in infested water, people may experience tingling, burning or itchy skin. Or, symptoms may take up to a week to appear. A small, reddened bump will develop at the entrance site of each parasite, causing periods of itching that can last for several days.

TREATMENT

Using calamine lotion, an antihistamine such as Benadryl or corticosteroid cream, cool compresses, baths with baking soda or colloidal oatmeal, such as Aveeno, may control itching.

"The most important thing to do if you do contract swimmers' itch is to try not to scratch. Scratching may cause the rash to become infected. If itching is severe your health care provider may prescribe lotion or cream to lessen your symptoms," Meyerson said.

Most cases of swimmers itch do not require medical attention. Contact your health care provider when the diagnosis is unclear, complications such as infection are present, or the reaction is intolerable.

Four embark on the quest for the crown

BY GINA ATTEE
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Four women are competing to win the prestigious Miss Charlevoix crown for 2007.

Diana Phillips, who has been the competition coordinator for the past 12 years, said the Charlevoix Venetian Festival pageant is a chance for the women to be ambassadors of our town.

"This is my gift to the young women of this town. They can make a difference." she said.

Candidates for Miss Charlevoix must be 16 to 22 years old, have a primary residence in Charlevoix or have graduated from the Charlevoix School District, be single, never have been married and have no children.

The candidates for this year's crown are Sasha Spencley, Kim Way, Sarah Klooster and Ariel Ramsey.

Spencley, 18, is the daughter of Patti and Dean Spencley and a member of the Charlevoix High School class of 2007. She plans to attend Michigan State University in the fall to study pediatric medicine.

Spencley is working at Charlevoix Wear and Grey Gables this summer, but she said she will spend her free time enjoying "anything outdoors." Though she finds conversation easy, Spencley said the most challenging part of the competition will be staying comfortable in front of the judges.

Who? Candidates for Miss Charlevoix 2007: Sasha Spencley, Kim Way, Sarah Klooster and Ariel Ramsey.
What? Queen's coronation

Spencley's involvement in the competition.

Kim Way, the first runner-up for Miss Charlevoix 2006, is the 18-year-old daughter of Kris and Barney Way and the sister of Miss Charlevoix 2005, Kari Way. She said she enjoys the whole experience and that she has always aspired to be Miss Charlevoix.

"I didn't want to stop halfway there," she said.

Like Spencley, Way graduated from Charlevoix High School this spring. She will attend Grand Valley State University in the fall, where she will study business. Way's summer plans include working at Dry Harbour Marine, who will sponsor her, and spending time with friends and family.

Sarah Klooster, the 17-year-old daughter of Bud and Vinnie Klooster, will be a senior at Charlevoix High School in the fall. She enjoys playing piccolo for Charlevoix High School bands and is an active member of the Community Reformed Church youth group and praise team.

Klooster said the speeches will be the hardest part of the competition for her because she has not given a speech since third-grade. Her personable attitude, she said, will make the interviews a breeze.

Klooster is working at Celeste Murdick's Fudge and is sponsored by the Work N' Play Shop of Atwood. After her graduation in 2008, Klooster plans to become involved with the Young Americans in Southern California.

Ariel Ramsey, 16, is the daughter of Mary and Keith Ramsey. She will be a senior at Charlevoix High School in the fall, where she will remain active in the basketball program. Ramsey also participates in travel soccer.

Ramsey said she hopes to attend a university and head into the nursing field after she graduates in 2008. Her summer plans include working as a waitress at the Belvedere Golf Club and Casino as well as working at Andy's party store.

Ramsey said the most challenging part of the competition will be standing out from the other girls.

"They're extremely sweet," she said. The parades, she added, will be a lot of fun.

Carlson's Home Improvements is sponsoring Ramsey.

Charlevoix's Venetian Queen will be crowned at 7 p.m. on Friday, July 27 at Lake Michigan Beach. Awards for Miss Congeniality and Scholastic Achievement will also be presented.

Zita Anderson, the 2006 Venetian Queen said the best part about being queen is that she has had the chance to meet a lot of people.

"People just come up to me when I have my crown on," she said.

Among other queen duties, Anderson has helped to organize the court and run this year's competition.

The four competitors for Miss Charlevoix will spend a period of 13 weeks together, attending parades and preparing an informative speech and a college-level essay.

The competition commences during Venetian week with two days of interviews and speeches, which are moderated by three judges from outside of Charlevoix.

The queen will receive an honorary scholarship and will represent Charlevoix at various parades and events throughout the state. On July 28, Miss Charlevoix 2007 and her court will ride in the Venetian Festival Street Parade and the Grand Electric Boat Parade.

If you would like to donate to the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen Scholarship Fund, call Diana Phillips at (231) 330-1402 or the Venetian Festival office at (231) 547-9950.

United Way seeks volunteers

The Board of Directors of Char-Em United Way met recently to begin a long-range planning process. With many ambitious plans on the table, the group realized that it needs more expertise and assistance to increase United Way's capacity to fulfill its mission of improving the lives of people in Charlevoix and Emmet counties by working together to share community resources.

"We are reaching out to the many people who have retired to our area, as well as those who have retired within our community," said Martha Lancaster, executive director of Char-Em United Way. "We hope to involve them in increasing United Way's impact on human service needs."

Many of those who have retired to our area from larger cities were United Way donors, volunteers or loaned executives in their home communities. They have experience that will be valuable to us as we expand our focus and impact," continued Lancaster. "We also hope to re-engage those who supported United Way while they were working for local schools or corporations but who haven't been involved since they retired."

Possible roles for volunteers with United Way include helping with the annual campaign, serving on the Board of Directors or various committees, or providing technical expertise or hands-on help in a variety of ways.

Char-Em United Way conducts work site and other fundraising campaigns to raise funds to support many local health and human service agencies. It also serves on the two-county Human Services Coordinating Body and its Homeless Continuum of Care work group. United Way coordinates the Emergency Food and Shelter program which funds local shelters and food pantries and is a sponsor of the annual Day of Caring.

For more information or to volunteer, contact Char-Em United Way at (231) 487-1006.

Boulder Park Terrace receives Michigan Award of Excellence

Boulder Park Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Center has received the Michigan Peer Review Organization's prestigious 2006 Michigan Award of Excellence.

This marks the first year that Michigan Peer Review Organization — a leader in health care quality improvement — has honored nursing homes statewide for actively improving care in the nursing home setting.

"MPRO is privileged to recognize nursing homes such as Boulder Park Terrace that are embracing quality improvement initiatives," said Debra Moss, president and CEO of Michigan Peer Review Organization. "The Michigan Award of Excellence is a seal of quality that denotes a commitment to excellence and the delivery of high quality care."

Boulder Park received the accolade for working to improve the quality and safety of care in areas such as high-risk pressure ulcer care and a physical restraint-free environment.

In addition, the center's improvement in pain management has lead to successful outcomes for recovery of rehabilitation patients.

Executive director Deb Saur-MacKenzie said the center improved care by creating a team using proven, evidence based practices.

"Our staff worked as a team to set targets and develop strategies to accelerate care to achieve notable improvement in resident care and satisfaction," Saur-MacKenzie said.

She added, "Together, we are demonstrating that Boulder Park Terrace is continuously working to improve the care we deliver to our residents. Our efforts have been enhanced through our collaborations with MPRO and we are proud to be a recipient of this distinguished honor."

Venetian Games packed events lineup

While East Park renovations have forced some changes in this year's Venetian plans, there won't be much difference in the schedule of the popular Venetian Games.

"We have had to cancel the East Park croquet tournaments, but are pleased to announce an additional event has been added. Elite volleyball games featuring top players will be held at Lake Michigan Beach. Meanwhile, all the event managers have continued their normal planning and no real problems are anticipated in the dozen sporting events that make up the games schedule," said Dean Davenport, Venetian Games commissioner.

The nearly dozen events kick off with the 3 on 3 basketball all day on Sunday, July 22 at Michigan Beach. Boys, girls and adult teams are included. The second basketball event is the Detroit Pistons/Shock clinic starting at 9 a.m. on Friday, July 27 at Charlevoix Middle School. Those attending can see, touch and have their picture taken with the championship trophies won recently by both the Pistons and Shock professional teams.

The adult golf tournament, the Carey Cup, named for longtime Charlevoix Golf Club course manager Keith Carey, has seen qualifying rounds being played, and now have brackets set for women, men and senior flights. The finals are tentatively set for Tuesday, July 24. The youth version of the Carey Cup is limited to those junior golfers enrolled in the Charlevoix County program and the tournaments will take place on July 25 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

The largest event for participants is the Jeff Drenth Memorial Road Race scheduled for 8 a.m. Saturday, July 28. Starting point is at Mt. Me-Sauba and includes 10k, 5k and 1 mile runs for all ages.

The Charlevoix Yacht Club holds their Venetian Sailing Regatta the evening of Wednesday, July 25. The regatta may be viewed starting at 6:30 p.m. from various vantage points along Lake Charlevoix.

The soccer tournament has drawn teams of all ages and gets under way Tuesday, July 24 at Shanahan Field. This popular event is now drawing teams from communities around northern Michigan.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool hosts the Venetian Swim Championships on Wednesday July 25. Participants must register at the pool 24 hours prior to the event.

The Venetian tennis tournament allows over 50 male adults and 25 women to enjoy their passion with singles, doubles and mixed doubles brackets. There is also a youth and high school age tournament planned with all events scheduled for the courts adjacent to Stroud Hall off Old Orchard Road. Finals are tentatively scheduled for Thursday, July 26.

The Wednesday, July 25 evening volleyball tournament is a coed event with teams playing with a maximum of six players, equally divided between men and women. Teams need only to show up by 6 p.m. at Ferry Beach.

A new event, the Venetian Beach Volleyball Invitational is scheduled for Saturday, July 28 at courts alongside the pier at Lake Michigan Beach. This event, for the above novice players, is scheduled to allow spectators and participants to enjoy high level volleyball and is hoped to grow to become an annual summer event.

The Venetian games allow local and returning former residents the opportunity to compete and/or watch the various events which have become a fixture of the Venetian celebration.

Among the myriad Venetian Games is the Charlevoix Yacht Club's Venetian Sailing Regatta the evening of Wednesday, July 25. The regatta may be viewed starting at 6:30 p.m. from various vantage points along Lake Charlevoix.

(Above) For the third time in three years, Chelsea Biddick, 16, of Charlevoix donated her locks to Locks of Love. Her first cut was 13 inches, the second was 10 inches and the most recent was 13 inches for a total of three-feet of hair. (Below) All Biddick's cuts were done at J. Marie's Salon and Beyond in Charlevoix. Locks of Love is a public non-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children under 18 suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis. Biddick's contributions were made in honor of her mother Michelle Rick-Biddick conquering breast cancer.

Boss calls off recall

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Ike Boss

One day before the Charlevoix County Election Commission was to meet to verify petition language, the recall drive against four Charlevoix Public School board members was called off.

Originally wrought on June 14 by recall architect Ike Boss due to displeasure over personnel decisions and the prohibition of public comment during a June 13 board meeting, the recall was rescinded on July 10. Though a complaint about the lack of comment has been forwarded to the state police for investigation.

"I'm pulling the recall on the board members because I'm happy with how they're handling things," Boss said.

Originally angered by the board's decision to hire an assistant principal/athletic director in the face of several school staff members being let go due to budget issues, Boss changed his mind when the board decided to post the jobs as separate assistant principal and athletic director jobs, a move which could save the district nearly $22,000.

While the positions could eventually be filled by two different people, Charlevoix Public Schools business manager Shawn Biddle cautioned that is only one possible result.

"They could be combined or

Bishop's space adventure

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix resident Carlton Bishop, 56, recently returned from astronaut space training at the U.S. Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Ala., also known as Space Camp.

After attending camp at the center last year, Bishop was one of only 35 teachers from around the country who applied and were selected to attend a more advanced space training that included robotics, scuba diving, math and science workshops and three simulated space missions.

"On one mission, I was mission specialist and simulated repairing a satellite," Bishop said. "It was very exciting, having the opportunity to do many things regular civilians won't be able to do."

Thanks to his scuba training at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Bishop was the only person in his group that was also a certified diver, and was able to spend a significant amount of time on zero-gravity simulation projects.

Zero-gravity simulation training consists of putting on scuba gear and immersing in a 25-foot tank of water with simulated space parts.

"They had different parts you had to assemble and build, you had to move simulated satellites," Bishop said. "It's not total non-gravity but it's as close as you can get on earth."

Bishop's program is part of the Honeywell Educators at Space Academy program designed to provide teachers with new and innovative educational techniques in science and math.

Bishop, a fifth-grade teacher at Sheridan Elementary School in Petoskey, spent six nights at a dormitory on the campus of the University of Alabama, Huntsville and traveled to the facility every day.

School board action prompts recall reversal split, we don't really know," she said. "Our thought was we posted it to be a split position where there would be a part-time athletic director and a part-time assistant principal who would not be the same person, but the board had approved it as one position (on June 13)."

The four board members that voted in favor of hiring a combination assistant high school principal and athletic director during the June 13 meeting are John McLean, Dean Spencley, Christine Michaud and Diane Kilkenny. They were the target of the recall.

According to chief-deputy Charlevoix County Clerk, Cherie Browe, the only legal steps Boss needed to take to end the recall drive was to put his thoughts in writing.

"To county election commission. I would like to cancel my recall request on the four Charlevoix Public School Board members," Boss stated in a letter sent to Browe's office.

McLean, the newly named president of the school board, said he is relieved at Boss' decision.

"I think it's awesome. I think it's nice he's giving us a chance to get things on track," McLean said. "I was concerned about the recall, but the day-to-day activities continued."

Spencley said he too is glad the ordeal is over, but isn't sure why Boss ended the recall drive.

"Maybe Ike (Boss) is willing to see what the new board can do," he said. "I don't know if he changed his mind thinking we made a good decision or not, but I know we have a lot of hard decisions to make in the future and I hope we will all work together."

He added, "This isn't just a school board, this is a community that has to work together. Any decision we make isn't made lightly, it's made with a lot of care and compromise."

Spencley said threats of recall will have no affect on how he makes decisions in the future.

"I make decisions based on the information given to me and based on information I find," he said.

Kilkenny echoed the sentiments of relief by her fellow board members and added, "I hope everybody is happy. He (Boss) had the right to do that (recall the board members) and it's the same with his deciding to withdraw. It was his choice to do so."

Michaud did not return calls by press time.

So far, there have been no new applications for the assistant principal's position and none for the athletic director's position, the positions over which the contention originated.

"We're trying to figure out what makes the most sense and what the best option is," Biddle said. "We're trying to move forward as quickly as possible, but not so quickly that we don't have the best person in those two positions."

Bishop to bring space camp experience to his classroom

SPACE

"The days were quite long," Bishop said. "Breakfast was at seven and I came back at nine at night."

This year he was able to meet former NASA astronaut, Story Musgrave. Musgrave led Bishop's group through the rocket-landing that took place in California as the teachers watched it on television from the space center in Huntsville. The group had traveled to the Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla. to see the ship enter earth, but the landing was postponed.

Since attending space camp last year, Bishop has led an after-school Rocket Club for fifth graders based on the Estes rocket-building class he had taken.

"We used a basic gnome rocket kit that you must assemble," Bishop said.

He said the gnome rocket is like a firework with an actual gunpowder motor that is set off with an electrical charge.

"The parachute flies back to earth," Bishop said.

Through writing assignments, Bishop's students had also created a fictitious planet and travel brochures inviting people to their planet.

DDA must stop the cycle, demand accountability

EDITORIAL

We feel stuck in a bad sequel to Groundhog's Day.

Since 2005, during the month of June Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority has been presented with a proposal from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for funding, authority members have voiced their apprehension over handing over the cash and in the end acquiesce.

The only difference this year is before signing the $25,000 check, $13,000 of which has in the past been earmarked for a downtown coordinator's pay, they hired a director, Keith Carey for $42,800. The downtown coordinator no longer exists.

The first $7,000 approved in May was earmarked for concerts in the park series and farmers market and Taste of Charlevoix advertising. Before approval the Downtown Development Authority asked for a report detailing expenditures.

But when they came back for another $18,000 just a month later, the funds weren't designated and the motion to approve the funds didn't specify submission of a detailed expense report.

Where's the accountability?

The city has handed over the chamber's new Mason Street home leasing the building to this private group for $1 a year. And now forks over $25,000 (tax dollars) with no real idea of where the bulk of that cash is being spent.

Everyone is squawking about open storefronts. Well store owners pay big bucks to be in the Downtown Development Authority district and that premium is passed along to renters who have to make it work not just during our summer tourist frenzy — they have to pay the bills all year.

We feel Downtown Development Authority district property owners would be better served and funds would be better spent on recruitment of new tenants or paying off the bond for East Park renovations.

The last time we editorialized on this subject we urged the Downtown Development Authority not to let another $25,000 a year and free real estate slip away without concrete answers. They don't seem to be hearing us; maybe it's time for those filling the Downtown Development Authority's coffers to stand up and speak. We said it before and we'll say it again, the time to follow the paper trail and quantify results is now.

Choices are challenging

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Sometimes life throws us a curve ball and we're not sure whether to hit it out of the park or hunt.

It's amazing how many times during a given day that we have to think on our feet as we are given free will to make numerous decisions throughout the day. What we decide to do in any situation may render us with anger, happiness, contentment or frustration. We face situations daily that require sub-conscious and conscious thought and sometimes we'd like someone else to take over for awhile so we can take a back seat and not the feel the heat for what happens next.

I watch in fascination the methods individuals use to think out what their plans will be and how they arrive at their choice. Often we are moved to action by something occurring that affects us personally or we are inspired by someone else's actions. Our choices may be as simple as deciding what to eat or as arduous as deciding whether or not to seek out a new job. Thoughtful reflection, writing out the pros and cons of a situation or talking with a close friend or family member usually brings about a decision you can live with.

For me it usually takes a good hit to the head (figuratively speaking) when making decisions. I decided to retire early after a hospitalization gave me time to pause and think about what was really important in my life. Now as I reflect on that decision I find it a good one as my life takes new turns each day and I can hit the curve ball out of the park.

The nice thing about decisions and choices is we can weigh them like produce in a local grocery store. For some occasions we can even change our mind midstream without too many repercussions. Our decision can affect individuals other than ourselves so our choice we make can be influential as well. The process that leads to our decision yields a good work out for the cerebrum and goodness knows that part of my body definitely needs a work out.

Whether you're guiding your child to assist them with their future class choices or career moves, making the decision to keep or change jobs or deciding whether you should get that health check up you've been putting off — all are up for discussion and given time and insight the right choice is usually made. What's even more interesting about free will and choice is we often take it for granted. Living in another part of the world this topic might be nonexistent.

I'm at that juncture in my life where I need to consult more with others as my brain gets a little more fuddled and never ever do I make a decision before my morning caffeine intake and hormone replacement therapy. I can relate with J.K. Rowling when she included in the text of "Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets," "It is our choices…that show what we truly are, far more than our abilities." I raise my cup of java to you. Here's to good choices in making your decisions today.

DRYING THE TEARS

Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to the owners of Charlevoix's Dairy Queen.

On Friday July 13, I attended DQ with my wife and kids. Upon getting her ice cream, my daughter was walking back to our vehicle when she, due to not watching where she was going, managed to trip on one of the parking blocks in the DQ parking lot. The owner's wife witnessed this and came running to my side while I was attending to my daughter's injuries which consisted of road rash on her hands, elbow and knee. The owner's wife then proceeded to bring me cold wet cloths to assist in cleaning up my daughter's wounds, and at no extra cost, replaced her ice cream which was did a great deal in helping to alleviate the tears my daughter was having.

It is a very pleasing feeling to know the DQ owners and employees were so caring and helpful with the situation. My daughter wishes to add in, "Thank you so much Dairy Queen owners for giving me new ice cream and a cloth to

A PERSPECTIVE ON THE OIL SUPPLY

Editor:

Petroleum is necessary for food, fuel and fiber, regardless of high cost subsidized alternate fuels.

Americans (who consume 25 percent of world's daily oil supply) purchased less efficient vehicles after oil prices fell from $30 to $10 per barrel in the 1980s. This led to our dependence on imported oil nearing 67 percent of demand.

History suggests that Americans should reduce foreign oil imports by 20 percent (adding two million barrels per day to world supply). This is achievable through conservation, alternate fuels, adding to domestic reserve supplies and building refineries away from the current concentration in the gulf area.

We have untapped local supply adequate for reasonable energy independence. Mother Earth is continuously cooking more oil and natural gas.

Independent exploration companies (without refineries), who drill 80 percent of our wells, are working to add to our nation's supplies. Skilled and environmentally sensitive exploration managers benefit from new technologies. They accept the price of oil determined daily by the New York Commodity Exchange.

Benefits of a local supply are national security, reducing balance of trade deficit, large numbers of skilled Americans employed, tens of millions in royalties paid to mineral owners and Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund annually, and relatively low energy prices.

THE WINNS ARE WINNERS

Editor:

I had a fun opportunity the other day to go to the opening ceremonies for our new docks here in Charlevoix on Round Lake. I particularly enjoyed seeing John Winn drive his beautiful Van Dam boat to our new marina and to be the first boat to be tied up there. Nothing could be more appropriate than to have John be the first one to use the facility that he and his wife made possible for our community. Whether you are a boater, or you are part of this city that you call home, this new dock facility is a shining star for all of us. If you can call a dock facility pretty, ours is the prettiest.

I have to tell you I was a nay sayer on the project some four years ago. I thought it would be too obtrusive to the lake and its surroundings, but I can tell you I was 100 percent wrong. When I brought my boat around to have dinner downtown last week, almost every slip was filled.

I don't understand how this little community, its leadership, and its citizens always seem to get it right. They always hit the ball out of the park. Our new outstanding library that just takes your breath away; the new high school with its one of a kind basketball court, its performing arts center, and best of all its huge campus. The school is more than an outstanding educational facility for the future generations who live here in Charlevoix; our wonderful community pool; and now our new magnificent yacht basin. As far as I am concerned, no one could have gotten all of these projects so right for us, that is, except for the leadership of this town and its citizens.

So, thank you Winns for making this new dock project such a success for all of us. Without your effort it would have never happened.

I humbly suggest that we name the facility after the Winns with a large Lake Michigan rock, and a brass plaque on it, giving the history and specifications of the project as well as thanking the Winns and the community for making it possible.

Karen and I look forward to donating the funds needed for the monument.

BEWARE OF JURY DUTY SCAM

Editor:

Whenever we hear or read about our fellow citizens being victims of a scam, it usually concerns the weak, the sick or the old in our society. But now the crooks are targeting all of us, and especially the patriotic, the civic minded and the law- abiding citizens among us.

Most of us take a summons for jury duty seriously, but often people skip out on their civic duty, and now a new kind of scam has surfaced and this is how it works. The caller claims to be a jury coordinator and tells you that you failed to appear for jury duty and an arrest warrant was going to be served on you. When you protest that you never received a summons for jury duty, the scammer asks you for your Social Security number and date of birth so that he or she can verify the information and cancel the arrest warrant. If you give out any of this information, your identity was just stolen. This scam has been reported in 11 states so far and is particularly insidious because they use intimidation over the phone to try to bully people into giving their personal information by pretending they're with the court system.

A good rule of thumb is to never give out personal information of any kind over the phone or Internet and to ask that the caller mail you the a written request for the information so that you can check it out before responding. As always, believe nothing you read or are told until you check it out for yourself and find it to be true. The FBI and federal court system have issued nationwide alerts on their Web sites, warning citizens about this fraud. Go to http://www.snopes.com/crime/fraud/juryduty.asp or http://www.fbi.gov/pressrel/pressrel05/092805.htm.

We are only vulnerable when we fail to be vigilant, are uninformed or refuse to be aware of the current events that affect our personal lives.

Hogwarts comes to Charlevoix

At 10 p.m. on Friday, July 20 the Charlevoix Public Library is turning itself into Hogwarts in anticipation of the seventh and last book in the Harry Potter series.

The Harry Potter books are JK Rowling's series about a young wizard, Harry Potter, who attempts to overpower the most evil of all wizards, Lord Voldemort. After much success, the series is coming to a final and much anticipated conclusion.

Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows is promised to be in fans' hands on Saturday, July 21, so the library is turning itself into Hogwarts on Friday, July 20 and inviting one and all to join the fun. The party starts at 10 p.m. and goes until midnight when the book will be available to check out or purchase from local bookstores.

The Bridge Street Book Shop and Up North Kids will both be on hand at the library pre-selling books throughout the party. The books are not to be seen until 12:01 a.m. Saturday morning when all pre-sold books will be available to pick up and library books available to check out.

"Harry Potter has encouraged a love of reading in more children than any other character," said Val Meyerson, director of the library. "It just seemed appropriate to celebrate this amazing phenomenon in the most fun and celebratory way we could. So, the library is going all out and bringing Hogwarts to town."

The Friends of the Library are generously supporting this fun-filled evening by donating the funds to purchase costumes and crafts. All the Hogwarts teachers will be present, including Dumbledore, McGonogall, Hagrid, Snape, Mad Eye Mooney and Trelawny. All party attendees are invited to come dressed as their favorite character.

At 10 p.m., Potter fans of all ages will be invited to the main doors at the library to crash through platform 9 to enter Hogwarts. Each child that makes it through the platform will earn a piece of Gringots Gold and can then visit the sorting hat to be sorted, or begin attending classes. There are seven different classes, with an OWL certificate awarded upon completion of each one. OWL certificates can be turned in at Gringots for a piece of Gringots gold which can then be spent at Diagon Alley. While visiting Hogwarts don't forget to look for Moaning Myrtle and enjoy tastes of wizard food and drinks.

There will also be a drawing to win a copy of Deathly Hallows, a fireball broomstick or a golden snitch.

For more information about this or other library programs, contact the library at (231) 547-2651.

Volunteers needed to build nature preserve boardwalk

Who? The Little Traverse Conservancy and the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians

What? A boardwalk construction project that will connect two adjacent nature preserves, Susan Creek Nature Preserve and Taimi Hoag Nature Preserve

When? July 24

Where? Volunteers are asked to meet at the entrance to the Susan Creek Nature Preserve off U.S. 31 near Big Rock Point.

Interested in putting in a little hard work to benefit local hiking trails?

The Little Traverse Conservancy is working in partnership with the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians to complete a trail system that will connect two adjacent nature preserves.

The Little Traverse Conservancy's 223-acre Susan Creek Nature Preserve is situated directly next to the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indian's 55-acre Taimi Hoag Nature Preserve. Together, the properties protect more than 1.5 miles of scenic U.S. 31 frontage as well as more than a mile of Susan Creek, a major tributary to Little Traverse Bay. Currently, approximately 1 mile of trails exist on the Susan Creek Preserve. The new segment of trail will add approximately half a mile.

The construction project will take place all day on Tuesday, July 24. Volunteers are asked to meet at the entrance to the Susan Creek Nature Preserve off U.S. 31 near Big Rock Point.

The bulk of the work will be hauling in lumber to be used for trail construction. For more information or to volunteer, contact the Little Traverse Conservancy at (231) 347-0991.

Oldies radio station 107.5 with Michael O'Shea will be broadcasting hits from the 1950s and 1960s from the restaurant.

Saturday's car show in downtown Charlevoix will be honoring the 75th anniversary of the 1932 Ford Coupes and Roadsters. Registration begins at 9 a.m., followed by raffles, contests and family entertainment from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Also at 3 p.m., the club will be hosting an auction to benefit Camp Quality, a camp for terminally ill children that takes place every year at Camp Daggett.

Awards for those who choose to show off their own retro vehicle will take place at 4 p.m. with first, second and third place prizes being given as well as a $500 grand prize drawing.

Street Legends Classic Car Club meets at 6:30 p.m. every fourth Thursday of the month at the Charlevoix Senior Center. Meetings begin with a potluck supper and during the summer months, club members cruise to the Dairy Queen from 7 to 9 p.m. after the meeting. Moms and Tots grant

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation awarded a $3,000 grant to the Moms and Tots Center in Ellsworth for the purchase of car seats and cribs for Charlevoix County clients who are unable to afford them. The grant was awarded to help address the foundation's concern for the safety of children. The check was presented recently by Maureen Radke, program officer for the foundation (right) to Carole Broadwick, director of the center (left). Moms and Tots Center is a Christian non-denominational social service agency assisting with the needs of pregnant young women and young mothers from southern Charlevoix and northern Antrim counties. Senior services surveys arrive this week

What? A senior services assessment survey is being distributed.

When? Surveys will be mailed this week and 'Your Senior Survey Enclosed' will be marked on the envelope. Surveys should be returned by July 27 and will take about 10 minutes to complete.

Why? To determine the awareness, usefulness and quality of existing programs and services as perceived by seniors and identify gaps in services that need to be addressed with expanded or new services and programs

(Above, from left:) Charlevoix County Commission on Aging members Joan Blanchard and Margo Johnson, along with COA director Sue Bergmann, report to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners on the commission on aging's services. A new survey is being circulated among the elderly so the COA may determine how many people are being served and what adjustments to programs might need to be made.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging (COA) is urging anyone who receives a senior services assessment survey to complete and return it as soon as possible.

Surveys will be mailed the week of July 16 and 'Your Senior Survey Enclosed' will be marked on the envelope. Surveys should be returned by July 27 and will take about 10 minutes to complete.

Early this year the Commission on Aging announced that an assessment would be conducted to determine current and future needs of Charlevoix County seniors. The assessment is being conducted by outside, independent consultants who are collecting information from Commission on Aging service providers and community focus groups. The anonymous survey of randomly selected residents, including caregivers, over 50 years of age is the last stage of data collection.

The Commission on Aging has launched this effort to update the information gathered in 2000 in support of the senior millage.

Specifically, the Commission on Aging aims to determine the awareness, usefulness and quality of existing programs and services as perceived by seniors and identify gaps in services that need to be addressed with expanded or new services and programs.

The outside consultants will conduct the analysis of all information collected and will recommend to the Commission on Aging specific services and programs to meet any shortfalls. All survey information will be kept confidential and reported to the Commission on Aging in a way that protects the anonymity of anyone who contributes information for the assessment. Results are expected to be complete by Sept. 30 and will be available to the public after a presentation to the Charlevoix County Commissioners.

Boats behaving in the narrows

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Things are moving much slower in the slimmest seven-eighths of a mile along the south arm of Lake Charlevoix, and that is how residents like it.

Following months of attempts to cajole government officials to take responsibility for the four no wake buoys in the Ironton Narrows, a private entity stepped up on June 15.

"The Landings Restaurant bought them from us for $4," said Lake Charlevoix Association president Samuel Williamson.

Tom Sheridan, owner of the Landings Restaurant on the narrows said he could await action no longer.

"I couldn't put up with the bureaucracy of everyone who was worried about the liability and everyone who was denying who was in charge," Sheridan said. "You have government agencies in charge and yet everyone is ducking. No one wants to take charge — that's why you have insurance."

With a fueling station, dock, restaurant and more in the narrows, Sheridan said, it is obviously a no-wake situation.

"To make a point and to get people to put pressure on local government agencies, the (Lake Charlevoix Association) didn't put the buoys in. I can't have that," Sheridan said. "The beginning of this year was terrible. The sheriff deputies had a hard time enforcing it (no-wake zone) because the buoys didn't go in until just recently. It was just horrible."

He added, "I'd rather pay the bill and know as long as I'm in control they (the buoys) are going to come in and out."

The buoys, which are generally placed in the water on May 1 were not installed until mid-June.

Private donors, some of whom are residents of the narrows, paid for the $2,599.82 steel buoys which will likely require annual liability insurance and maintenance of nearly $1,850.

According to the contract between the Lake Charlevoix Association and the Landings Restaurant, the Landings is now responsible for any and all upkeep and liability pertaining to the buoys which will only be used as determined by the Department of Natural Resources — for a no-wake zone.

While narrows resident Paul Witting said finding the money for the buoys was an issue, the bigger problem was finding someone to take legal responsibility for them.

"We tried to get Eveline Township, we tried to get Charlevoix County, we tried to get the Sheriff's Department to take ownership and no one would," he said. "Finally, the Landings Restaurant was one of the primary entities that needed the area because where the restaurant is in a no-wake zone for safety reasons."

He added, "They said, 'Well, if no one else is going to do it, I guess we'll do it.'"

Witting feels relieved the buoys are in the water and taken care of.

"Now all the boats are behaving themselves in the narrows," he said. "I speak for everyone that lives around the narrows that, one way or another, we were going to make that happen (replace the old foam and plastic buoys) we just didn't know how we were going to do it."

The 450 to 550-foot wide narrows is home to more than 30 homes and land lots where some

History of the issue:

1973 — Safety concerns of boats speeding through the narrows were brought to the Department of Natural Resources.

1974 — A no-wake zone was approved by the Department of Natural Resources, Eveline Township and Charlevoix County.

1991 — The Lake Charlevoix Association bought and installed four foam/plastic buoys resulting in a drastic increase of boater compliance.

2006 — The Lake Charlevoix Association launched an unsuccessful fund-raising campaign to replace the deteriorated buoys.

2007 — Nearly 40 people donated enough money to pay for the buoys and have them installed in the narrows under the control of the Landings Restaurant.

The Ironton Narrows, which recently received four new steel no-wake buoys, is home to a restaurant, docks, a fueling station and the Ironton Ferry seen here. The buoys, purchased at a cost of nearly $26,000 by private donors, help ensure boaters move at slower speeds when traveling through the narrows.

In spite of resolution to the issue, Williamson said he is disappointed with how his government entities handled the situation.

"They have governmental immunity from most things, not complete immunity, but substantially more immunity from things than a small and not very well funded volunteer organization (such as the Lake Charlevoix Association)," he said. "I kept explaining to them that we were going to give them (buoys) to them, that they would not even cost them any money to put them in the water."

He added, "We don't feel the Lake Charlevoix Association should be doing this; we're much more interested in the things that we're doing. We're trying to start an online newspaper, put Webcams up; we're worried about all sorts of other things. This is not part of our main agenda."

Enlightened Elder

Avoid, treat heat exhaustion

Sue Bergmann

The elderly are at greater risk for dehydration and heat stress during activity and summer heat. Older adults are at a higher risk for heat-related illnesses. Existing conditions such as heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, and obesity can increase their risk. Certain prescription medication may alter the normal body's response to heat.

When body temperatures rise even slightly, and dehydration ensues, individuals may experience warning signs such as muscle cramps, lightheadedness, confusion, agitation, thirst, dry skin, dry mouth and mucous membranes, heavy sweating, paleness, shortness of breath, fainting, nausea or vomiting, increased pulse, fatigue or lethargy and increased body temperature. Dehydration soon follows with increasing symptoms of heat cramps, heat exhaustion and most severe heat stroke, which can be life threatening and require immediate emergency medical attention.

According to State of Michigan's Offices of Services to the Aging, seniors who live alone and in older homes without air-conditioning are at greatest risk. It is very important to check on your neighbors and family members to ensure their safety and help them stay cool and hydrated. Take them ice, cold drinks, fans. If they can get out easily, take them to an air-conditioned building, shopping center, library or senior center.

High temperatures can place abnormal stress on a person's body as summer progresses and temperatures rise. There are ways to prevent serious heat related illnesses. Symptoms can occur over a few days or sudden onset with strenuous activity. Prevention of heat stress is important to protect yourself from serious heat exhaustion or heat stroke, they include:

AVOID HEAT EXHAUSTION

- Drink plenty of non-alcoholic, decaffeinated beverages (they can cause dehydration). Avoid extremely cold drinks that can cause cramps. Drink even when you are not thirsty.
- Wear lightweight clothing that allows good air circulation.
- Limit strenuous physical activity, especially in the heat of the day, between 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., exercise or work outside in the early morning or early evening.
- If you are outside, seek a shaded area.
- Seek an air conditioned environment, If you get overheated, take a cool shower, or cool rags around your neck.

TREATING HEAT EXHAUSTION

If you do develop symptoms of early heat exhaustion or stroke, Here is what to do:

- Call 911, seek immediate attention
- Get to a shaded area, lie down feet elevated, remove excess clothing and cool down.
- Cool the person as quickly as possible, immerse in a tub of cool water, or shower, spray person with cool water from a hose, sponge with cool water and fan vigorously to cool.
- "If conscious offer drinks in small amounts at frequent intervals.
- Monitor body temperature and continue cooling until temp drops.

Don't forget to check on your elderly neighbors, friends and family members and protect and prevent yourselves from developing symptoms of heat stress, exhaustion and stroke.

Hey Jane!

Hey Jane!

My grandson is a sophomore in college and ran up $10,000 worth of debt on credit cards that were sent to him unsolicited in the mail. As a full-time student he can't make payment on these debts. Parents are furious and are saying to him it is your debt so you pay, even if it means dropping out of college to get a job. Here comes nana! Nana says, "I have the money to pay this debt and will do so as my grandson has learned his lesson and dropping out of college is too drastic a measure."

Nana

Dear Nana: A very important part of your decision should be keeping the faith with your son. You have already had your turn at parenting and, hard as it is, your best bet is to support your son and his wife in their parenting. You risk long lasting hard and hurt feelings plus you absolutely do not have a guarantee that your grandson has learned his lesson. As I understand it, he used five different cards over a period of six months and not many people would call that impulsive. Trust that your son can handle his family. As extravagant as it may seem you could save that money and present it as a present when he has a college diploma. Make the best choice for the longterm.

Jane

Contact: Do you have experience/regrets/hopes with a long term relationship that is not what you want it to be? Jump on board and share yourself so others might benefit, anonymously of course. Contact us at "Hey Jane" P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or e-mail heyjane@heyjaneonline.com.

Andy's Deli expands into downtown

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Andy's Deli, known among locals for its enormous, custom-made deli sandwiches and classic American fare, has debuted in downtown Charlevoix under the name Andy's Downtown Deli and Grill, at 216 Bridge,St.

It is now one of two locations where customers can choose from two menus — one offering favorites such as hamburgers and grilled cheese — the other, deli sandwiches.

"A lot of people came into our location on Garfield and said they never knew we were there," said co-owner Mary Ramsey. "We needed more exposure."

So, she said, they decided to open a downtown location.

Both delis are owned by two brothers and their wives. They are Keith Ramsey and his wife, Mary, and Gary Ramsey and his wife, Marge. They are four former grocers who, Ramsey said, aim to serve the common person with quality, common food.

"Not gourmet, not fancy," she said.

They adopted the name 'Andy' from the previous owner of the Garfield location.

"Andy Essenburg is the gentleman we bought the store from," Ramsey said.

She said since opening the downtown location, tourists are gravitating toward the menu of burgers and fried food rather than the deli menu, which is more popular at the Garfield location.

"People always fall back on the burger or the fried food," Ramsey said. "It's about getting them to try the sandwich."

None of their deli sandwiches are pre-made. Instead the deli menu, printed on a pad of paper, also serves as an ordering ticket. Customers circle the type of bread, meat, cheese, condiments and vegetables they want and a sandwich is created based on their tastes.

Andy's deli sandwiches start with the bread- square-shaped bun-style bread that is wider than the palm of your hand and very thick.

Business name? Andy's Downtown Deli and Grill

Location? 216 Bridge St.

Hours of operation? Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Phone number? (231) 547-9530

Meat, cheese and vegetable portions are proportioned to the size of the bread. Ramsey said that they haven't figured out how to make a smaller sandwich that's just as tasty.

"When we came up with our ratio of meat to bread, we could not come up with a different ratio to make it taste as good," Ramsey said.

She said they ensure a moist, fresh sandwich every time with bread that is baked daily at the Garfield location and deli meats that are sliced when ordered. And, this attention to detail does not mean a long wait.

"We have a hustle mentality," Ramsey said. "we know that people have a half hour for lunch, and if they have to wait 20 minutes for a sandwich, they won't come back."

"When we train our employees, we tell them we take pride in being faster than fast food," Ramsey said.

She said they thought about delivery but decided against it.

"When you look at gas prices nowadays, it just isn't feasible to have delivery." she said.

Andy's Downtown Deli and Grill is open Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Grandparents serve slices of their dream

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

A love of Charlevoix and a desire to be together inspired Tom and Pam Awrey to open their new G and Papa's Pizza at the Oleson's Plaza, 108 Antrim St.

Tom Awrey has been coming to Charlevoix since he was a child and said that he and Pam always wanted to come and work in northern Michigan.

"We've always wanted to come to the north country and live and work together," Tom said. "We like the food business."

After Tom worked for years at his family's business, the Livonia-based Awrey's Bakery, and Pam at Curves in South Lyon, the two decided to start a pizza parlor with the help of their son-in-law, who owns the southwestern Michigan pizza chain, Saylon's.

"They agreed to help us get started with training, supplies and equipment rather than starting from scratch," Tom said.

Tom describes their pizza as "an American version of Greek pizza," a one-crust pizza with toppings placed under the cheese. Its dough is made from scratch.

"I think we have a superior product at a valued price," Tom said.

In addition to their Greek-style pie, G and Papa's offers roasted submarine sandwiches, salads and dinners featuring fish, shrimp, spaghetti and lasagna.

The Awrey's business name came from their seven-year old grandson, Alec, who calls Pam "G" and Tom "Papa."

The couple decided on their location in the Oleson's plaza because of its large storefront windows that offer a generous view of the kitchen and now, Pam said she thinks it makes it fun to watch.

"With an open kitchen, everyone can see what we're doing, so we're going to have a clean operation," Tom said.

As business owners, the Awreys intend to get involved in the community as much as possible.

"We want to get involved in education, band boosters," Tom said.

"And doing petunias," Pam added.

Tom said they also intend to become members of the Chamber of Commerce and already enjoy being part of Charlevoix's business community.

"Being new, we've been amazed at the friendliness," Tom said. "Everyone's cheered us on, everyone's been very positive."

G and Papa's Pizza is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

On July 11 Charlevoix Yacht Club competitors raced a full course of seven windward-leeward legs in moderate winds.

The race was the second for the summer series, as there was no race on July 4. The Spinnaker B fleet was small in size due to preparation for the Chicago to Mackinaw, which started this past weekend. Only 16 seconds separated the first two boats of the Spinnaker A fleet and Moxie, of the Spinnaker B fleet, was the fastest boat overall. Race results provided by Mike Miller and Keith Attee, committee chairs.

The Charlevoix Yacht Club race results for July 11 are:

Jib and Main fleet: 1 – Sonnett (Lepman); 2 – Exitus (Pung); 3 – Opus (Hansen).

P-26 fleet: 1 – Tireless (Carland); 2 – Cygnus (Stewart); 3 – Original Sin (Miller); 4 – Lost Vermonter (Tinney); 5 – Apothecary (Ochs).

Life, athletic skills taught at sports camp

"Beyond the Gold Mega Sports Camp" will be held nightly at Charlevoix Assembly of God Church, Aug. 6–9.

Charlevoix Assembly of God Church Christian education director Angie Way said at the camp kids entering Kindergarten through sixth-grade will find an opportunity to learn more about sports while discovering character-building concepts and having fun.

At "Beyond the Gold Mega Sports Camp," kids can choose between basketball, soccer and cheerleading.

"It doesn't matter if they've played all their lives, or just started yesterday, Mega Sports Camp helps kids improve their skills," Way said.

Drills and practice games will get kids focused on the fundamentals that make athletes great. Plus, Mega Sports Camp creates a positive and encouraging environment that pumps up their confidence and self-esteem.

In between sports sessions, coaches tell stories and do object lessons that carry character-building themes.

There is no cost for Mega Sports Camp. All adult workers/coaches at Mega Sports Camp have met the church's child protection screening policy. Staff includes certified First Aid/CPR worker(s).

Charlevoix Assembly of God is located at 05291 M-66 North, just north of Castle Farms. Camp will meet from 6 to 8 p.m. Aug. 6–9. To register, call (231) 547-6430. Walk-in registration will take place at 5:30 p.m. each evening of Mega Sports Camp. A parent/guardian must accompany children for registration, as parental waivers are required.

Charlevoix public pool 10 year anniversary celebration

"Ten Years and Growing Stronger" is the theme for the 10th anniversary celebration of the opening of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Thursday, July 19.

THE CELEBRATION

The staff and board of directors have planned special events that day to showcase how the pool has served the public over the last decade.

The public is invited to use the pool that day at no charge and tours will be available for those who don't want to swim but wish to see and learn more about the pool facilities and its programs. The staff will serve hot dogs and a light meal from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. free to visitors.

EVENT SCHEDULE

The schedule for Thursday, July 19 in which the public can join in activities for free is as follows:

- Lap swimming 6 to 8 a.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. (two lanes).
- Open Swimming for all ages 3 to 5 p.m. (with the inflatable tanker) and 6 to 8 p.m., OYO (on your own) for adults only from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. (two lanes) and Aqua Exercise class from 8 to 9 a.m. The public can observe Red Cross Swim Lessons from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

THE HISTORY

Nearly 50 years ago the late Ralph Hamilton, a member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club envisioned and promoted an indoor pool for Charlevoix. The Friends of the Pool's many volunteers, spearheaded by Bruce and Barbara MacArthur made the pool a reality in 1997.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool was one of only a few pools in the country built and operated without public funding. In 2005, the pool went to the public and passed a Recreational Authority Millage for the City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township and Charlevoix Township. These funds help keep the fees reasonable to the users, including offering dollar nites (four nights a week); non district users pay $1.50. The millage has also allowed the pool to put aside $35,000 a year in a contingency fund. This fund was used this past winter to replace the aging ventilation system at $110,000.

To date over 325,000 swimmers from Charlevoix and the surrounding area have used the pool.

THE BUDGET

The pool's budget for 2007 is $427,000. Of that $177,000 comes from the Recreational Authority, $80,000 from the annual pool auction, $50,000 from donations/other fundraising and $120,000 from fees and charges.

Anyone purchasing a pass or signing up for a class the week of July 16 will receive a 10 percent discount.

For more information about the Charlevoix Area Community Pool programs, call (231) 547-0982 or visit www.charpool.org.

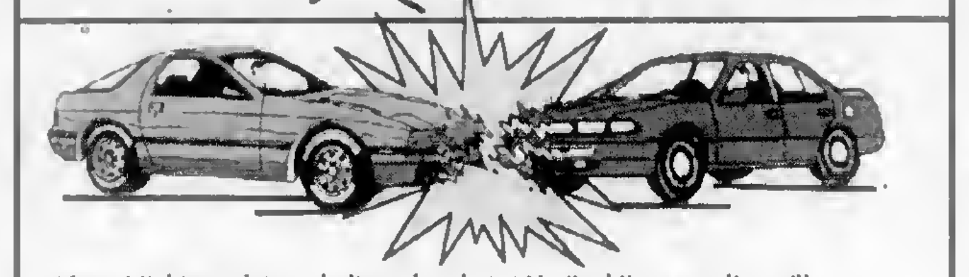
MICHIGAN DRIVER ALERT!

Insure Against the Uninsured



Many Michigan drivers believe that their "No Fault" auto policy will cover everything—no matter who is at fault. This is not entirely true.

Some losses are intended to be covered by the at-fault driver. But, what if their policy coverage limits are too low, or they drive with no insurance at all?

Not all companies offer protection in these situations, but Auto-Owners does. Let us show you how to protect yourself and your family with Uninsured and Underinsured Motorist Coverages from Auto-Owners Insurance.

Help SEE-North pay for potties

SEE-North's annual auction will take place at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, July 25 at the Center for Outdoor Studies

The occasion is the Fourth Annual Benefit Auction party for SEE-North, a non-profit organization that focuses on math, science and environmental education in local schools and communities.

The event offers food and beverages and live music by Peacemeal. After a silent auction there will be a free flight demonstration with Belfry, the resident barn owl. Then, Mike McElroy, board member and auctioneer extraordinaire, will get things going with the lively live auction. Auction items include a guided fungi field trip, a kayak cruise, an interpretative stargazing evening, a Greek dinner, a week's stay in a maison in France, a sheepdog herding demonstration and a wine taste-off. In celebration of the completion of the two handicap accessible bathrooms at SEE-North, this year's live auction also features, "The Parade of Seats" toilet seats decorated by local artists.

With the installation of the restrooms, the SEE-North Center for Outdoor Studies, located seven miles northwest of Harbor Springs is officially open this summer.

"The event is a fundraiser for us and it gives people a chance to see our facility," said Nan Hogan, SEE-North's Board President and auction coordinator. "We have a series of nature explorer and young birders day camp sessions for children scheduled. We're very excited to be able to offer a variety of education programs for all ages at the center."

Center for Outdoor Studies is also the permanent home for the birds of Northwings, SEE-North's live birds of prey program that focuses on public education and a place to observe and learn about hawks, eagles, falcons and owls that live in northern Michigan. Throughout the summer, bird programs are offered to the public on Thursdays and Saturdays.

Tickets for the event are $45 in advance, or $50 at the door and can be purchased by calling the SEE-North office at (231) 348-9700 or visiting the SEE-North Exploration Center at 220 Park St. in Petoskey's Pennsylvania Park.

Potter mania

On July 20, this gang of Potter fans arrived at Charlevoix Public Library in costume and were among the over 500 people there who celebrated the release of the seventh and last in JK Rowling's magical Harry Potter series "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows." They are (front, from left), Grace Atchison as a blonde, first-year Hermoine, Megan Wilson as Ginny, Nicholas Grant as Hedwig, Estelle Grant as Severus Snape, Bri Wilson as Hermoine in headgear, Lynne DeMoor as Mrs. Weasely, Alex Atchison as Luna Lovegood and Michelle Atchison as Rita Skeeter. The library was decorated to look like Hogwarts and retailers were on hand to sell copies of the book at midnight.

Klinger named CHS principal

School board to address conflict of interest

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Suzanne Klinger

Charlevoix High School tentatively has a new principal, Suzanne Klinger and assistant principal, Roger Gowell.

Despite claims by some Charlevoix school board members of a conflict of interest because Klinger's husband, Todd, would be working under her as a teacher — a violation of the district's nepotism policy — there was a 5-2 vote in favor of entering contract negotiations with her. In the days following the meeting, Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik also recommended Gowell, whose contract is still pending board approval at the Aug. 13 meeting, to fill the vice principal's position.

"Actually, there is a conflict of interest because she (Klinger) would be the boss of her husband, Todd, who is a (high school) biology teacher," said Bo Boss, a school board member who initially voted against Klinger's appointment. "I don't have anything against Suzanne as principal, but

Festival art commemorates Patsy Ramsey

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

This year's Venetian Festival art will commemorate Patsy Ramsey, mother of slain 6-year-old JonBenet and a past Venetian board member who was an influential person in Charlevoix.

Patsy's art was donated to the Venetian Festival by her surviving husband, John Ramsey. John said Patsy, who died June 24, 2006 of ovarian cancer, always loved to paint, but that before her illness she was not able to do more than a single painting every couple of years due to her obligations to work and children.

Patsy's battle with ovarian cancer last year brought her closer to her art, however. During the last six months of her life, as she was confined to her home by illness, Patsy was able to do around 20 paintings.

"It was the perfect setting for her to do that," John said. "She didn't have other things pulling at her."

The Venetian painting, as many of other Patsy's paintings, is filled with colors and overlapping scenes. John said Patsy enjoyed painting flowers and landscapes.

Patsy Ramsey

"She was naturally very good at it — she enjoyed it," he added.

Patsy's other artwork has been donated to fund the Patsy P. Ramsey Ovarian Cancer Foundation. Her gallery can be viewed at www.patsyramseyfoundation.org. Prints of her original artwork can also be purchased through the Web site.

Patsy's Venetian Festival artwork will be printed and sold on T-shirts and posters available at Lake Michigan Beach. The original artwork has been matted and framed by Charlevoix Camera and will be sold at auction after the queen's coronation ceremony July 27 at Lake Michigan Beach. To enter a silent auction bid, contact Anne Golski at (231) 675-2164.

"It's a real honor for her family to have her painting selected," John said about the Venetian image. "She loved Charlevoix and all the celebrations surrounding it."

Roger Gowell to assume both vice principal, teaching roles

PRINCIPAL

I just wanted to get things ironed out so the conflict of interest is taken care of first."

During the July 9 organizational meeting of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education, board member Larry Levengood cited the district's policy on nepotism before both he and Boss voted "no" on a resolution to enter contract negotiations with Klinger.

"The board shall not hire any teacher or other employee over 18 years of age, if such person would be supervised by a member of their immediate family," the Aug. 12, 2002 policy states. "Members of the immediate family shall be defined as father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, husband and wife."

While the policy fails to specifically state no supervisor may be hired if that person would work over a relative, Boss felt otherwise.

Boss added, "He (Todd Klinger) has also put in for the position as part-time athletic director and I also feel that is a conflict of interest because, ultimately, the principal is the boss of all the employees in the building and at evaluation time it's tough to give a proper evaluation when you're doing it for your spouse."

Janik intends to recommend to the board on Aug. 13 a solution to the potential conflict of interest.

"We will handle that so there will be no administrative oversight by Suzanne of her husband," he said. "We're looking at different options for that so we will be in compliance with our board policy and so his direct supervisor would not be his wife."

Boss said he believes Klinger has and will continue to do an excellent job.

"Other than the conflict of interest, I totally support her as principal," he said.

Janik said while the contract between Klinger and the board has yet to be finalized, all is done but the formality of finalizing the language.

"I'm very excited about the appointment. I've gotten very many positive responses from parents, faculty and community members about her," he said. "I think with Suzanne's personality and vision for the district, along with Roger's experience — he has been with the district for 30-plus years and he comes very highly respected from staff, the school district can move forward with its academic progress."

Though she was the only person to apply for the principal's position after middle school principal Keith Haske bowed out of the running, Janik said Klinger's years of service with the district and experience in leadership roles made her the prime candidate for the position.

"She (Klinger) started here in the 1993-94 school year but she went to work for the (Charlevoix-Emmet) ISD for a couple of years so her total years of service to Charlevoix Public Schools is 13," stated Kelly Yaroch, human resources coordinator for Charlevoix Public Schools in an e-mailed response to questions.

Janik added, "She has been successful at every position she has been in and I'm confident she will continue to be very successful."

While Klinger will work in her capacity as principal full-time, tentative plans for Gowell are to teach two classes and fulfill his assistant principal duties the rest of the time.

According to Janik, because neither contract has been finalized, he could not release the duo's salaries.

But, he said, "By doing this we will be able to recall a laid off teacher and save $20,000 — pending board approval."

Klinger, who already assumed her duties on an unofficial basis, did not return calls by press time.

Who? Suzanne Klinger and Roger Gowell

What? Charlevoix High School principal and assistant principal positions

When? Klinger's contract is final pending trivial language adjustments while Gowell's contract must be approved by the school board as early as the Aug. 13 meeting. If Gowell is approved for the position, one of several teachers laid off due to budget concerns will be brought back to fill the void created by his promotion — a move which could save the district at least $20,000.

Death in Norwood declared drowning

A New York resident drowned on Monday, July 16 in Lake Michigan.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater identified the victim as Douglas W. Miller, 46.

Police said Miller, who was visiting his parents in Charlevoix County, was retrieving golf balls from Lake Michigan near the village of Norwood when a neighbor noticed him yelling for help.

Two residents in the area canoed out to Miller and brought him to shore where Charlevoix and East Jordan ambulance crews tried unsuccessfully to revived him.

Miller was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix EMS where he was pronounced dead.

The Charlevoix County medical examiner reported Miller had no signs of physical injury or conditions and drowned. Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater said there are undertows in that area. However, Lasater spoke with the Weather Bureau which monitors undertows and it was reported that no such water conditions existed there at that time.

"We may never know," Lasater said.

The incident remains under investigation.

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

The FCC oversees all types of broadcasting, from TV to microwaves and began their TV meddling with Charles Jenkins who got the first U.S. TV license in 1928 and aired the first TV commercial in 1930, "for which he was promptly fined by the Federal Radio Commission, the predecessor of the FCC," the FCC boasts.

Knowing they didn't wait five minutes to tyrannize Jenkins, it didn't shock me to hear Kevin Martin, an FCC commissioner, wrote that without censorship, "Hollywood will be able to say anything they want, whenever they want." It seems the FCC is fighting freedom in California so we don't have to fight it at home.

Casualties in the war on expression include radio outlets like Infinity Broadcasting, fined $27,500 after Howard Stern and pals used slang for sex; WONE, nailed for $7,000 for a joke about a baby and a butcher knife; and a station that aired obscene humor — in Spanish. FCC toadies translated the jokes into a $22,400 fine.

The term "De Facto" escaped FCC vocabulary when they wrote, "The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and Section 326 of the Communications Act prohibit the FCC from censoring broadcasters. The FCC ... enforces the prohibition on obscenity, indecency and profanity in response to complaints."

The FCC has determined, a la supreme court ramblings that, "Obscene material is entitled to no First Amendment protection." Furthermore, "It is a violation of federal law to air obscene programming at any time. It is also a violation of federal law to broadcast indecent or profane programming (from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. also known as the safe harbor)."

I had to grab my magnifying glass and spy harder at the decaying parchment to see the U.S. Constitution's hours of operation printed clearly under each amendment. Aside from partially free speech only applying between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m., I discovered slavery is only outlawed from 1 to 5 a.m. Sunday through Saturday — so get your butts to work — and women do have the right to vote, but only on Sundays.

Just to show they have a sense of humor, the FCC adds, "The commission is careful of First Amendment protections and the prohibitions on censorship and interference with broadcasters' freedom of speech."

Some will ever posit that freedom coaxes the worst of mankind, as if any but God may deny our entitlement to such, but listen close and hear the wails of those uneasy with freedom, "But Gohs, what's to stop malicious rumors or someone yelling 'Al Gore' at a Republican picnic?"

Both slander and incantation of Al may goad physical or fiscal harm, but both are examples where the victims invite no injury. Conversely, when we voluntarily engage entertainment outlets, we lose all claim to indemnity. Just like hard drugs, rich food or wild women, we use TV and radio at our own risk.

The oft spoken, seldom used solution for transmission of perceived transgressions is simple: Turn the channel or turn it off — behold the perfection of parsimony.

Regardless of realistic solutions, the FCC is here to stay, so you should understand their flow chart on how they will handle your complaint if'n the mood strikes.

1. You hear a joke on FM radio about an amorous judge with a shoehorn, a skunk, three Presbyterian midgets and six pounds of 90:10 garden fertilizer.

2. Being a law student and shorter half-brother of a Minister of the Word and Sacrament with large feet who is allergic to polecats and could not grow stink on a corpse let alone tend a fern, you decide to rush an e-mail detailing your deep psychological scarring to the FCC.

3. While he cares not about the rodent's age, his honor's fascination with little people or the length of the shoehorn, the FCC chairman must punish someone for mentioning intercourse and excrement on the air — his own mild arousal notwithstanding — and per protocol forwards a transcript of the joke to his grandmother.

4. If granny gasps, faints or clutches her chest, the joke is sent to a three-man committee made up of Pat Robertson, Sean Hannity, L. Brent Bozell and the ghost of Joe McCarthy who then host ritual sacrifices of at least eight calico kittens to the dark underlord who, in turn, compiles a 689-page dissertation of the violation.

5. The FCC, which according to a 2004 report by professor Jeff Jarvis, has been caught artificially inflating the numbers of complaints received, will then assess fines ranging from $7,000 to $3 million — I may have artificially exaggerated flow chart steps three and four.

In part two we'll discuss the benefactors of rabid FCC regulation, and by "we" I mean those pint-sized triplets. Now if I can just locate my shoehorn.

Make a statement with paint

DR DÉCOR

Barbara Kopitz

Our new vacation home has a cedar wood exterior painted white and I love it. The inside was painted all beige when we purchased it and I hated it. Beige certainly didn't fit with my design vision. I had something much more exciting in mind. Since the house had never been lived in and the paint was still fresh, it may have seemed an extravagance to repaint, but it had to be done.

However, I was able to bring about my color scheme without painting everything. Here's what I opted to do. I didn't paint any of the trims, molding or ceilings since they were already white and I like that look. I didn't paint the laundry room, I simply added a wallpaper border at the top. I didn't paint the stairwell or the upstairs hallway. The beige worked as a counterpoint to the colorful bedrooms and bathroom.

In general, the kitchen is orange, the living room is blue, the master bedroom and bath are light blue, and the powder room is yellow. One guest bedroom is lime green, the other is yellow and the guest bath is tangerine.

Many of my readers from my Detroit News column wanted to know my exact colors. Specifically the following are the Benjamin Moore Paint colors that I selected:

Kitchen: 139

Great Room and Front Entry: 816

Master Bedroom and Bathroom: 814

Back Porch: Shimmering Lime 2030-50

First Guest Room: Potpouri: 2029-50

Guest bathroom: Funky Fruit 2015-50

Second Guest room: Yellow Lotus 2021-50

I have used the words "I painted" but you didn't really think I did it myself, did you? I hired J. Arnold Painting in Charlevoix.

I loved working with the owner Jeff Arnold. We were already living in the house and he gave us a crew of six talented painters. Because we moved right in after our purchase, we had already lived through a lot of work disruptions. Having a crew come in to paint was wonderful. They applied two coats on everything and were in and out in three days.

Oh, did I mention I painted the front door a luscious, bright orange (Orange Nectar 2013-20)? Our home is part of a free-standing condo grouping and all the houses are painted alike.

Jeff loved that I chose an unusual color for the front door. He said, "It makes the entrance fun and exciting instead of the usual bland look."

However, he said, "Most people have trouble visualizing colors. They pick from a small swatch and don't realize what it will look like on the wall. When they paint the whole wall they are quite surprised. So often if they pick really bright, florescent colors I back them down a shade."

I agree that people have trouble visualizing. In my case, when I help clients select paint colors, I warn them that when they first see the whole room painted they will be shocked. It's always a change from what was there before. I caution them: "Don't panic. Give it a couple of days, then decide." That usually makes the difference.

They all thank me for warning them. They stayed calm, waited a day or two and then they loved it. Sometimes the more they were unsure of the color when they first saw it on the wall, the more they loved it later. My theory is that if they've made a statement with their color choices, it takes longer to get used to, but in the end they're glad they took the risk.

Nowadays most paint manufacturers offer small sample bottles of paint. This allows you to try a few different colors on the wall without having to purchase a gallon. Jeff says to paint at least a two-foot square sample to get the idea. "A little dab doesn't help."

Take a chance. Paint your dream colors; I did.

LETTERS to the editor

LIGHTS OUT

Editor:

On June 1 we had a power outage at our home on Beaver Island. This occurred at approximately 9:30 p.m. At first we lit several candles and decided we would await the restoration of power. Then while looking out our front window, we realized that our neighbors across the street had lights on. We made a couple of phone calls and discovered that anyone on the west side of King's Highway was without power. So at 10:30 p.m., I called Great Lakes Energy to report our problem. I was told that the problem originated on the mainland and that it would take several hours to repair. I asked why the island generator was not being used and the person taking the call said "The generator is only used when the entire island is affected and could not be activated when only half of the people were affected."

I now wonder why I am paying the Beaver Island surcharge for service that is not available when I need it. Our power was not restored until around 1 a.m.

I will expect an answer from you (Steve Boeckman) at your earliest convenience. This letter has been sent to three local publications

Editor's note: This letter was directed to the Courier's attention as well as that of Steve Boeckman, president and CEO of Great Lakes Energy. The company responded to Runberg and directed this response to the Courier as well. The letter is printed below.

LIGHTS OUT RESPONSE

Editor:

We understand that the reason you experienced a power outage on June 18 was due to a broken pole located just west of Beaver Lodge Road along Donegal Bay Road. We experienced some high winds that night. We apologize if you were mistakenly told that the cause was a power supply problem on the mainland.

A crew was dispatched to the island the next morning to replace the broken pole and damaged equipment.

The key purpose of the generation plant is to supply emergency power to island residents when your prima-

10 things you never knew about Debra Blanchard

Bringing you closer to your neighbors ...

A lifelong resident of Charlevoix, Debra Blanchard is a wife, mother of four daughters, grandmother of six and bartender at the Flight Deck and Paul Bunyan Lanes on U.S. 31. "10 things you never knew about" runs the fourth Wednesday of the month in the Charlevoix Courier.

1. Why choose this line of work?

I worked at Hoskins Manufacturing for 25 years before they shut down, so I'm kind of semi-retired. I just came here as a part-time thing.

2. Do people really tell you their problems?

Sometimes. Sometimes I don't have time to listen to it if I have a really gabby customer and I'm busy with other customers.

3. What really makes you mad?

I would say when people are hired to do a job and then they don't do it and I have to come in and pick up slack for them.

4. What's your least favorite drink to make?

When the younger college kids come in they order special shots and there are so many of them it's hard to remember. Every time you turn around there is a new one.

5. What do you do for fun?

I have a Harley (Davidson motorcycle) — camping, jet skiing, walking, I play tennis and golf, but I'm not very good.

6. What is your biggest vice?

It was smoking, but I gave it up four days ago. I quit last year for eight months.

7. What's the best part of your job?

The people I get to meet, most of the time, 95 percent of the time, but occasionally you run into bad ones, especially if you have to cut them off.

8. What is your favorite food?

Alaska King Crab or lobster with a filet mignon.

9. If you could meet anyone for an hour lunch, who would it be?

Enrique Iglesias, because he's cute and hot.

10. What's something few people know about you?

I think a lot of people think that because I'm relatively quiet or don't smile a lot that I'm not happy, but I was not one of those people who were born with a smile on their face.

ry source of power from the mainland is not available.

In addition to the cost of the plant, the surcharge on your bill pays for the underwater cables installed some 27 miles across Lake Michigan in August 1999 to deliver power to the island. These major reliability improvements were part of a more than $5 million project that will provide Beaver Island residents with a reliable supply of power for many years.

PRES. WASHINGTON WOULD BE ASHAMED

Editor:

The father of our country and first president, George Washington said, "It is impossible to rightly govern a nation without God and the Bible."

If it was possible, President Washington would be turning in his grave, or at the very least be broken hearted, that the republic he risked his life, fortune and sacred honor to establish has turned away from its founding principles. There exists in this country an anti-American cabal of leftists intent on erasing religion from public life. They haven't reached their goal and they'll only get there if you and I move out of their way. If you agree that God-hating liberals are hurting America, that God has blessed our nation like no other in the history of mankind and that the source of our rights and liberties is God, and not government, then you believe American's must respect God's role in our public life.

We must call public attention to the fact that God has a special place in America, shame the purveyors of anti-God hatred, and force politicians, media elite and companies to take a stand for God in the public square, or feel the wrath of our outrage. How many Americans have had enough of dim-witted Hollywood celebrities attacking and mocking our values? But too many Americans are afraid to stand up to the left-wing elite, mainstream media, and anti-God crusaders who are shoving secular liberalism down our throats.

Over 90 percent of Americans believe in God, so if you're one of the 90 percent, you are in the majority and can make a difference that will give our children and grandchildren the opportunity to enjoy a way of life envisioned by the founders of our great nation: Become involved, because if we are not a part of the solution, then we are a part of the problem. The choice is ours to make and God help us if we're wrong.

ANGLERS NEED ACCESS

Editor:

Are you a big fan of fishing? If you are you will know what I mean when I say it is hard to find spots to access the lake for onshore fishing in Charlevoix.

I think there should be more onshore fishing spots because it would give children something to do besides watch mindless TV programs such as MTV. Also with more fishing spots our children will get more fresh air and exercise. In my opinion I think fishing is fun to do in my free time but it's hard to find spots to fish from shore.

With more onshore fishing spots there could be more family time. Also with more onshore fishing spots this will give families the chance to spend quality time together. Onshore fishing spots can also create fond family memories. For instance with more onshore fishing spots you can learn the Department of Natural Resources regulations.

With more onshore fishing spots there could also be less pollution from boats. When you go to the beach you can always see a glossy fluid on the water from the oil in the boats. And there could be less noise pollution from the boats.

Lieutenant Gov. Cherry talks economic growth

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

John Cherry

Lieutenant Governor John Cherry was in Charlevoix on July 18 as part of his tour of northern Michigan communities.

As Lieutenant Governor, Cherry performs gubernatorial duties in the governor's absence, presides over the state senate and represents the governor in local, state and national meetings.

Cherry said he came to Charlevoix to inform the public of what's happening in Lansing.

"We wanted to let people know what's happening with their state government," Cherry said.

He said he wanted to get the message across that this year the state is investing more money on tourism to help counter some of the issues surrounding energy and gas prices.

"We're promoting Michigan Now state advertising and last year it had a return of three dollars for every dollar spent," Cherry said.

He said the campaign stresses that Michigan is not just a great place to visit but also a great place to live and that northern Michigan has the potential to attract out-of-state business owners.

"Particularly in northern Michigan, there's some real potential," Cherry said, "that people can live here and do business in the sense that they have the Net and they can actually do their business in New York but live here."

He said once you get them living here, some of the next decisions about adding a business, plant or an office are going to be in the state.

Keeping talent in Michigan, he said, is part of the battle of strengthening Michigan's economy.

"We have found that when the governor took office five years ago, on what states were winning economically, it was the educational attainment of the adult population," Cherry said. "If you look at Michigan, we lag as compared to the rest of the nation in educational attainment."

He said part of the reason Michigan lags behind is due to its culture that says you don't have to have a post-secondary experience to succeed in life.

As such, he said, the state is attempting to increase the skill set of adult workers.

"We're launching a program this month called 'No Worker Left Behind' where if you're unemployed or you're about to get unemployed you can qualify for this program," Cherry said. "The state will provide you with free tuition at a community college for a specific training program that's tied to job placement at the end."

Cherry said there are currently 90,000 jobs in the state for skilled workers.

"If you take the auto sector out of Michigan's economy, the economy is actually growing," Cherry said. "What that does tell us, as it relates to the future economy is that our economy is growing."

Don't gamble with your advertising dollar.

Newspapers are the No. 1 source for shopping information. No other advertising medium compares to newspapers.

Council action: Approved

Item: Award of Mt. McSauba pump station construction.

In brief: Recreation director Ike Boss briefed the city on plans to construct a water pump facility to supply Mt. McSauba's snow guns during the winter. The structure will be placed underground. Boss said the structure will be built by recreation department employees at no cost to the city. The project will be limited to $10,000. In addition to building the structure, Boss mentioned bids for pump equipment and well development. He recommended that Torrent Engineering receive the bid for the pumps at $79,000 and that Raymer receive the bid for the well development at $6,606.50.

Council action: Approved

Item: Firefight mutual aid contract with Michigan Department of Natural Resources

In brief: The Charlevoix City Fire Department presented a proposed cooperative mutual aid fire control agreement with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. The agreement states that the fire department will provide mutual assistance to the Department of Natural Resources during fire fighting and fire prevention programs. The agreement also allows the fire department to purchase fire fighting equipment (specifically wild land fire fighting equipment) through the federal government's General Services Administration, at the federal government rate. Though Charlevoix fire chief Paul Ivan said that the city does not need the wild land fire fighting equipment, the city is still willing to assist the Department of Natural Resources in fire fighting and fire prevention programs.

Council action: Approved

Item: Michigan Department of Transportation permit of state-owned land for parkland

In brief: According to Charlevoix street department superintendent Pat Elliott, the "Berlage" building next to the Pine River Channel on Bridge Street has a wooden walkway that encroaches on state of Michigan property. The walkway connects Bridge Street to Hoffman Park and has degraded to the point that it is no longer safe for public use. The Michigan Department of Transportation is willing to issue a permit that would allow the city to use the entire property for park purposes. The Michigan Department of Transportation permit would also allow Berlage to reconstruct the walkway along the north side of the building to provide access to users of his building (which will soon be turned into residences) as well as public access from Bridge Street to Hoffman Park. Two additional items listed that were not decided on include the authorization of hiring a professional engineer to design and inspect the walkway and discussing who would be responsible for payment of engineering services.

Council action: Approved to pursue obtaining a Michigan Department of Transportation permit to use state property

Item: Miscellaneous business — handicapped parking at East Park

In brief: Charlevoix resident George Schultz voiced concerns to city council about planned handicapped parking areas in East Park. The most recent plans include four handicapped spaces on the north side of the park at the foot of Clinton Street and no handicapped spaces on the south side parking lot near the bandshell. Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said the city has already discussed the parking situation at East Park and that the grade of the hill at the south side parking lot is too steep for handicapped parking. Schultz said that there are ways to develop a handicapped space on the south side parking lot, despite the steep hill.

Item: Lease terms at Charlevoix Municipal Airport

In brief: Chuck Scherping of the Charlevoix Flying Club said there were discrepancies in the lease rates of hangers at the Charlevoix airport. Scherping said he thought the rates would stay the same until 2009 but the budget said rates would change when the lease expires. Scherping's lease expires this year and wanted to know if his rates would go up. City treasurer and acting city manager Rick Brandi said the rates would remain intact until 2009 but if somebody's lease expires, the rates go up. Brandi said the city needs to make the leases more consistent.

Fines don't deter pier jumpers

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

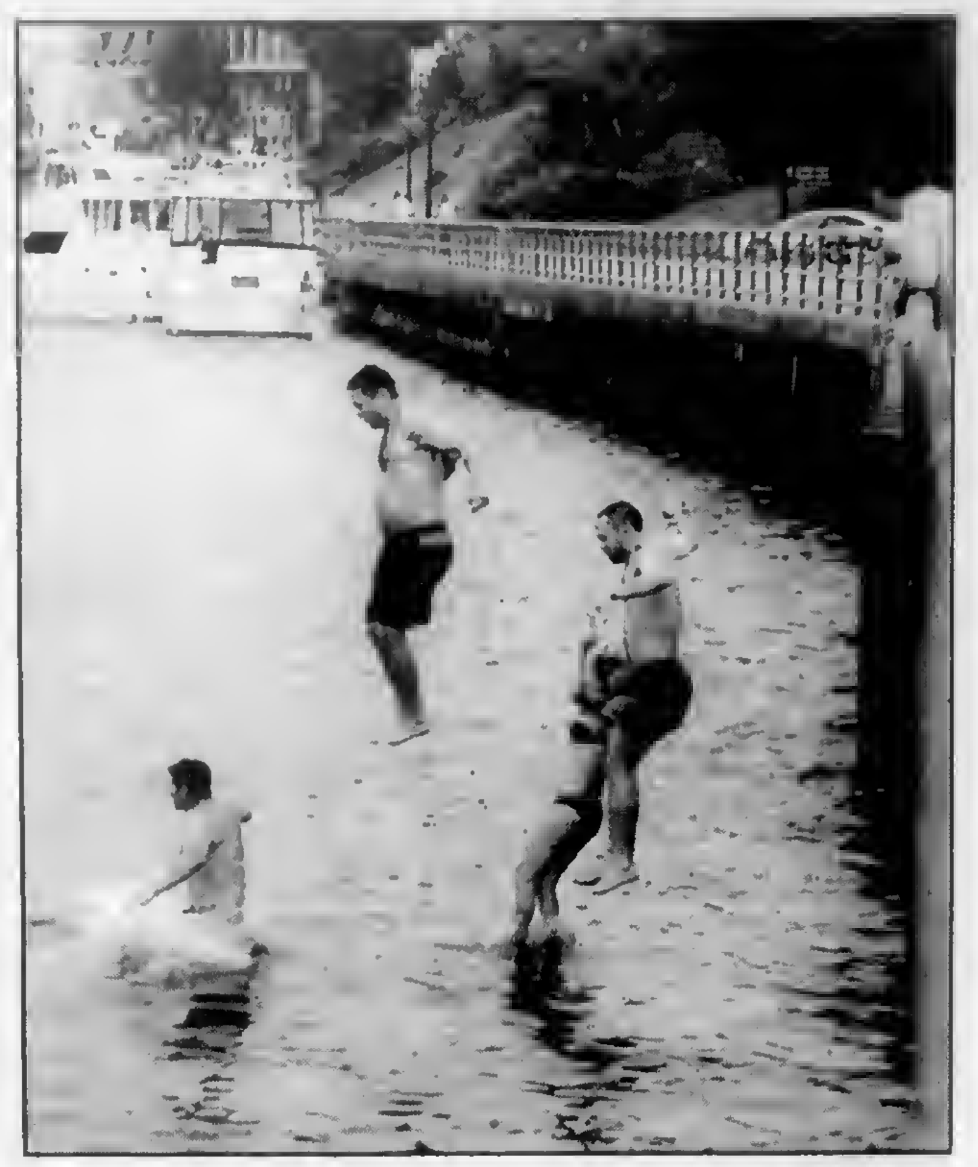
What happened? Charlevoix City Council voted unanimously to pass an ordinance banning swimming in the Pine River Channel.

When? March 20, 2007

What does it mean? City and county police officers are able to ticket and fine swimmers in the Pine River Channel.

What fines will be handed down to violators? Under the ordinance, Charlevoix officers are authorized to patrol the area and fine swimmers $50 for a first time offense, $75 the second time and $100 for third and subsequent offenses.

How many citations have been handed down this summer? A half dozen



Courtesy photo

In spite of heavy boat traffic and an ordinance prohibiting swimming in the Pine River Channel, people continue to jump from the pier into the water.

A $50 fine isn't keeping some swimmers from the waters of the busy Pine River Channel connecting Round Lake to Lake Michigan.

For several years, not only have people swam the channel's waters, according to City of Charlevoix police chief Gerard Doan, they are also particularly fond of jumping into the channel from the pier.

"Why do people do this? Why do people still speed? They decide to ignore the fines," Doan said.

He said the city has already distributed a half dozen citations to swimmers and has sent a letter informing the public that the city police, along with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, is enforcing laws prohibiting swimming in the Pine River Channel.

Charlevoix's lifeguard supervisor Ike Boss said the ordinance passed by the city council in March banning swimming in the Pine River Channel has also helped reduce pier jumpers.

The ordinance came about due to the number of complaints coming through city hall regarding pier jumpers swimming in the channel and the strain it put on lifeguards at nearby Lake Michigan Beach, whose attention was regularly turned from the swimming area to the channel.

Boss said that two years ago, Charlevoix lifeguards had to rescue two swimmers that had jumped into the channel as waves were coming in.

"The two lifeguards almost couldn't make it back," Boss said.

He also said last year, ambulances were called in response to swimmers who had cut their knees on the large rocks that line the pier.

Pine River Channel swimmers who now decide to take the risk, will face significant fines when caught. The fine is $50 for a first-time offense, $75 for a second-time offense and $100 for a third-time offense.

East Park access concern voiced

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

File photo

At the July 16 Charlevoix City Council meeting, Charlevoix resident George Schultz voiced concern over the location of the handicapped parking spaces in East Park.

Current plans total four spaces on the north edge of the park off Clinton Street. Schultz points out that, if implemented, the parking spaces would be approximately 700 feet from the performance pavilion and that the parking lot adjacent to the structure on the south side of the park off Antrim Street will contain no handicapped spaces.

Federal law dictates that handicapped parking spaces be located on the shortest accessible route of travel from adjacent parking to an accessible entrance.

"You have handicapped parking at the foot of Clinton Street and none near the bandshell," Schultz said.

However, federal law also dictates that parking spaces and access aisles be level with surfaces slopes not exceeding 2 percent.

"The grade on Antrim Street doesn't allow it," said mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "We did look at it, we wanted to have access down there, but the grade of the hill doesn't allow it."

East Park architect Mark Buday of Mark Buday Architect PLLC, said he was not involved in the designation of handicapped spaces and that it would be very difficult to have a space on Antrim Street because of the grade of the street.

"I did not consider any factors regarding the handicap spaces," Buday said. "These site issues were the responsibility of Pollack Design Associates. I was not responsible for the location and design of any landscape or site elements, including the handicap spaces."

Schultz said despite concerns about the grade of the hill, it can be done.

"The Life and Works of Earl Young, Charlevoix's Builder in Stone, Parts 1 and 2"

The Charlevoix Historical Society and the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library are co-sponsoring a two-part illustrated program on the life and works of Charlevoix's master builder Earl Young.

Young arrived in town as a boy in the late 1890s. Beginning in 1921, he erected around 30 unique buildings, almost all in stone, that have served as a signature image of Charlevoix around the world.

The programs will be narrated by Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles. Part 1 will focus on his early life and the 22 residential structures found in Boulder Park and on Park Avenue and Grant Streets, with particular attention to Boulder Manor and the Mushroom House. The program will be presented at 7 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 2 in the community room at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 Clinton St.

Part 2 will focus on the Weathervane Inn restaurant, The Lodge and Weathervane Terrace motels, his final three houses on Round Lake, his design philosophy, unorthodox design methods and legacy. Particular attention will be paid to the near loss of the Weathervane Inn in the early 1970s when it came close to sliding into the channel. This program will be presented at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 9 also at the library.

Experience the spirit of Venetian at July 28 parades

BY GINA ATTEE
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Two special Venetian parades will display the festival attitude throughout the streets and waters of Charlevoix on July 28.

The festivities start at 11 a.m. with a street parade showcasing everything from antique cars and marching bands to businesses and radio station vans. Charlevoix's own Venetian court, including the newly crowned Miss Charlevoix, will ride in the parade.

Other local festival royalty will also be featured.

The parade's grand marshal, John Kurtz, who was named the 2006 Outstanding Citizen by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, will lead the entrants, usually numbering around 75, down Bridge Street from Carpenter to the Clinton Street traffic light.

After the parade, the festivities will continue at Lake Michigan Beach, where Grammy award-winning Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band will take the stage for a concert featuring everything from rock and roll to traditional reggae and Calypso music.

At 6 p.m., Saturday evening, three acts will perform on the Bridge Street Park stage. These include the increasingly popular country artist Chris Dominic, the family-friendly one man act, David Cisco and an Elvis Tribute Show with Graceland's Official Band, featuring Greg Jaqua's award-winning Elvis act.

As the shows end, spectators can turn their eyes to the water as 20 to 25 boats, lighted and decorated like Christmas trees, make their way around Round Lake harbor for the 77th Grand Electric Boat Parade.

Spectators can view the boat parade from the Bridge Park parking lot from Antrim to Bridge, which will be closed to vehicle traffic.

The sidewalk area above East Park will also be available for viewing.

Various boats are welcome to participate.

In the past, small sport boats have paraded alongside 60-foot yachts from all over the Midwest.

No boats over 60 feet in length will be allowed.

There are safety and presentation requirements to meet in order to participate.

To register, or for requirement information, e-mail boat parade chairman, John Taylor, at: jtaylor@mytitlecompany.com.

The evening will end brilliantly as fireworks fill the sky above Round Lake harbor.

Saturday's events are expected to wrap up around 11 p.m.

Venetian Games packed events lineup

While East Park renovations have forced some changes in this year's Venetian plans, there won't be much difference in the schedule of the popular Venetian Games.

"We have had to cancel the East Park croquet tournaments, but are pleased to announce an additional event has been added. Elite volleyball games featuring top players will be held at Lake Michigan Beach. Meanwhile, all the event managers have continued their normal planning and no real problems are anticipated in the dozen sporting events that make up the games schedule," said Dean Davenport, Venetian Games commissioner.

The nearly dozen events kick off with the 3 on 3 basketball all day on Sunday, July 22 at Michigan Beach. Boys, girls and adult teams are included. The second basketball event is the Detroit Pistons/Shock clinic starting at 9 a.m. on Friday, July 27 at Charlevoix Middle School. Those attending can see, touch and have their picture taken with the championship trophies won recently by both the Pistons and Shock professional teams.

The adult golf tournament, the Carey Cup, named for longtime Charlevoix Golf Club course manager Keith Carey, has seen qualifying rounds being played, and now have brackets set for women, men and senior flights. The finals are tentatively set for Tuesday, July 24. The youth version of the Carey Cup is limited to those junior golfers enrolled in the Charlevoix County program and the tournaments will take place on July 25 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

The largest event for participants is the Jeff Drenth Memorial Road Race scheduled for 8 a.m. Saturday, July 28. Starting point is at Mt. McSauba and includes 10k, 5k and 1 mile runs for all ages.

The Charlevoix Yacht Club holds their Venetian Sailing Regatta the evening of Wednesday, July 25. The regatta may be viewed starting at 6:30 p.m. from various vantage points along Lake Charlevoix.

The soccer tournament has drawn teams of all ages and gets under way Tuesday, July 24 at Shanahan Field. This popular event is now drawing teams from communities around northern Michigan.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool hosts the Venetian Swim Championships on Wednesday July 25. Participants must register at the pool 24 hours prior to the event.

The Venetian tennis tournament allows over 50 male adults and 25 women to enjoy their passion with singles, doubles and mixed doubles brackets. There is also a youth and high school age tournament planned with all events scheduled for the courts adjacent to Stroud Hall off Old Orchard Road. Finals are tentatively scheduled for Thursday, July 26.

The Wednesday, July 25 evening volleyball tournament is a co-ed event with teams playing with a maximum of six players, equally divided between men and women. Teams need only to show up by 6 p.m. at Ferry Beach.

A new event, the Venetian Beach Volleyball Invitational is scheduled for Saturday, July 28 at courts alongside the pier at Lake Michigan Beach. This event, for the above novice players, is scheduled to allow spectators and participants to enjoy high level volleyball and is hoped to grow to become an annual summer event.

The Venetian games allow local and returning former residents the opportunity to compete and/or watch the various events which have become a fixture of the Venetian celebration.

Traveling quilts make a stop at local library

New at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St., for a ten-week exhibit are 50 quilts from the Michigan Quilt Artist Invitational, a traveling exhibit of art quilts.

Every year the Michigan Quilt Artist Invitational founded by curators Mary Andrews of Grand Blanc, and Marty Lawrence of Flint Township bring contemporary quilt artists together to promote freedom of expression, experimentation and individual style. Artists are invited to create an original quilt which complies with an annual theme. The exhibit travels for the next two years around the state of Michigan to galleries, museums, hospitals and libraries.

Having just arrived from the University of Michigan Hospital, the quilts in this stunning exhibit reflect the theme, "Exploring Australia." Most of the quilts in the exhibit are hung in the Charlevoix Public Library community room lobby. The remainder will be showcased in the Michigan Room display case.

A gallery book which includes artist statements, descriptions of the techniques used, and a brief biography of the artist, is available at the information services desk. Many of the pieces are for sale and the prices are included in this gallery notebook.

For more information about the exhibit or other library events, contact the information services desk at (231) 237-7340.

Beeswax is retrieved from an apiary hive at Central Michigan University's Biological Station on Beaver Island. July 16-27, teachers from all over Michigan participated in "Beekeeping for the Classroom Teachers" led by Oakland University Professor Dyanne Tracy.

Teachers from around the state have come to Beaver Island to attend a class on preserving the existence of the European honeybee, led by Oakland University Professor Dyanne Tracy.

"Honeybees are responsible for pollinating one to two-thirds of every food we eat," said Tracy. "They are extremely important to the agricultural market and economy."

July 16 through 27, Tracy led 'Beekeeping for the Classroom Teachers," at the newly expanded Central Michigan University Biological Station on the island. The class was made possible through the Environmental Protection Agency's MitSHAPE grant and consists of teachers from the kindergarten through community college level.

"I've been working with James Gillingham, Director of the Central Michigan University Biological Station and he was excited about bringing the opportunity to the station," Tracy said.

She said it's important that students become interested in being beekeepers and with her class, teachers can help them do that.

"I'm looking to help teachers to teach the art and craft of beekeeping," Tracy said. "The average beekeeper is 61 years old, people don't want to do it anymore."

She said bees need beekeepers to help them with pests and said that there are very few wild colonies of honeybees because of invasive mites that arrived in the United States over 20 years ago.

"Since 1986, we've had mites that infest and weaken hives," Tracy said. "The mites were brought here by the Asian honeybee accidentally."

Tracy said that the honeybee is be enjoyed, not feared. Unlike bees such as yellow jackets, hornets and wasps, honeybees are not as defensive of their hives and are less likely to sting.

Nevertheless, she said, on the first day of her class at the biological station Emergency Medical Services teaches how to administer the EpiPen, a pen that delivers an instant shot of epinephrine, for those who are allergic to bee stings.

Tracy, a beekeeper for seven years, said she's never had an incident of someone being stung in her class.

"I've had over four dozen teachers and kids at beehives and they have not been stung," she said. "It is very rare to be stung by a honeybee, they are focused on the queen and making honey."

She said the extreme focus of the worker honeybee also has the effect of creating more beautiful produce.

"A honeybee will not go to more than one species of flower per day," Tracy said. "A flower gets pollinated with the exact species of pollen, creating a bigger, more symmetrical piece of fruit."

Tracy said the work ethic of the honeybee community reminds her of the annual petunia planting in Charlevoix.

"It's the perfect example of a community where everybody does a little bit, like the petunias," she said.

Tracy said this winter, teachers who pass her class will be eligible to receive ware for hives. They will get a package that resembles a shoe box-sized container with 3,000 bees, a caged queen and a can of sugar water. In the spring, if all goes well, they will get four student-sized bee suits and tools. All equipment will be covered by the MitSHAPE grant that funded their Beaver Island class, free of charge.

"These teachers are going to go home to integrate their new knowledge," Tracy said. "If we have a better environment for honeybees, we'll have a better environment for humans."

Another successful season of College for Kids

More than 245 area students in second through seventh grades recently participated in College for Kids sponsored by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

College for Kids is a summer enrichment program designed to help students study a particular field of interest in depth. Some 20 classes were offered to students that focused on many areas including art, music, communications, drama, leisure activities, science, math and social studies. All of the classes mixed educational experiences with activities to facilitate learning.

"College for Kids uses career pathways to allow students to mix experience with opportunities outside of the normal school atmosphere," Naomi Singer, Director of Career and Technical Education and Early Childhood Education for Char-Em ISD, said. "Students are able to integrate academics with fun and obtain skills that many of them do not realize they are developing."

College for Kids was created more than 20 years ago as a partnership with Odyssey of the Mind and has evolved into a program benefiting many northern Michigan students. The seven-day event takes place at North Central Michigan College.

For more information, contact program coordinator Mary Gaudard at (231) 582-8070.

Books, CDs and more at Pine River Books

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

From pulp fiction to vintage Ernest Hemmingway, Charlevoix's newest bookstore has it all.

Recently opened at 104 Park Ave., Pine River Books is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week.

"This is a retirement project for me," said owner Charles A. Duerr Jr. "I retired from a law practice down state and started it (bookstore) this year."

He added, "I've always had an interest in books; reading, literature. I have audio books, movies and a small collection of music CDs."

Duerr, who fell in love with reading at an early age, said his favorite work of fiction is Huckleberry Finn.

"I wouldn't say I was a kid who was any kind of child prodigy when it came to reading, but by the third-grade I was certainly interested in reading," he said. "My mother told me I had the goal of reading all the books in the Charlevoix Library and I don't remember that, but I think I got bogged down in Louisa May Alcott and didn't finish. But I've read a lot over the years."

Duerr's inventory includes everything from current fiction in paperback to rare hardcovers with various prices.

"Much of it is relatively inexpensive up to some rare books that are priced up in the hundreds (of dollars)," he said. "I have some first editions of Hemmingway and other older fiction."

He added, "There is a lot of stuff (customers) could buy with $2 and recent hardbacks would be priced maybe a third of what you'd buy in a bookstore like Barnes and Noble, but if you were looking for something on the current New York Times bestseller list, in all likelihood I wouldn't have it."

While his store officially closes at six, Duerr said he routinely extends the hours in the evening.

"There are comfortable places for people to sit and read and browse and a room with children's books and young adult books with places for them to sit," he said. "I've tried to make the store comfortable for visitors, not too crowded, well lighted. Many used bookstores tend to get kind of overcrowded and not enough room for people to move around and see what's on the shelves. I think I've avoided that."

Duerr's inventory of nearly 6,000 books on history, biography, fiction, humor, travel art, music and more are categorized alphabetically by author to make searches less cumbersome.

"It was a lot of time (categorizing the books) but it's well worth it," he said. "If people come in with a request, I'm able to find it and if they have an unusual request, I'll search for it on the Internet and try to find it."

For more information, call (231) 237-9298.

Build it and they will come

Build it and they will come.

That is exactly what the fundraising group, Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. did. After completion the park, located at 401 West Carpenter St. was turned over to the City of Charlevoix to operate.

The city owned and operated park opened in June 2006 to a partial season. This year it opened on April 29 for a five-month season and in the first two months of operation has had over 1,300 users.

According to Laura Stebe, a founder of Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc., the park is meeting established goals. It is self sustaining with user fees earmarked for payroll and maintenance. Skaters and bikers from around the state are traveling to the park as a destination park. And it's becoming a place for family fun.

Stebe said one of the positive aspects of the park has been the way the older skaters and bikers mentor the younger ones.

"Another wonderful thing that has transpired has been that the local skaters from surrounding towns are using the park and there is no rivalry. The main feedback has been that people are glad it is a supervised park with a safe environment (it is a zero tolerance park)," she added.

The park has adopted the mantra "Respect earns respect."

The staff consists of Stebe, Susan Klooster, Mitchell Klooster and Jonathon Merrill.

Competitions at the park are included in future plans.

Scholarships are available through the Patsy Ramsey Scholarship Fund. Her goal was that no child be turned away for lack of funds or privilege.

For more information or to make a donation to the fund, contact Laura Stebe at (231) 675-4505.

The park is open from noon to 9 p.m. daily during the summer. The park is only closed during inclement weather or during storm watches.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Health department: 'All food vendors must be licensed'

Public health officials would like to remind all individuals, civic organizations, and community groups who plan to prepare and provide foods at public events that a temporary food service license is required.

License applications are available at health department offices and are posted at www.nwhealth.org. To avoid late fees and to aid the department in scheduling inspections, applications for a temporary food service license must be submitted a minimum of five business days prior to the event day.

"The Michigan Food Law of 2000 requires any person operating a food establishment, either permanent or temporary, to obtain a license to do so. The health department environmental health division conducts inspections and issues temporary food licenses to vendors who provide food at festivals, shows, or other seasonal events. This is so the public can have confidence they are consuming food and drinks that are safe and will not cause serious illness," said Michael Jones, environmental health district supervisor for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Food service establishments that are currently licensed are reminded that their license does not allow for food preparation away from the licensed facility location and a temporary license may be required. Inspections include a review of employee hygiene, including hand washing procedures, food preparation and cooking temperatures, food sources, food and utensil storage and handling, cleaning and sanitizing, and water supply and wastewater disposal, as well as requirements for the physical serving area.

"We take our role to assure food safety very seriously," Jones said. "During the summer months, with so many events and festivals, it can be a challenge, especially since many staff at temporary food events are not professional food workers. By enforcing a few common sense rules, our goal is to prevent foodborne illness outbreaks."

Inquiries regarding whether a temporary food service license is required for specific activities may be made at any of the local branch offices of the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

EARL YOUNG PROGRAM

"The Life and Works of Earl Young, Charlevoix's Builder in Stone, Parts 1 and 2"

The Charlevoix Historical Society and the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library are co-sponsoring a two-part illustrated program on the life and works of Charlevoix's master builder Earl Young.

Young arrived in town as a boy in the late 1890s. Beginning in 1921, he erected around 30 unique buildings, almost all in stone, that have served as a signature image of Charlevoix around the world.

The programs will be narrated by Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles. Part 1 will focus on his early life and the 22 residential structures found in Boulder Park and on Park Avenue and Grant Streets, with particular attention to Boulder Manor and the Mushroom House. The program will be presented at 7 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 2 in the community room at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 Clinton St.

Part 2 will focus on the Weathervane Inn restaurant, The Lodge and Weathervane Terrace motels, his final three houses on Round Lake, his design philosophy, unorthodox design methods and legacy. Particular attention will be paid to the near loss of the Weathervane Inn in the early 1970s when it came close to sliding into the channel. This program will be presented at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 9 also at the library.

For more information, call (231) 547-0373. There is no admission charge. Light refreshments will be served.

Festival successfully relocated

The 77th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival fireworks display on July 28 over Lake Michigan followed the crowning of Miss Charlevoix 2007 Sarah Klooster and the award of official festival art to John Haggard, who purchased a painting by the late Patsy Ramsey for $4,700. Despite challenges, Charlevoix treasures its Venetian Festival and this year was no different, even with the change of venue.

"Overall, it may have been the most phenomenal Venetian to date," said Charlevoix Venetian Festival Inc. president, Dan Barron. "We are most pleased at how smoothly things went at Lake Michigan Beach and how gorgeous a setting it provided."

Barron said other than Saturday evening, all venues and all options are on the table for future consideration, including the Lake Michigan Beach venue location.

"Lake Michigan is on the table," Barron said.

Though official Venetian figures will not be in for a few weeks, he said spending on staging and security was increased due to the location change.

"This year, security expense was more than double," Barron said. "We had a small garrison of event security — people overseeing Lake Michigan Beach, as well as Lake Michigan itself."

Security makes up a portion of the third-biggest expenses for the festival — 10-15 percent of festival expenditures consist of a combination of security, advertising, insurance, and this year, staging.

The two largest festival expenses go toward fireworks (40 percent) and musical entertainment (40 per-

"It may come down to losing the fresh meat or getting rid of the Dairy Queen sign. We're waiting to hear back from their attorney."

Patrick Hayden
CHARLEVOIX DAIRY QUEEN OPERATOR

After more than 35 years of serving fresh, not frozen, hamburgers at his brother's local eatery, Dairy Queen operator Patrick Hayden has been ordered to stop.

While the beef Hayden uses goes through a more rigorous safety process than most other meat suppliers — namely the meat is held in a factory until test results come back clean on every shipment — Dairy Queen corporate officials have decided Hayden may no longer use locally purchased, fresh meat.

"We've been fighting this issue since 2004," Hayden said. "We've been getting fresh meat daily from Oleson's since my brother took over the franchise in 1971 and the (previous owners) had fresh meat before him."

Hayden has operated his brother's franchise, located at 1111 Bridge St., for 19 of the 35 years his brother has owned it.

cent).

There were also more for-profit vendors at this year's festival, affecting revenue-generating numbers.

"We brought in more for-profits that paid a greater percentage of gross revenues," Barron said. "We realized more than five times the revenue than we would from nonprofit."

He said that nonprofit vendors will continue to have a place at the festival.

"We're keeping nonprofit, there'll be a mix," he said.

He wanted to give a special thanks to the City of Charlevoix for help provided during the festival.

"I can't come up with a strong enough term to compliment the City of Charlevoix department and staff, which they provided on the fly," Barron said. "We typically encountered more than 20 issues on a daily basis that had to be immediately addressed and they were always on the spot to help solve the problems."

The City of Charlevoix is currently the festival's greatest contributor along with Odawa Casino and Resort and the townships of Hayes, Charlevoix and Marion. Each contribute $15,000 to the festival.

The carnival, retail sales and the 50/50 fireworks raffle is typically the festival's greatest revenue-generator but this year, Barron anticipates higher revenue from other events.

"This year we look to have a significant source from the three-on-three basketball tournament and the tiki tent," he said.

Charlevoix Venetian Festival figures

One of Charlevoix's most popular events, the Venetian Festival, has an overall expense budget of approximately $250,000. Here is the rundown of the festival's typical biggest contributers, expenses and event revenues.

Top Venetian expenses
1. Fireworks, 40 percent
2. Musical entertainment, 40 percent
3. Advertising, security and insurance- 10-15%

Top Venetian contributors
1. City of Charlevoix -$15,000
2. Odawa Casino and Resort - $15,000
3. Hayes, Marion and Charlevoix Townships- $15,000

Top Venetian revenue generators
1. The Carnival- $25,000
2. Festival-themed retail sales- $20,000
3. 50/50 fireworks raffle- $10,000

Venetian Festival President Dan Barron said he anticipates that a significant source of festival revenue this year will be the three-on-three basketball tournament and the Tiki tent serving beer, wine and Southern Comfort hurricanes.

Officer hit following fireworks

At approximately 11:20 p.m. on Saturday, July 28 City of Charlevoix deputy police chief Scott Hankins was struck by a motor vehicle while directing traffic after the Charlevoix Venetian fireworks.

The accident occurred on Bridge Street near Park Avenue. Hankins was struck from behind by the motor vehicle and received minor injuries. He was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix EMS where he was treated and released.

The accident is under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

Reporters shouldn't get too cozy

STAFF WRITER

Stefanie Carano

In my previous column, I said that both a corrupt politician and a corrupt journalist can cause considerable damage to the people they are supposed to serve. It is a betrayal of trust and a breach of public interest.

Case in point. Los Angeles Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa recently separated from his wife because of an ongoing affair with another woman. Now, these kinds of stories break out all the time — with former Mayor Rudy Guiliani, President Clinton and others. However, this time the reporter that broke the story was none other than the mayor's own mistress, NBC's Telemundo news anchor Mirthala Salinas.

Since the scandal emerged, Salinas has been suspended with pay and Villaraigosa has been keeping quiet.

It is one of those rare instances where a journalist and a politician are involved together in a scandal, breaching both journalistic and political code of ethics.

Salinas and Villaraigosa not only failed the citizens of Los Angeles, they turned their backs on them, deciding that their own wants were more important.

And now, especially for Villaraigosa, many will question his actions and his choices for the city and assume they were made in self-interest. Many more will lose what little hope they had left in a system that has consistently fallen short of providing a high quality of life for those living in large cities.

Those in towns such as Charlevoix may see this as yet another example of the deteriorating quality of life in urban areas.

As for Salinas, she has only darkened the stain that has bled upon journalism for many years. After being given the opportunity to help heal the community she reports for, she chose instead to involve herself with Villaraigosa.

The world needs good journalism more than ever, and those who trade in their ethics and their dignity for status and power are disregarding their obligation to present unbiased information to their audience.

Trees need more than money and love

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Charlevoix is about to celebrate its designation as a Tree City USA, an honor that has been bestowed on the community annually by the National Arbor Day Foundation for more than 15 years.

What the designation means is that Charlevoix and its citizens care for the trees that beautify our streets and that we put some of our collective money where our caring is. It's time to mention what trees need besides our caring and tax dollars.

It is difficult to imagine, here on the shores of one of the greatest bodies of fresh water in the world, that water might be in short supply in our yards and along our streets. Lawns by and large get the water they need, but they don't need much compared to other sorts of plants. Trees are prodigious users of water. Gallons of water flow from the roots in the ground up the trunk and evaporate from the leaves. Stephen Hales, an English clergyman, was in 1727 the first person to examine just how much water was taken up and evaporated by plants. In a book entitled "Vegetable Staticks" he determined that an ordinary sunflower plant evaporated 13 times as much water into the air as did an adult human. The need of trees for water is about equivalent to our need for air.

At your request, the City of Charlevoix will plant a tree for you in the city easement between sidewalk and street, but they do not care for it. That duty falls to the people requesting the tree. June and part of July this year were almost without rainfall, and we are still lacking by comparison with an average year. Young trees are particularly sensitive to a lack of water. Their first response is likely to be shedding some of their leaves in an effort to preserve what water they can acquire. Shedding leaves is not a good idea for a young tree. Growth stops almost completely and a young tree deprived of water for only a week may grow slowly or not at all for a month. A young tree, just transplanted is best treated like a potted plant, with an every other day soaking. Most of our soils are sandy enough that over-watering is nearly impossible.

One more Tree City USA admonition. If you plant or care for a tree, do it with a child or young person. Just like taking a child fishing can change their life, so can caring for a tree. A tree is likely to last longer than initials or a hand-print in the new sidewalk. A tree is a lifetime achievement. It can outlive any of us and remind us of our personal and civic history.

Celebrate Tree city USA. Plant a tree, care for a tree and remind a child that time marches on.

Roger Knutson is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. He can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6558 or by e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

BELVIES ASSIST WITH BLOOD DRIVE

Editor:

The Belvedere Club of Charlevoix was the sponsor for the American Red Cross Blood Drive on July 19. The blood drive was hosted by the Community Reformed Church. Don Denison of the Belvedere Club coordinated the recruitment of volunteers for all positions and the baking of lots of delightful treats for the canteen. Many of the volunteers also donated blood. Each Belvedere Club volunteer was marvelous to work with and greatly appreciated by the Red Cross staff, the Charlevoix Red Cross team and myself. Charlevoix's Lions Club showed their dedication to the efforts of the Red Cross once again by working on the set up and take down of equipment. Thank you!

The blood donating community of Charlevoix certainly responded beautifully to the emergency appeal for blood. The donors deserve a lot of credit for their patience, perseverance and determination to save lives. I was simply amazed and am truly grateful to all of them. Edith Dale coordinated the fine blood drive on July 12 at Bethany Lutheran Church. Combining the two drives, the Red Cross collected 124 pints of blood. Those pints affected approximately 370 sick and injured patients.

Thank you so much to the churches for permitting the use of their space, to the Belvedere Club members, Edith's volunteers and my volunteers who worked at the drives. Thanks to the City of Charlevoix Electric Department, businesses and newspapers who helped to publicize this event.

The next community drive at the Reformed Church is from noon until 5:45 p.m. on Sept. 13. The church's nursery will be staffed by a volunteer mom for two hours that afternoon for the convenience of those donors with young children.

Thanks, Charlevoix donors and all who helped with the blood drives. I am very proud of you.

OPEN SCHOOL LUNCHES

Editor:

When you were in school did you eat pizza or cookies more than three days a week? Polls taken say that eight out of 10 kids have pizza at lunch more than three days a week. Kids need more meats and more varieties and that is why I believe we should have open school lunches.

In the Charlevoix Middle School we have poor food variety in the lunch line. It is destroying these kid's health because they are eating pizza and grease and calories way too much, it is just unhealthy and frankly gross.

Another reason is on the news they complain about these obese kids and it is probably because of the poor variety at school. It is also true that pizza sauce does not count for a veggie it is a fruit for those of you who don't know, and we kids need that veggie and meat group not the pizza and grease group.

Another reason is we need fresh air and exercise. We would get fresh air and exercise if we were walking to restaurants and we would be walking in the fresh air and even if we were riding our bikes we would get fresh air and still get exercise.

One more reason is if we had open school lunches is we would bring business to town because we would be buying food from them. They then would make more money The last reason I believe is that we are getting fat. It is partly because of poor variety and this being so we should say "no" to pizza more than three days a week and say "yes" to open school lunches.

GARBAGE CANS SCARCE

Editor:

Have you ever tried to throw away your litter but you couldn't find a garbage can? That's why Charlevoix needs more garbage cans.

I feel, if there aren't any garbage cans around, people will be more apt to litter. As a result of that, places will smell bad and the litter will pollute the air.

Also, it's disgusting to walk in areas where there's waste. Other people, don't like to pick up the trash either. The trash and litter around public places will cause less people to go there.

Also, people don't like walking far to throw their trash away. If we had garbage cans all over then no one would have to walk. Doesn't everyone get tired of hunting for trash cans? I know I do.

In conclusion I'm suggesting that if we all come together and get more garbage cans we will truly be "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Thank you for taking the time to read my letter.

MCSAUBA NEEDS CHAIR LIFTS

Editor:

Are you a frequent skier at Mt. McSauba? Most people living in Charlevoix are. Tow ropes are constantly destroying our gloves and ripping up our clothes. Why should we even bother with tow ropes? Chair lifts would be so much less of a hassle.

Why should we use chair lifts? They are much safer. People rarely fall off chair lifts, but I wonder how many people get hurt daily using tow ropes. Chair lifts are a lot easier and are less stressful for skiers and snowboarders to use.

Also, they would attract more skiers and are a privilege to be able to use. They make things enjoyable instead of a struggle. Overall, it would make our great little ski hill a whole lot grander.

Couldn't it also be used as a tourist attraction in the summertime? This site could be used as an attraction to see scenic views. People from down state come up to see our fantastic views of the lake. Riding the chair lift could easily transport people from the bottom to the top of the hill. It would be even more magnificent to view them from a higher elevation. This way, the chair lift could be used in all seasons and help pay for the costs to install and operate it.

In conclusion, Mt. McSauba should get chair lifts to benefit its skiers, snowboarders, locals and tourists.

Local Scout attends 21st World Scout Jamboree in the U.K.

Paul Stolt

Paul Stolt, a freshman at Charlevoix High School who has been active in Scouts since the second-grade is one of 3,000 American Scouts and Scouters heading to the 21st World Scout Jamboree, which takes place in Chelmsford, United Kingdom from July 26 to Aug. 11.

Stolt, son of Glen and Lynda Stolt of Charlevoix, is a member of Troop 11 and is a Life Scout actively working on his Eagle Scout Project at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

Stolt attended the 2005 National Jamboree at Ft. A.P. Hill in Virginia and is looking forward to the World Jamboree experience. He just returned from a 120 mile hike at Philmont, a scout ranch in New Mexico. He attended with six other youth from Charlevoix Crew 11. After his return from the U.K. Stolt will return for the third year at Mackinac Island where he will lead a patrol at the Mackinac Island Scout Service Camp, Governor's Honor Guard.

Stolt enjoys outdoor activities such as camping, canoeing, hiking, sailing and power boating.

"Scouting offers so many opportunities to do things that you wouldn't normally get to do," he said.

The World Jamboree will include sailing in the North Sea, as well as visits from dignitaries such as Prince Charles and his son Prince William.

"It's pretty much just an international celebration of Scouting, where we work on international peace," he said.

Scouts from virtually every country in the world will attend the event with the exception of China, Cuba and North Korea, which have separate organizations.

Stolt will be part of World Jamboree Troop 317, and will hold the rank of chaplain aide. The troop will be comprised mostly of Detroit area youth and two boys from Traverse City.

This will be Paul's first trip abroad.

A fun time was had by all!

On Wednesday, July 11, 2007, the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging hosted the 28th Annual Senior Picnic with 450 seniors and 50 volunteers and staff in attendance.

The seniors feasted on the barbecued chicken prepared by the Boyne City Rotarians assisted by members of the East Jordan Lions. The picnic was a countywide tribute to express the community's appreciation and commitment to senior citizens. The entertainment provided by The Tag-A-Longs and the Boyne Area Steppers were enjoyed by the crowd. Countless door prizes were given away, and they were made possible by the generous support of local individuals, merchants, companies and organizations from Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan.

The commitment from COA staff, Board Members and many Volunteers to give our seniors the best was well received! To all, thank you!

To those of you who missed it, it's not too late to be part of the fun. The Commission on Aging is sponsoring another Senior Picnic and Appreciation Day on Monday, August 20th, at Beaver Island. Tickets are now available to purchase by calling the Beaver Island Health Department at 448-2275 or Jean Palmer at 448-2915, only 100 tickets will be sold, so reserve your tickets early and we hope to see you there too!

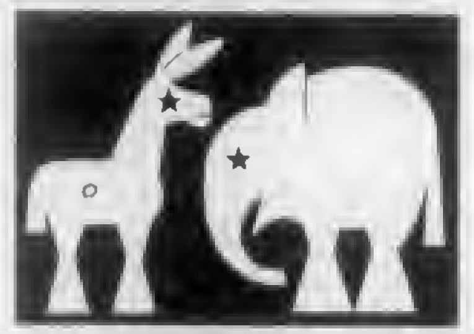
Islanders vote on 2.3 mills for school improvements



ELECTION 2007

• Opponents argue that pupil enrollment is on the decline while proponents argue that there will be no increase in taxes levied compared to the expired millages of December 2006.

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Aug. 7 primary ballot will offer Beaver Island residents the opportunity to support or oppose a 25-year, $3,950,000 school millage.

If approved, the 2.3 mills would be used for improvements to the Beaver Island Community School originally built in the 1950s.

Beaver Island Schools' 15-year 1.46 mill debt millage and five-year (originally 1-mill) .89 sinking fund millage expired in December 2006.

Board members have said the school has had enough money only to provide temporary fixes when it's in need of serious remodeling and construction to make it both safe and large enough to handle the island's 70 to 80 students per year.

STORY HIGHLIGHTS

- School district officials say there is not enough money to make needed repairs and expansion.
- 71 students registered for the 2006-2007 Beaver Island school year, a decrease from 77 and 79 students for the 2004-2005 and 2005-2006 school years respectively.
- The school board opted for a 25-year millage, it claims, to minimize the impact on taxpayers.
- If approved by voters, millage money would be used to make room for art, music and science classes and fix air circulation issues, wasted energy and safety issues.
- Beaver Island Community Schools superintendent Kitty McNamara has said, if the measure does not pass, she is unsure whether it would come up to the voters in the near future again.
- BETA Design is the Grand Rapids architectural and engineering firm which has been working on the preliminary design of school improvements.

Three face off for First Ward council seat

ELECTION 2007

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

The primary election for the Charlevoix City Council's First Ward seat will take place from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., on Aug. 7 at City Hall.

From candidates Mary Eveleigh, Dennis Kusina and John McNabb, voters will be asked to select two names to be placed on the ballot for the final city council election in November. Current First Ward councilman Bob Timms did not file to run.

Charlevoix's First Ward, of 832 residents, is the portion of the city that extends south from Division Street to Round Lake and the Pine River Channel.

Eveleigh, 54, has been a Charlevoix resident since 1986. She currently serves on the city's Zoning Board of Appeals and works as a bookkeeper for Eveleigh Tile and Stone.

"I would try my best to make sure everybody is informed, 24-seven," Eveleigh said. "I have taken the citizen planning program through Michigan State Extension. I've learned not just the state laws, but what is expected from the officials, the citizens and the community."

Eveleigh said she likes serving people. She is a volunteer for the Rainbow Shoppe, a resale shop in Charlevoix Township. She is very concerned about human rights and making sure citizen rights are respected.

"People would not be disappointed if they elected me," Eveleigh said.

Kusina, 58, serves on the city's Planning Commission and works as head of Kusina Farm Bureau Insurance Agency. He has lived in Charlevoix since 1964.

"The biggest thing that will effect the city, and the state, is the division of funds to run city government," Kusina said.

He said he would like to see more communication between the council and the commissions and sees a position on the city council as a natural progression from the planning commission.

"It's going to be a low key primary," Kusina said. "We'll see what voters of the First Ward decide."

McNabb, 49, has lived in Charlevoix since 2002, Traverse City before that. He is an Industrial and Medical Gas Representative for Purity Cylinder Gas. Previously, he served as director of the Commission on Youth for Benzie County.

If elected to city council, he said, his focus will be promoting local businesses and local jobs. He said, in general, he would like to see the city do more for the community and would like to see Ferry Beach be improved enough to have a diving platform.

"I want to encourage everyone to participate and vote on Aug. 7," he said.

The general election to decide who will hold the clerk's and ward seats will take place Nov. 6.

Competing for the Second Ward seat being vacated by Eugene Beer are Kim Vanmeter and Douglas (DJ) Way Jr. Vying for outgoing council member Shirley Gibson's Third Ward seat are Jill Picha and John Elzinga. City clerk Carol Ochs is currently running unopposed.

The names on the November ballot won't necessarily reflect who will be clerk, or first, second and third ward council members. Write-in candidates can file their intention to run with Ochs, until 4 p.m. Oct. 26.

The city clerk and city council members are elected to two-year terms and there are no council term limits.

For more information, contact Ochs at (231) 547-3250 or stop by Charlevoix City Hall where write-in candidates can file, 210 State St.

Downtown Development Authority/Charlevoix City Council

The following issues were discussed during the July 23 special combined meeting of Charlevoix City Council and the Downtown Development Authority:

Item: East Park/marina renovation project trout pond design change.

In brief: The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority wishes to have a trout pond as part of the plans for the new East Park. The trout pond is intended to recreate the best features of the former fish pool that was at the former park's band shell but add a more dynamic water feature. Plans for the trout pond consists of a source pond that streams several feet into a lower pond. The water would be chilled to support the trout. The Downtown Development Authority needed permission from the city council to do a feasibility study to determine whether the project can be done at a reasonable cost. Estimated costs for the trout pond that include lighting, fencing and handrails and additional paving is between $155,000 and $205,000. In order for any future decisions to be made on having a trout pond in the new East Park, a feasibility study must be approved by the Downtown Development Authority. If council likes the feasibility study, they will approve the change order that will move plans for the pond forward.

Board action: The Downtown Development Authority approved the funding of the feasibility study for the trout pond.

Item: East Park/marina renovation project, amendment of development plan to include an interactive water fountain.

In brief: The Downtown Development Authority has proposed an interactive water fountain as part of the design plans for the new East Park. The fountain would be located at the Harbor-Master Plaza. If implemented, the fountain would consist of jets of water that will leap out of the plaza and disappear beneath the plaza surface. Costs range from a low of $75,000 to a high in the millions. Architect Mark Buday anticipates a cost range of $85,000 to $105,000. In order to move forward with plans for an interactive water fountain in East Park, city council must approve a set of procedures necessary to amend the Downtown Development Authority's downtown plans. This includes setting a public hearing for discussion of the fountain.

Board action: Approved by city council to have a public hearing on the possibility of an interactive fountain in East Park, to be scheduled at a later date.

Boulder Park Polka Party anniversary

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

What? Boulder Park Terrace elder care and rehabilitation center will celebrate 15 years in Charlevoix with a Polka of a Party. Community members are encouraged to attend.

When? 4 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 9.

Where? At Boulder Park Terrace located at 14676 West Upright St. in Charlevoix

How much? Tickets to the party are $10 for adults, $5 for children and free for toddlers 3 and under.

Event features? Kids crafts; live polka music by the Suchey Brothers; Polish eats like pirogues, kielbasa and stuffed cabbage; beer tent.

Boulder Park Terrace elder care and rehabilitation center will soon celebrate 15 years in Charlevoix with a Polka of a Party.

The party, to offer a beer tent, live entertainment, door prizes, children's' activities, authentic Polish food and more, is set for 4 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 9.

"We've gone through a major renovation and updated the facility and we want to showcase it while celebrating 15 years in the community," said Deb Saur-MacKenzie, executive director of Boulder Park Terrace.

According to Saur-MacKenzie, Boulder Park has a lot to celebrate.

"We offer two different services, one is the subacute rehabilitation programs. Last year we had 300 patients go through the program and return back to their prior settings, and the other is the skilled nursing," she said. "I've always said we're a viable resource for the community — if you need extended care, you don't have to leave the community. You can remain with friends and neighbors because we all heal better when we have visitors around us and family around us."

Boulder Park offers 61 beds in skilled nursing with an average of 15 rehab patients each day.

Saur-MacKenzie said, while Boulder Park has grown over the past decade and a half, it will only continue to grow.

"In the foreseeable future, with the baby boomers getting to an age that we are, we will probably see more subacute patients coming here and then returning home," she said.

Tickets to the party, which is open to the public, are $10 for adults, $5 for children and free for toddlers 3 and under and can be picked up at Boulder Park Terrace located at 14676 West Upright St. or by calling (231) 547-1005.

"We've hired the Suchey Brothers, they are the band that plays at the Polka Festival in Boyne Falls and we have pirogues coming out of Hamtramck and we're having a beer tent and some Lions members are bringing their grills to do kielbasa and we're having stuffed cabbage," Saur-MacKenzie said. "So, we're doing the real deal. It's just going to be a heck of a party."

Boulder Park is a not for profit joint cooperative program of Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Northwest makes changes

Shared leadership dissolved

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

From a team of co-administrators to a chief accounting officer and dean of students, Northwest Academy of Charlevoix officials have made some changes in the school's administration.

Chief accounting officer, Gary Stutzman, said the unanimous July 18 school board's move was made to streamline Northwest's administration.

"Anytime that you have a co-leadership in any business or any institution there is a certain amount of vagueness as to who to turn to for what," Stutzman said. "What this will do is help define our roles in our structure."

Stutzman, who once shared the administrative role with Cindy Romero, said Romero will do a fine job as dean of students.

"Cindy and I sat down together and decided how we could do the best job from a leadership standpoint," he said. "She's going to take on the responsibility as director of academics which means all curriculum related functions, and that's a daunting task in itself."

With more than 10 years of classroom experience and nearly four decades in education and related fields, Stutzman said he is confident he can handle the task of head administrator.

Gary Stutzman

"Having an opportunity to work with the students in the classroom and build an outstanding program has given me an insight in dealing with people and being an effective leader in the classroom as well as among adults, whether it be with the Charlevoix Community Band or many other things that I'm involved in," Stutzman said.

While Stutzman, who is also the school's music director, doesn't plan to make any immediate changes in the way things are run at the school, there will be some new offerings at Northwest Academy.

"My students have asked that we learn to march, so we're going to start a marching band in the fall," he said. "We're going to be offering girls' volleyball and golf and cross country also in the fall to give a broader range of students a chance to be involved in extracurricular activities."

Challenges of working as both an administrator and teacher, Stutzman said, include the workload and being able to wear different hats at different times.

Cindy Romero

"I'm wearing the hat of the person that deals with enrollment, recruiting, I am in charge of overseeing the buildings and grounds and finances as chief administrative officer — that's one of my main charges — to make sure the dollars and cents all come out and we were able to carry approximately $35,000 over, which is almost impossible to do with such a small budget," he said. "Everybody is working together doing many different things to make the school operate efficiently and I'm excited about the challenge of keeping the school education level very high. My goal is to help everybody reach their full potential in the classroom. I'll do anything I can to foster support for teachers and students."

He added, "I think it's good, as an administrator, being in the classroom because you have a sense of what the teachers are going through on a daily basis and it gets you connected with a lot of students."

As far as the curriculum is concerned, Stutzman said, "There is a high level of cooperation between Cindy and myself and I don't expect that to change. I think it's important for us to continue to hire high-quality people to meet our goals and the changes in the Michigan Merit Curriculum."

STORY HIGHLIGHT

Northwest Academy's former team of co-administrators, Gary Stutzman and Cindy Romero, have new roles for the 2007-2008 school year. Stutzman is chief accounting officer and Romero is dean of students.

SEE RELATED STORY PAGE 15

He added, "A high level of learning needs to take place so the students can be prepared for the global economy they will (eventually) be a part of."

The challenges he faces are tempered by some marked advantages, Stutzman said.

"We have the uniqueness of our building as physically small as we are. We are like one big family," he said. "When you walk in we're very visible because of our physical size and we don't have separate buildings where the administration resides. We're right in the building and in the halls when the classes pass."

He added, "You see a lot of interaction between adults and students."

Two boats catch fire July 22

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to two vessel fires on Sunday, July 22.

The first occurred at 2:10 p.m. on Lake Charlevoix when a 55-foot Sunseeker suffered an electrical fire in the engine compartment. It was contained at the scene and no one was injured.

At approximately 2:45 p.m. marine deputies responded to a call of a vessel on fire in Round Lake. The 75-foot vessel suffered a mechanical problem causing a fire in the cabin of the boat. The operator was able to get the vessel to the Charlevoix City Marina where the Charlevoix City Fire Department extinguished the fire. There were no injuries.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was assisted by the United States Coast Guard and the Charlevoix City Fire Department.

Local groups benefit from tribe's gaming revenue

The Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians recently awarded funds from its twice a year 2 percent gaming revenue allocation to local units of government.

Under the terms of the consent decree, settling Tribes v. Engler (Case No. 1:90-CV-611, U.S. District Court, Western District Michigan), the Grand Traverse Band agreed to pay 2 percent of its video gaming revenue to local units of government, as defined in the stipulation, no later than 60 days after Oct. 1 and March 31 of each year. This payment schedule was modified with the consent of the State of Michigan to July 31 and Jan. 31 of each year because the fiscal year of the Grand Traverse Band's gaming operation is calendar-based.

On July 26, the Tribal Council determined which organizations would receive a portion of the gaming revenues derived from slot machines. Of the 96 applications received, which totaled $2,778,908.42, the Grand Traverse Band Tribal Council awarded 40 applicants. The total amount available to allocate for this cycle was $774,763.68.

The following awards were given in Charlevoix County:

Government to Government Agreement Charlevoix County: $12,775.00

Beaver Island Fire Department: $9,000

Charlevoix Community Food Pantry: $5,000

Charlevoix County Humane Society: $2,500

Charlevoix Public School Title IX Program: $37,000

Northwest Academy: $7,000

MSU Extension Citizen Planner Program

Charlevoix County Michigan State University Extension recently received a $2,700 grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to support the Citizen Planner Online Program.

Citizen Planner Online provides a convenient way, via the Internet, for volunteer community leaders to obtain the latest information to perform their planning and zoning duties effectively.

Charlevoix County planning and zoning officials and interested citizens can enroll in the program at a greatly reduced cost. The program is divided into seven modules that include online readings, downloadable publications, online activities and quizzes. Two additional group meetings will be held, giving participants a chance to focus on Charlevoix County issues. The program will begin on Sept. 25.

Graduates from the program will also have the opportunity to help develop the new Charlevoix County Future Land Use Plan.

With the foundation support, up to 20 scholarships are available, lowering the course fee to $130 per person. Without a scholarship, the cost will be $240.

For more information about the Citizen Planner Online program, contact the Charlevoix County Michigan State University Extension office at (231) 582-6232 or www.msue.msu.edu/charlevoix.

Pool auction taps into Cool City status

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool Auction will follow a new fund-raising concept dubbed "Walk in Charlevoix."

The "Walk in Charlevoix" approach plays on the community's Cool City status by steering auction attendees to downtown Charlevoix. Twenty-two combinations of gift certificates from 70 stores and eateries will be offered at the auction on Sunday, Aug. 12 as a way to attract people to local businesses and benefit the pool.

Successful bidders for the combined gift certificates may enjoy a "Grandparents' Treat Day" including a tour of Castle Farms plus ice cream and pizza or lunch with Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater, or flying model airplanes. An "Antique Adventure" includes gift certificates from Consign Design, North Seas Gallery and Antiques, and Kelly Refinishing plus lunch at Scovie's Waterfront Grille.

The promotion, suggested by pool auction committee members Tim and Barhara Clagett after attending last winter's Cool City project announcement, has been praised by both the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Development Authority.

"Creating packages for your auction is a cool way to promote Charlevoix-the-Beautiful, a Cool City," chamber president Jacqueline Merta said.

Downtown Development Authority director Keith Carey added, "The partnership is a perfect fit to highlight the wonderful shops and eateries here in Charlevoix."

Tickets for the Sunday, Aug. 12 event are $75 per person. They are available for the 5:30 p.m. dinner auction at the Charlevoix Country Club by calling the club at (231) 547-9796 or the pool at (231) 547-0982.

A preview of both silent and live auction items is open to the public from 5 to 8 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 11 at the country club.

What? The Charlevoix Area Community Pool Auction features packages that draw on the city's Cool City status.

Hiroshima observance planned for Aug. 5

A Hiroshima remembrance and reflection observance will take place at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 5 by the Bear River in Mineral Wells Park in Petoskey.

August marks the 62nd anniversary of the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in Japan. The event is sponsored annually by the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom as a reminder that nuclear weapons should never again be used and also to reflect on ways to create a more peaceful world.

A brief program features presentation of the Hugh and Beatrice Henshaw Peace Award followed by music, drumming by the women's drumming group from Greensky Hill Indian Mission Church and prayer. Visitors then participate in symbolic strewing of flowers into the river in memory of the hundreds of thousands who died from the bombings and radiation.

For more information, call (231) 547-6960.

Teen forgoes college for the ministry

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

With a desire to influence people of her generation, Charlevoix High School graduate Christina Bourassa has chosen to attend a ministry next school year rather than college.

"My desire is to live out my walk of faith and hope it will inspire other people and encourage them," Bourassa said.

On Aug. 15, she will be headed to Honor Academy, a program of the Teen Mania Ministries in Garden Valley, Texas.

"I used to live in Texas until I was 11," she said. "I've been here seven years and it'll be like getting back to my roots."

The ministry is intended to encourage the continuance of the Christian faith in young adults.

"In college, so many kids fall away from their background of faith," Bourassa said.

Honor Academy is an internship that offers high school graduates a variety of different ministry programs including Acquire the Fire, a weekend of Christian music concerts, and Global Expedition missions trips. According to the Honor Academy Web site, interns will commit to set aside secular television and secular music. They will also refrain from watching R-rated movies and commit to set aside romantic relationships both on and off campus.

"Interns have to have a disciplined lifestyle," said Neil Marcellus, a current intern whose mission placement is to promote Honor Academy. "They workout four times a week, there are room checks."

He said there are a very small number of interns that leave their faith after attending Honor Academy and that more are likely to continue in their faith afterwards.

Bourassa said this year 1,200 teens will attend the Honor Academy. The cost is $7,200 for the year and students often need to raise money in order to attend the academy.

While at Honor Academy, Bourassa hopes to visit Africa and Europe as part of the Global Expedition program.

At the moment, she's not sure if she will attend college or stay with the ministry.

"Many students that are there tend to go on to college," she said. "Some find their niche within the ministry."

Linda Bourassa, Christina's mother, said she and her husband are supportive of Christina's decision to attend Honor Academy.

Christina Bourassa

"We got educated by contacting Honor Academy and visiting their Web site," she said. "I think the advantage of going to Honor Academy is that it gives them a year to explore what they're searching for."

Linda said she trusts that her daughter has made the right decision.

"She's got a good head on her shoulders," she said. "This is what she wanted to do."

Growing up, Bourassa was raised in the Christian religion and in high school she helped lead a student prayer group.

"Through prayer group, our desire was to lift up our school and show kids that they're cared for," Bourassa said.

With her high school activities, she was able to visit Puerto Rico as part of a mission effort.

"Mission studies in Puerto Rico helped open my eyes," Bourassa said. "It opened my eyes to the different ways people live, but we all have the same needs. As humans, we all have the same need to love, and to laugh."

Bourassa currently attends New Hope North Church in Petoskey and is a member of the Ragamuffin Children's Theatre in Charlevoix — a Christian-based organization.

"Through Ragamuffin Theatre is where I found my core ministry," Bourassa said. "It's where I found out about the Honor Academy."

She said what really convinced her to be involved in the ministry was when she saw people actively living their faith.

"Rather than just talking about it," Bourassa said. "I wanted that."

Bourassa said college students stray from their faith because they're away from their parents and they feel like they don't have a purpose in life.

"If you don't feel like you don't have a purpose, you'll try anything to fill that void," Bourassa said.

She said this includes behavior like drinking and drugs.

She also said that her generation has a lot of strengths but have lost their perspective.

"So many teens don't realize the problems that exist in our world," Bourassa said. "There's a revolution that needs to be done, we're not living to our full potential."

For more information about Teen Mania Ministries and the Honor Academy, visit http://www.teenmania.com or http://www.honoracademy.com or contact the academy directly at (800) 863-6306 ext. 7412. To donate funds specifically for Christina's ministry, her ID# is 2397406.

Day of Caring project request deadline nears

Harbor Industries and Char-Em United Way are leading the effort to plan the 4th Annual Day of Caring, scheduled for Sept. 18.

The Day of Caring matches teams of volunteers from businesses, schools, faith communities and community groups with non-profit agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet counties who are in need of hands-on help. Other members of the core Day of Caring/Get Involved team are Bay Winds Federal Credit Union, Huntington National Bank, Way Transportation, Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Manufacturing and Charlevoix High School.

"We're very excited about Day of Caring 2007," said Jennifer Archambault of Harbor Industries. "In our first year we had 70 volunteers working on seven projects, and last year that grew to 550 helping out on 35 projects throughout the two-county area. Volunteers did tasks ranging from washing senior citizens' cars, to building shelves for the Red Cross, to washing windows at the Safe Home. This year, we hope to engage even more volunteers and help more agencies."

The Day of Caring is the official kickoff for the Char-Em United Way 2007-2008 campaign.

"This event is a logical tie-in with United Way," said Martha Lancaster, United Way executive director. "Not only do the non-profit agencies in our community need financial support, they need volunteers as well. We are happy to help connect agencies with all available resources to help them meet the community needs."

Volunteer teams are asked to indicate their interest in participating and non-profits should submit a project request by Aug. 15 to ensure that they can be matched.

For more information, including volunteer or project sign up forms, contact the Day of Caring Committee at (231) 237-6242 or e-mail the committee at getinvolved@harborind.com.

Earthly treasurers available at Snail Hill

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

The dynamic surface of the earth is a catalogue of natural history. Its crust is a product of events that have occurred, and are still occurring, above and beneath its layers.

This phenomena is showcased in Dick and Lee Schnackenberg's store called Snail Hill at 6416 Barnard Rd. in Charlevoix Township.

Snail Hill, the English translation of Schnackenberg, features rocks, minerals and fossils from all over the world.

"Rocks are interesting," Dick said. "Rocks hold a moment in time."

We love the earth and nature," Lee said. "I discovered rocks are not all gray and beige."

Snail Hill features prehistoric animals frozen in time, sliced geodes with sparkling hollows and polished bits of well-known stones such as red jasper and rose quartz.

One of Lee's favorite fossils are ammonites snail-type prehistoric creatures that were fossilized millions of years ago. The ones at Snail Hill were found in Madagascar.

"I'd like to think kids would get interested in nature like that," Lee said. "Geology is a matter of discovering what's there."

Lee's fascination with geology started two summers ago when she worked for Norm Brumm's Studio on Old U.S. 31.

"I took what I thought was the lowly task of sorting through rocks," Lee said.

However, she said her fascination grew as she learned more about the rocks and their history.

"I got so interested, it was hard to concentrate on anything but rocks," she said.

So in June, the Schnackenbergs set up a store on their four-and-a-half acre property, less than 30 feet from their home and just off Barnard Road.

In addition to rocks, minerals and fossils, Snail Hill also features crafts of local artisans.

"All crafts are from people who live within a 30-mile radius," Lee said.

Crafts include goat's milk soap available unscented or naturally scented, needlepoint, wood work and mosaic articles — end tables, mirrors and picture frames made from small pieces of broken china arranged in a mosaic pattern.

Lee said what she likes most about her business is the people she meets who visit the store.

"We love all the people we meet," she said.

Snail Hill is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

Cyclists gear up to Ride the Charx

It's time to bike around the lake.

Paul Servais is director of the seventh annual Ride the Charx which will take place Aug. 4.

Servais said there were about 400 attendees last year and he expects even more for this year's ride.

Distances of rides range from a leisurely 20-mile ride from Boyne City to the Ironton Ferry and up to the 105 mile ride "for the truly crazed," which consists of a 62-mile ride before lunch and ends the day with a 43-mile loop.

Regardless of distances, all rides will begin and end at the pavilion in Boyne City's Veteran's Park.

From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. this Saturday there will be a catered lunch of barbecue and a vegetarian meals in Veteran's Park as well as free refreshments on the road for all routes. People who wish to join the riders for lunch may register for a $10 non-rider fee.

And, Servais said, no need to worry about breakdowns because, until 1:30 p.m. there will be a SAG service with air pumps, tools and repair kits for minor flat tires.

Cost for the ride is $20 and the luncheon and ride will take place rain or shine.

There are four rides on the routes that have been designated, each with differing difficulty to match all levels of riders, from beginner to expert.

Helmets are required and children under 16 must be accompanied by an adult.

Registration for the 20-mile ride begins at 10 a.m. with departure no later than 11:30 a.m. Registration for the 43-mile, 62-mile and 105-mile rides begins at 7 a.m. with departure no later than 8:30 a.m.

Trails council ride from Bay Shore to Charlevoix Aug. 4

The Top of Michigan Trails Council will sponsor a ride on the Charlevoix County segment of the Little Traverse Wheelway on Saturday, Aug. 4.

Riders will start at Resort Township's West Park at Bay Shore and travel along the Wheelway to Charlevoix Township's Shanahan Park. From there they can return to West Park on the same route or on recommended local roads. Back at the park they can enjoy a discount picnic lunch from Harborside Deli. The ride will be led by John Paulus, a northern Michigan native and regular Top of Michigan Trails Council leader.

The Charlevoix County portion of the Wheelway is very user friendly with no detours and only a few curb cuts. With its asphalt surface and mile of wooden boardwalk the route is suitable for all bicycles. Although it's close to U.S. 31 in its entirety, it offers many spectacular views of Lake Michigan and Little Traverse Bay.

Riders should meet in the parking lot at West Park, several hundred yards from U.S. 31, a little before 10 a.m. The ride is free to Top of Michigan Trails Council members and $5 for non-members.

To register in advance, call (231) 348-8280 or e-mail info@trailscouncil.org.

Young adults needed for Rotary exchange to India

Applications are due by Aug. 4

Rotary is seeking young adults who have a desire to travel to India.

The Rotary Group Study Exchange for District 6290 — which encompasses local Rotary Clubs in Charlevoix and Emmet counties — will travel to District 3120 in northern India. Applicants are now needed for a Rotarian team leader and four non-Rotarian team members.

The outbound team will travel to India at the end of December for four weeks. The inbound team from India will be with District 6290 Rotarians from mid-May to mid-June 2008.

Through the program, teams of young professionals from two different countries exchange visits. For four weeks, team members experience the way of life, customs and vocational practices of another country, while sharing information from their homeland.

The purpose of the Rotary Group Study Exchange program is to promote international understanding and goodwill through personal connection. While abroad, team members stay in Rotarians' homes and have the opportunity to meet their professional counterparts. They also give presentations to Rotary clubs and other groups about their home country.

The Rotary Foundation pays for round-trip airfare, and Rotary club members in the host country provide meals, lodging and group travel in their district. Team members pay for personal and incidental expenses.

The team members must be between the ages of 25 and 40, living and working in District 6290 (Holland, Michigan, north to the Wawa, Ontario - mostly west of I-75), and employed full-time in a business or profession. They cannot be an immediate relative of a Rotarian. The four team members will be led hy a Rotarian from District 6290.

Applications are available on the Rotary Web site at http://www.rotary.org/foundation/educational/gse/prospective.html. For more information, contact Steve Brummeler, Rotary Club of Petoskey Group Study Exchange chairman, at sbrummeler@yahoo.com or at (231) 347-5571, or District Group Study Exchange chairman, Jeff Hickman, at jeffrey.hickman@citizensbanking.com or at (231) 933-5503 ext. 44.

Applications are due by Aug. 4.

This was the ninety-first of 95 shots Charlevoix resident Scott Richards took during a lightening storm over Lake Michigan on Sunday night, July 8. LaCroft condominiums are in the background.

While Scott Richards (top) shot the lightning from that July 8 storm, Charlevoix resident Bob Kelly caught the aftermath from his home on Birdland Drive on Lake Charlevoix. The storm came across the lake and picked up Kelly's heavy 300-foot dock and made a pretzel out of it.

Dairy Queen corporate has a beef with local franchise's burgers

DQ

According to Hayden, Dairy Queen sent him a letter, which his attorney advised him not to show the Charlevoix Courier, stating he must buy only the frozen patties from Dairy Queen suppliers.

"It may come down to losing the fresh meat or getting rid of the Dairy Queen sign," he said. "We're waiting to hear back from their attorney."

Dairy Queen civil counsel, Bill Zucco, could not be reached by press time.

Hayden said he pays an average of 70 cents more per pound to buy it fresh, so money isn't the issue.

"I think it tastes a lot better and it's not a health issue either since we buy it fresh every day," he said. "We just can't figure out why all the sudden they come out and say, 'You can't do that anymore.'"

He added, "It's the big company picking on the little guy. They're (Dairy Queen corporate) trying to make everybody do the same thing and we're just trying to keep it the same way it's been for the last 50-some years."

One of the main reasons Hayden has stuck with the fresh meat is because the locals love it.

"It's nice to have the seasonal business, but 90 percent of my business is local people," he said.

Fresh hamburgers aren't the only thing on the menu which could be at risk.

"What's next? We've been using Milton's Coney sauce since my brother started in the '70s and that's not an approved food item," Hayden said. "The whole business is around what the local people like, what the tourists like and we sell a ton of Coney dogs."

Hayden hopes that, since Dairy Queen corporate never placed restrictions on certain foods when his brother took over the franchise, he will prevail.

"This is in the attorney's hands. We might have a case we can win, but there is no guarantee of that," he said. They'll (Dairy Queen) probably take it to federal court so we'll have to see how long we can hang on."

Hayden's Dairy Queen is one of more than 5,700 stores across the United States, but one of less than 400 two-window walkup eateries.

Patrick Hayden stands in front of the Charlevoix Dairy Queen which he has operated for his brother for 19 years. Hayden may soon be forced to choose between serving fresh hamburger as has been done for several decades or lose his status as a Dairy Queen franchisee.

"Once this Dairy Queen closes up, you will not have another one like it in Charlevoix," he said. "I think it's terrible. This is Charlevoix's Dairy Queen. I have a girl who works for me whose grandfather built the building back in the 1950s and I worked here in the '60s."

He added, "We have our own way to do what the local people want, but they (Dairy Queen corporate) don't want the mom and pop stores anymore."

If he loses his fight, Hayden said, "I think the best thing I could do is try their (Dairy Queen authorized) meat and leave it up to the local people and see how they react to it."

One of Hayden's former employees, Charlevoix mayor Norman Carlson Jr., said he supports the local business no matter what.

"I think it's kind of silly for Dairy Queen as a corporation to come back and try to take their franchise away," Carlson said. "I worked for his (Hayden's) brother Jim back in the early '80s and he didn't think you were serving the customer correctly if you were serving them a frozen hockey puck and I think they hit the nail right on the head."

He added, "When I see that (Charlevoix) Dairy Queen I can't wait for it to open to get a fresh cheeseburger. When I see other Dairy Queens I don't pull in for a burger, but to me it doesn't matter if it says Dairy Queen out front or Ice-cream Hut, that's where our family will go."
